SCIENCE HONORS BLIND STUDENT OF STAR WORLD

Edwin B. Frost at 65 Tells Philosophy.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Williams Bay, Wis., July 12.—[Special.]—From all earth's troubles to the quiet harmony of the stars!

This has been the daily and nightly privilege of Edwin B. Frost, director of the great Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago and student of astronomy for forty-five years. The nights for observation and "head gathering," as he calls it, and the days for stringing these beads of fact into a pattern of philosophy.

And now, as he approaches his 65th birthday, which is to be celebrated on Tuesday at his home here in the shadow of the world's largest telescope, by Geneva's blue waters and in the fragrance of his wife's famous flower garden, he has set down for the layman a few fragments of his views of cosmic order and the underlying realities.

A Party with 350 Guests.

Messages are coming to him now from all parts of the world, where as friend and teacher he has inspired the path for many in the journey through the sidereal structure. Neighbors of this country town are to mingle with the scientists in his jolly birthday party, where 350 guests are planned for.

As problem setter for his staff of assts., as editor of the Astrophysical Journal, as coördinator of the experimental work in astronomy Prof. Frost finds his time fully occupied, although he works under the handicap of blindness. He cannot see the stars any more, but he knows them as he knows the path to his front door, and the mysteries of the telescopic eyes that search the heavens every night from the domes and roofs of the observatory.

His blindness has made him more acute in many ways, and he knows flowers by their scent, trees by their feel, birds and insects by their songs and cries, and the way in the woods or on the road by some sixth sense which has been given him.

Through His Son's Eyes.

Perhaps the best picture of how he has taken this affliction is given by his son, Frederick, a contributor to R. H. L.'s "Line" under the name of the "Phantom Lover." He wrote of "The Blind Astronomer" as follows:

"I see him day by day,
His clean, fine face—
His almost silver hair—
Smiling as he feels his way
Through awakening Springtime days
He cannot hope to see.

"His eager brain,
His search for Truth,
His finest hopes,
Are caged and blinded
By the darkness of his eyes.
And yet I see him
Day by day
Smiling with the Spring."

And in a verse of response to this, Prof. Frost bade his son to "Go in quest of nature's truth, wherever found, in star or crumpled rock, or in a leaf long imprisoned in the hardened sand." He advised him to let imagination lead the day, "for science is not all; beauty may walk with truth in harmony." And at the end he had found "love's sweet certainty."

A Secret of Temperature.

Prof. Frost has been observing and studying the facts of the universe around him and above him all his life. The best of his mind is shown by his method of determining exact temperature by the song of a cricket. After much listening and study he discovered that the number of chirps given by the cricket in 13 seconds, added to the number 42 always gives the temperature of the moment and place.

Take a mind like this and put it at work on the stars and the result is something beside theories and hypotheses, although he loves to deal with them, too, and is one of the few living men able to discuss relativity or the quantum theory with such men as Einstein, who has been his guest here; Eddington, Jeans, Eddington, or the Germans and Russians who are bringing forth new theories.

Hears Music of the Spheres.

Theories intrigue him, but he prefers observational facts, such as those discovered by the new photo electric photometer instrument which is attached to the 40 inch telescope in the main dome, a delicate instrument which registers the intensity of light from the stars, and even gives him a

TWO PILOTS DIE IN FLAMES AS NEW SHIP FALLS

Plane Crashes Near Chicago Airport.

8 Killed in Planes

Eight persons, including two in Chicago, were killed in airplane crashes yesterday and several others were injured.

Goodyear dirigible Mayflower destroyed when blown against power wire in Kansas City. Pilot and co-pilot are injured; pilot may die.

Two transport pilots were burned to death yesterday afternoon when a new Lockheed Vega airplane crashed at 65th street and Kolin avenue a few minutes after they had started in it for Detroit. The plane had flown a half mile from the Chicago airport and had reached an altitude of 500 feet when suddenly its motor stopped. It nose-dived to the earth, where it was immediately consumed in flames. The dead were:

Chester R. Bailes, the pilot, 32 years old, a resident of Kansas City, who has been flying since 1925 and who had been in the air more than 3,200 hours.

William Warren, 24 years old, said to have had 3,000 hours in the air. He was employed as a pilot by the Central Air lines and his home was in San Antonio, Texas.

Bailes was chief pilot for the Braniff Airways, which conduct a regular passenger service between Chicago and Texas. The plane in which he and Warren met death was loaned to the Braniff company by the Detroit Aircraft corporation. It was said to be less than two months old and to have been 100 hours in the air.

The Braniff company regularly uses planes of this type, in which Post and Gatty flew around the world, and had borrowed this ship while one of its own was being repaired. Bailes had flown it from Kansas City, Mo., to Chicago Saturday afternoon with five passengers. In May Bailes established what was claimed to be a new speed record in flights from Kansas City to Chicago, making the flight of 430 miles in 2 hours and 17 minutes, an average speed of 182 miles an hour.

Friend Goes for Ride.

Bailes and Warren had been friends for several years, and Warren had agreed to accompany his friend to Detroit just for a ride. The plane was to have been returned to the Detroit Aircraft company.

The plane was to have taken off at 12:30 o'clock, but a few minutes before that time a plane landing at the airport brushed past it and one of its metal wings was nicked. This was speedily repaired and was said to have had no bearing on the accident that occurred soon after Bailes and Warren took off at 1:10 o'clock.

According to witnesses the two waved a gay good-by to those at the airport and soared upward. T. W. Beam, a mechanic at the airport, heard the motor sputter when the plane was 500 feet in the air and saw the plane flutter. It was apparent, he said, that Bailes attempted to bank and return to the starting point, but the plane slipped sidewise and then came straight down.

Motor Buried in Ground.

The motor was buried several feet in the ground. The plane was in flames. Chief James Rowley of the 26th battalion hurried to the scene

EVANSTON BEACH LAW KICKS BACK AT OWN CITIZENS

Recently the Evanston city council passed an ordinance limiting automobile parking near the lake front to 15 minutes. The law was aimed to discourage nonresidents of the suburb from using the bathing beaches.

The law went into effect yesterday, and a small squadron of Evanston policemen sallied from the station with tickets. They covered every street within three blocks of the beaches, and attached tickets to automobiles which had overstayed the new time limit.

But the campaign went wrong. For one thing the weather was not conducive to crowding the beaches with outsiders. Consequently few Chicago machines were parked in the banned zone. Out of 200 cars tagged, most of them, it was discovered later, belonged to Evanstonians.

Hugh McHugh Comes Ashore July Twelfth

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Broadway may have its "Cordiale Shoppes," but Jacob Solinsky's place over on the Jersey side is unpretentious and well content to be a plain speakeasy.

Jacob's deadfall is right where the mighty ships, from giant turbined freighters to tramp steamers and even old barnacled four-masters, come in from all parts of the world.

Jacob gets his stuff fresh off the boat; he has, in fact, a profitable system. He buys it from under the coats of the sailors as they come ashore. He buys it at a price of $2 a bottle, be it schnapps, or saki, or aqua vit, or Scotch. And he sells it back at four bits the shot. So Solinsky is waxing rich enough either to enter politics or be taken for a ride.

Freighter from Amsterdam.

A freighter docked from Amsterdam this morning. Mr. Solinsky extended a greeting to three jerseyed, china-blue-eyed Dutch sailors. But Mike Maloney and Tim Shaughnessy, who had been resting their elbows on the bar for quite some time, were not so pleasant. The fact they had bent the elbow frequently conveying poteen may have been responsible. Besides, one of the visitors wore an orange 'kerchief, which Mr. Maloney construed as a direct, intended personal insult on the 12th of July.

"The Germans and Swedes, they don't amount to much," sang Mr. Maloney, "but they're a damn sight better than the dum-dum Dutch."

One thing led to another and Mr. Maloney and Mr. Shaughnessy and the three Dutch sailors soon were on the floor as tangled and lively as a can of fishing worms.

In walked Hugh McHugh, chief engineer of a Clydeside freighter. He was rather intrigued, but not greatly interested. He ordered a bottle of water from Mr. Solinsky and fetched out his own quart of Scotch.

Seems to Be a Fair Fight.

"It seems," he said to Mr. Solinsky, "to be a fair fight. Two Irishmen and three Dutch are a good match."

Then he took four fingers of Scotch and a sip of water.

"What's the fuss about?" he asked. And Mr. Solinsky replied:

"They got to rowing about a man named William, who comes from East or West Orange, I guess; at least they called him William of Orange."

Mr. Maloney and Mr. Shaughnessy ended their work and untangled themselves from their foes.

They glanced at Mr. McHugh, who took four more fingers of Scotch and a sip of water. He slipped out of his coat, exposing a pair of hairy arms which had sent him from the Clydeside to the Highlands to toss the caber against the best of them for many years. He took four more fingers of Scotch to ease his throat. He omitted the sip of water this time.

Then McHugh Does Some Singing.

"There was some singing before I came in," he said, "now I'll sing:

"'King James' men marched up the hill,
"'King William's men marched after——'

"Do you hear what I hear?" said Mr. Maloney to Mr. Shaughnessy. Mr. McHugh took four more fingers of Scotch and he raised his glass in toast:

"To William of Orange, the last of the fighting kings."

Mr. Maloney and Mr. Shaughnessy cleared decks for action.

"Leave him be!" cried Solinsky. "Leave him be! He's crying and he's laughing and them Scots are poison when they do that."

"The curse of Crommel on him," shouted Maloney.

"There's a man," said McHugh. "Didn't he chase you from Bantry to Drogheda and back again? And the McHughs were there; the little McHughs on foot with their claymores and the Hugh McHughs on horseback with their long straight swords."

Now a Real Battle Starts.

The previous battle was as child's play. When the cyclone was over McHugh snatched a curtain from the wall, and he wound it about his middle so it hung like a kilt, and he snatched another curtain and tied it over one shoulder and around the other hip like a plaid and he picked up the porter's whisk broom and tied it in front for a sporran. And as he walked out the door his steps were wide and swinging and his heels clicked as if to the skirl of the pipes and the roll of the drums.

"They tell me," he said, "they have Irish police in this town. I'm going to find me five or six."

Mr. Maloney and Mr. Shaughnessy opened their eyes and listened to the distant voice singing happily:

"Ye'll tak' the high road, and I'll tak' the low road."

As the voice became fainter and fainter, the last they heard was:

KILLS HIMSELF IN CROWDED CHURCH BY SWALLOWING POISON

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Shortly after the close of the sermon by the Rev. Dr. Robert E. Speer at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church today, a quietly dressed middle aged man seated in a rear pew, took a bottle of carbolic acid from his pocket, swallowed the poison and collapsed almost immediately. He was identified as John Tabeck of Brooklyn.

About 400 persons were in the congregation, but Tabeck made no outcery and only a few worshipers were aware of the incident. Ushers tried to revive him, and then summoned the police and an ambulance from Flower hospital.

Two physicians in the congregation administered first aid, but Tabeck died a few minutes after the arrival of the ambulance.

MONEY TRADING HALTED TO STAVE OFF CRASH

U. S. FINANCIERS, NOT GOVERNMENT, TO FIGHT CRISES

Washington, D. C., July 13.—(AP)—Assurance that American bankers are prepared to assist in relieving the German economic situation, but are leaving leadership to the European central banks, was given tonight by Acting Secretary of State William Castle Jr.

WM. CASTLE JR.

Shortly after his return from a week-end with President Hoover at the President's Virginia camp, Castle issued the following statement:

"The heads of the principal European central banks, including the Bank of England and the Bank of France, are meeting tomorrow morning in Basle with the Bank of International Settlements. They will no doubt consider the German banking crisis.

"Obviously, any plan for a banking solution of the situation must originate from these banks which are on the ground, and it is my understanding that our bankers are prepared to consider assistance in any effective plan of relief that they shall evolve."

Confers with Ambassador.

Castle returned to Washington ahead of the remainder of President Hoover's party to study the German situation. Shortly after his arrival he conferred with Ambassador Claudel of France.

Meanwhile, government officials indicated there was no action contemplated in connection with the situation by the American government itself. High officials were keeping in close touch with developments and were understood to be communicating with financial leaders in New York.

Secretary Castle said the state department received a telegram last night from American Ambassador Sackett at Berlin portraying the financial situation in Germany as exceedingly serious and saying that if there was a collapse it would be hard to prophesy what would happen.

Mills Says U. S. Can't Help.

New York, July 12.—(AP)—Ogden L. Mills, acting secretary of the treasury, in a statement tonight said that "through the President's debt suspension program the German government has been relieved of the critical strain due to its international governmental financial obligations."

"That is the only direction in which our government has either the opportunity or the authority to intervene," he asserted.

The statement in full said:

"The position of the United States government in the present phase of the German situation is clear. Through the President's debt suspension program the German government has been relieved of the critical strain due to its international governmental financial obligations. Over $400,000,000 has thus been made available for the rehabilitation of German industry and commerce during the present year instead of its payment upon reparations account. That is the only direction in which our government has either the opportunity or the authority to intervene.

Well Established Policy.

"It is, of course, well known that the government has no control over the foreign credit policies of the Federal Reserve banks and under a well established and sound public policy they have been kept free from executive influence or interference.

"It should not be forgotten that the problems with which we are concerned today are fundamentally European problems and can best be solved through the initiative and concerted action of those who are closest to the situation."

At his New York home Mr. Mills declined to amplify his statement.

It was learned that he had been in conference during the day with Gov. George L. Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve bank and planned to return to Washington on a late night train.

BERLIN, July 13.—(Monday.)—(AP)—The closing of the Darmstaedter und National bank led to a run on other leading banks as soon as they opened their doors today. BERLIN, July 13. — [Monday 4 a. m.]—After struggling all day and through the night to devise means to prevent the financial collapse of Germany, the cabinet adjourned at 3:30 o'clock this morning.

As Chancellor Bruening, haggard and weary, and other members of the government left the meeting the fate of the nation, which seemed so bright when President Hoover first proposed his one year moratorium on reparations and war debts, was still in doubt.

Legal technicalities, raised at the last minute, blocked a decree by the cabinet to stop the flow of gold and foreign exchange from Germany by the appointment of a commissioner with dictatorial powers to control all trade in foreign currencies and foreign exchange.

All Bourses to Close.

The cabinet was also blocked by objections of bankers, it was stated, in a plan to pool the resources of all banks in Germany by which the banks would mutually guarantee one another, and thus save a number of banks, known to be in a weakened condition, from crashing. However, a decree along these lines is expected to be signed by President von Hindenburg today.

In order to give the government a further chance to solve the crisis, all the bourses in Germany were advised to remain closed today and tomorrow. The government spokesman said:

"In view of the importance of payment difficulties, the bourses have been advised not to carry out their stock and currency business Monday or Tuesday."

The Prussian government, shortly before, had issued an order closing the bourse in Berlin and all others in the state of Prussia for two days.

Early today executive boards of all bourses throughout Germany followed Prussia's example by closing the exchanges until the situation clears up.

$30,000,000 Bank Shuts Doors.

A few minutes later the Darmstaedter und Nationalbank, one of the most powerful institutions in Germany, with $30,000,000 capital and reserves, informed the government that it would be compelled to close today. The government thereupon authorized the bank to announce that "in the course of Monday President von Hindenburg will issue an emergency decree guaranteeing all deposits and ensure safe settlement of business at the Darmstaedter und Nationalbank.

It is hoped that the government's promise to protect the bank's interests will prevent general bank runs throughout the country.

Dr. Hans Luther, Reichsbank president, left the cabinet meeting shortly before 1 o'clock. He expects to fly to Basil early today, where Germany hopes the world bank will join in loaning it sufficient money to tide over the crisis.

Proposed Decrees Stir Debate.

The cabinet, which had been in almost continuous session since early Saturday afternoon, met yesterday at 11 a. m. Directors of the Reichsbank and other leading bankers were called in.

The decrees, which the government proposed to issue, immediately became the center of stormy debate.

The cabinet insisted that the internal situation called for prompt, incisive, and corrective measures which must be adopted regardless of the prospects of securing foreign aid. Reports from the United States indicated that loans from the federal reserve and other quarters would only be forthcoming after the government had exhausted its domestic resources for stabilising the situation. This attitude seemed to be shared in London financial quarters. So far as prospects for French aid are concerned, the government heads and Dr. Luther believed these would not figure in the present situation, in view of France's political demands to which the German leaders declared they would not bow.

Ambassador Sackett, who was in telephonic communication with Washington Friday night and throughout Saturday, informally communicated the contents of his conversations with Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius to the state department, but, it was stated, he had not received a message from President Hoover to be transmitted to the German government. Mr. Sackett spent a greater part of yesterday at the embassy, but said he had had no communication with Washington. Undersecretary von Buelow of the foreign office was closeted with him at the embassy for an hour.

RUSSIA DEPORTS FINNS TO ARCTIC IN FREIGHT CARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, July 12.—Ninety freight cars, containing hundreds of families of Finns from the Ingermanland district north of Leningrad, and 44 carloads of Ingermanlanders from the villages behind Leningrad, were deported to the Kola peninsula on June 28, according to information received by the Uusi Suomi, the largest newspaper in Finland.

The Uusi Suomi states that the soviet government is rapidly evacuating the Finnish population, especially from the villages near the Finnish frontier. Among the last deportations were included 14 Finnish Lutheran pastors, one German and one Estonian.

Pastor Saimi of the Finnish Methodist church, who was a missionary in St. Petersburg for 15 years, today confirmed the report that the only Methodist church, which was founded 28 years ago by Dr. George Simons of Brooklyn, had been closed and converted into a workers' club. The soviet government, he reported, had expelled Deaconess Annk Eklund, who had remained in charge of the work until the government imposed such high rents that the church had to be closed.

Germans Demand Freedom of Saar; Want Compromise

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEUSTADT-AN-DER-HAARDT, Germany, July 12.—Delegations of Saar associations from all parts of Germany met here today to protest against "foreign domination imposed on the Saar people by the Versailles treaty," and demand liberation of the Saar province. "We are convinced that a compromise can be found not only to free the Saar of foreign domination but also to provide a basis for Franco-German cooperation, making the Saar useful to both France and Germany," a resolution said.

FRENCH PREMIER AGAIN REBUFFS PLEA OF BERLIN

Quits Holiday for Talk with Envoy.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 12.—Following his rebuff this morning, when he called at the Quai d'Orsay only to learn that Aristide Briand was at his country estate fishing, German Ambassador Leopold von Hoesch tonight sent out a supreme S O S to the French government to come to the rescue of Germany.

LEOPOLD VON HOESCH.

This dramatic move was taken after a telephone conference between the German embassy and the Wilhelmstrasse, during which it is presumed Ambassador von Hoesch was informed of Washington's refusal to try to stem the leak in the Reichsbank with American gold. The ambassador immediately called at the ministry of the interior and asked for an interview with Premier Pierre Laval, saying that the situation was too critical to wait even a few hours. The premier, who was also spending the week-end in the country, consented to return and by burning up the roads arrived at the ministry of the interior at 9:30.

Face Reflects Desperation.

Von Hoesch arrived a few minutes later. His face was white as he leaped from his car and hurried up the steps. After being closeted with M. Laval for a long time, Von Hoesch rushed back to the embassy to put in another telephone call to Berlin.

Nothing was given out regarding the conversation, but it is believed that Ambassador von Hoesch stressed the plight of Germany in the strongest fashion, declaring that disaster would occur in Berlin tomorrow unless some word of hope is received before morning. Premier Laval was unable to give the German any concrete assurance of relief, but said he was aware of the gravity of the situation and would consult his colleagues to see what steps could be taken.

Little Hope Seen.

This does not seem to offer much hope, as most of the cabinet members are out of town for the Bastille day holiday and it would be difficult to assemble them before the middle of the week. As a consequence M. Laval could only promise to consult such of his colleagues as are in town tomorrow, and pointed out that he could do nothing definite without the consent of the whole cabinet. It is understood, however, that he will have a long conference with Finance Minister Flandin, and if Germany can weather the storm for a couple of days longer France may be prepared to participate in a concerted move for relief.

At the German embassy tonight it was impossible to learn anything definite regarding the progress of negotiations. The German spokesman contented himself with an admonition to correspondents: "For God's sake, keep your heads," and a message to the American people that "every dollar withdrawn from Germany is a deadly wound to the German people."

Public Ignores Crisis.

Although there is considerable alarm in banking circles over the possibility of a German crash, with inevitable consequences to business everywhere else, the general public is paying no attention to the crisis.

The national holidays really started yesterday on account of the fourteenth falling on Tuesday, and the celebration is one of the gayest since the war. All the shops are closed but the streets are full of merry makers with paper hats, paper horns, and the cafes are jammed with patriots blowing off champagne corks instead of fireworks. One reason why there is so little general concern over Germany's fate is that the Paris bourse will be closed until Wednesday and it is felt that by that time America or somebody will come through with gold to stop the run on Germany.

BANKERS' MEETING SEEKING TO SOLVE BERLIN PROBLEM

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Measures by which the federal reserve system may cooperate with the central banks of Europe in providing a credit of large size for the Reichsbank and thus prevent a financial collapse in Germany were considered at conferences held today at the New York Federal Reserve bank.

The credit, which may amount to $500,000,000, has been requested by Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, in negotiations initiated some days ago, and the attitude of the federal reserve, it was indicated, will determine to a large extent the final decision of the central banking authorities.

There was no official intimation as to the result of the conferences here, but it was assumed, on the basis of various developments, that the federal reserve was preparing to participate in the requested credit.

Presumably the credit will be in the nature of an agreement to purchase prime commercial bills from the Reichsbank.

WORLD BANKERS AT BASEL SEEK KEY TO CRISIS

Fear French Refusal to Aid Big Loan Plan.

BY EGBERT SWENSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BASEL, Switzerland, July 12.—The directors of the bank for international settlements gathered here today for a preliminary pow wow before tomorrow's official board meeting, and constituted themselves as a sort of emergency committee to consider the German financial crisis.

GATES W. M'GARRAH. [U. & U. Photo.]

Ordinarily these preliminary conferences, which are supposed to be merely informative, last but a short while. This afternoon, however, the bankers sweltered through four and a half hours in terrific heat, and passed up a tea party offered in their honor by Gates W. McGarrah, American president of the bank. The meeting, which was scheduled for 3 o'clock, did not get under way until 4:30, owin gto the late arrival of Clement Moret, governor of the Bank of France.

Dr. Luther Absent.

The nonappearance of Dr. Hans Luther, Reichsbank head, who was replaced by Dr. Vocke, one of the members of the Reichsbank council, handicapped the discussions. However, the bankers generally agreed that Germany is in deepest straits and that only concerted action on the part of all other governments can save her.

It is doubtful what rôle the world bank can play unless several governments give their central banks a free hand. The international bank at the present has funds of $350,000,000 available, and under the statutes it is believed that a large part of it could be offered to the Reichsbank to bolster German credit, providing such action is voted by the board.

Fear French May Block Aid.

It is feared, however, that the French might block such a move, at least until there has been a drastic tightening up of German finances. It is expected that tomorrow's official session, for which Dr. Luther may possibly arrive in time, will settle this vital question.

MUSSOLINI TAKES STIMSON ON BOAT RIDE; VISIT OVER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 12.—Secretary of State Stimson's week end as guest of Foreign Minister Dino Grandi at Castello Sangallo on the shores of the ancient Latium, was climaxed dramatically this afternoon when Premier Mussolini appeared from the sea driving a fast motor boat, and took first Mrs. Stimson and then Secretary Stimson for a spin around the Gulf of Anzio.

Then il duce landed his guests and disappeared across the indigo waters toward the north. From Mussolini's motor boat Secretary Stimson could see the promontory of the enchantress Circe, famed in Homeric poetry, and glimmering castles and mementoes of Italy's past.

Premier Mussolini had been expected to lunch with Secretary Stimson today. He, however, was only able to make this lightning and dramatic farewell visit. Il duce first drove his motor boat to the port of Nettuno, where he was met by Foreign Minister Grandi, and then returned to meet Mr. and Mrs. Stimson. The Secretary and Mrs. Stimson will returned to Rome tomorrow.

GERARD WARNS GERMAN PLIGHT MAY BRING CHAOS

Ex-Envoy Pictures Europe at Mercy of Reds.

If Germany's financial crisis remains much longer unalleviated, communism may sweep Europe, in the opinion of James W. Gerard of New York, who was American ambassador at Berlin from 1913 until the United States declared war, and has since been a close student of German affairs.

Passing through Chicago last night en route to Hamilton, Mont., Mr. Gerard in the Union station discussed the causes and probable effects of the German crisis. Although he has always been considered a stanch friend of Germany, he defended the French attitude of aloofness and declared Germany's present plight was due solely to her own "supreme idiocy."

Calls Situation Threatening.

"The situation undoubtedly is one of the most threatening the world has faced since the war," Mr. Gerard said. "If Germany goes bankrupt and the Bruening cabinet falls the country will be left at the mercy of the communists and Hitlerites."

Should the communists gain control in this eventuality, Mr. Gerard thought it not improbable that Russia would march on Poland to reach Germany for intervention on communistic Germany's behalf against the other European powers.

With Germany in the grip of the Reds, he foresaw England going communist within a few weeks. France and Spain might follow suit, he thought, thereby inciting the Reds to a supreme effort elsewhere, even in the United States.

Recalls Former Warning.

Mr. Gerard was decried as an alarmist last November, he recalled, when, after paying a visit to President Hoover, he predicted that German bonds would be worthless within eighteen months.

"They said German bonds were sound and that I was crazy," he recalled. "In view of present developments I have been tempted to wire some of my critics the well known query, 'Who's looney now?'"

"Germany can blame no one but herself for her present plight," he continued. "If she hadn't gone to war in 1914, Germany, within the ensuing twenty years, would have gained control of most of the world's gold, based on the economic progress she then maintained. Declaring war was her supreme idiocy."

Traces remain even now of that "idiocy" and of the militaristic spirit which dominated the country under the kaiser's rule, Mr. Gerard believes.

Millions for Cruisers.

"Asking a $400,000,000 loan to avert bankruptcy, Germany is committed to spend $100,000,000 on pocket cruisers," he asserted. "France cannot be blamed for refusing to participate in such a loan."

Nor can France be blamed, the former ambassador believes, for opposing the proposed Austro-German customs union. It was just such a customs union, he averred, that Prussia used to build up the German federation of states into the empire which crushed the French in the war of 1871.

TRY TO ENTER HOTEL IN AUTO

MRS. LYDIA WINCHESTER. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

TEDDY MIGNAULT.

Teddy Mignault, 244 Pearson street, and his friend, Thomas Jennings, 15 West Delaware place, sat in a cell at the Chicago avenue station yesterday. They remembered little of what had happened, except that somewhere, on Saturday night, they had accumulated the ingredients of two howling headaches, probably from something they ate or drank.

Somewhere, also during the evening, they had been joined by Mrs. Lydia Winchester. Just where, they did not remember. At an early hour yesterday all three appeared in front of the skyscraper apartment hotel at 14 West Elm street. Mignault, who said that he was sales manager for a motor company, was at the wheel of the expensive sedan of Jennings' mother.

He Carries Out an Idea.

Just why he did what he did, no one could explain later. But at the time it seemed the thing to do.

First he wheeled the car around until it faced the entrance to the building. Then he descended from the car. He regarded the doorway. He regarded the front of the car. He measured both with outstretched arms. Satisfied, he resumed his seat behind the wheel.

Whoops! And the sedan was over the curb. Bang! And it hit the double doors in a jangle of shattered glass. Mignault's mathematics was vindicated. The automobile squeezed through the doorway.

So the Police Appear.

John Lyle, manager of the hotel, appeared. So did Policemen Thomas McNeil and Paul Mazieki. Mignault was jailed on a charge of reckless driving. Jennings and Mrs. Winchester, who lives at 1213 North Dearborn street, were charged with disorderly conduct.

At the Racine avenue station last evening Mrs. Winchester said she met Mignault and Jennings in a hamburger stand near her home where she was refreshing herself. "All I remember about them was three pints, and then here I was," she said.

Questioned about the crash, the two men said that their heads ached like the devil, and would people please go away and let them sleep. They will appear in court today.

LONDON EYES ON BERLIN; CHAOS IN EUROPE FEARED

24 to 48 Hours May Fix Germans' Fate.

LONDON, July 13.—(AP)—Vitally critical days in the world's history were believed in Britain tonight to be immediately ahead. It was felt particularly in financial circles that even the next 24 or 48 hours might produce developments which would finally decide whether a large section of Europe would plunge into economic chaos with all the attendant political upheavals or whether President Hoover's war debt moratorium plan really would bear its expected fruit.

Although outwardly the British week-end calm prevailed over the country, the realization of great events stirring was present in many quarters.

Financiers, commercial directors and many others abandoned their usual Sunday game of golf to keep in touch by telephone with representatives in Paris and Berlin and it is safe to say the day of rest of a number of officials in government offices was one in name only.

The secrecy with which Montagu Norman and other leaders of international finance were conducting their operations had a natural consequence in rumors and stories of all kinds in the press.

Advices from Brussels indicated there was a possibility Belgium would refuse the invitation to send representatives to the experts' conference in London opening next Friday. It was stated today in Belgian official circles that preliminary pourparlers between Brussels and Washington have given so little satisfaction to the European state regarding what she considers her imprescriptible right to reparations that her representation at London would be practically useless.

FATHER BRINGS ABOUT ARREST OF SON AS SLAYER

The assurance of his own father that it would be safe for him to come home led yesterday to the arrest of Peter Vasilenski, 23 years old, 2140 West 50th street, on a charge of murder.

Vasilenski shot John Dempke, 21 years old, 5040 South Maplewood avenue, and wounded him fatally Friday following a quarrel which grew out of Vasilenski's attentions to Dempke's sister, Anna, 23 years old. She told police later that she had kept company with Peter for a year, but broke with him because he drank.

Vasilenski fled following the shooting, and slept Saturday night in Jackson park. Yesterday he called his father. Detectives William Sweeney and Edward Cusack stood at the elbow of the father, Peter Sr., when he answered the telephone. His father assured him that the home was not watched and the youth returned, to be arrested.

MAYWOOD BOY RUNS AWAY.

A message sent out by the Maywood police yesterday said that Jack Cotter, 16 years old, 1509 South 9th avenue, Maywood, packed his grip on Friday and ran away from home.

THESE BANDITS TO HAVE "SINKERS," COFFEE TODAY

A doughnut shortage threatened the south side this morning, all because of two young thieves. The doughnuts, 100 dozen of them, were packed in the automobile in front of the Dawn Doughnut company, 631 West 63d street, ready for delivery, when the pair stepped into the machine and started to drive away.

Albert Sander, the owner, ran after the car but was halted when one of the men threatened him with a pistol. Sander satisfied himself by shaking his fist at the bandits as they disappeared with the 100 dozen doughnuts, maybe to seek coffee to go with the "sinkers," police said.

JOBLESS MAN FALLS DEAD.

Edward Barnowski, 49 years old, an unemployed steel mill laborer, died yesterday of heart disease while seated on the porch of the home at 8839 Buffalo avenue.

POLICE GUARD M. E. CAMPERS FROM THIEVES

Special policemen were assigned yesterday to watch for thieves in the crowd attending religious services in the tabernacle of the Methodist camp meeting at Des Plaines.

Four attendants reported that their pockets had been picked on Saturday while a hymn was being sung. Among the victims were O. E. Jones, a visitor at the cottage of George P. Ellis, the camp controller, and Edward Horth, 1528 Holt street.

The principal speaker of the day was Bishop E. L. Waldorf of Kansas City. He asserted that the chief duty of the church at present is to fight pessimism and a lack of faith, on which he blamed the world depression. In his evening address Bishop Waldorf attacked artificiality in religion.

Police Sergeant's Son Shoots Self by Accident

Robert Sweeney, 11 years old, son of Police Sergt. Anthony Sweeney, was wounded in the left arm yesterday when a pistol with which he was playing in his home at 5743 South Green street was accidentally discharged. Sergt. Sweeney and other members of the family, who were absent when the accident occurred, said that Robert had broken into a drawer to get the weapon, an old revolver. The lad was taken to the German Deaconess hospital.

SCIENCE HONORS BLIND STUDENT OF STAR WORLD

chance to hear the stars at work, a clicking which is a sort of music of the sphere to him. This radiation, incidentally, may be put to some practical human use some day, for it is power at work under law.

Prof. Frost objects to the conclusions which many are drawing from the recent works of Jeans and other English authors, that this earth, and therefore all human life, is a chance affair in a universe of super galaxies. And for his answer to this he goes back to an observational fact which has come twice in his own experience, the explosion of suns. And in his conclusions he finds it necessary to depart from the planetesimal theory of the late Prof. Thomas C. Chamberlin, famous geologist of the University of Chicago.

Working from Hypothesis.

"We really don't know much after all," said this man, who knows so much that he has forgotten whole libraries on astronomy. "It must be remembered that these English scientists are working only from an hypothesis.

"Everything that we learn from the observational point of view in the study of astronomy seems to me to point precisely and always toward a purposeful operation of nature.

"When you accept this, it seems to me to be inconsistent with physical sciences not to believe in a mind behind the universe. (In this he meets with the thought of Prof. Harlow Shapley, director of Harvard observatory.)

"I cannot imagine the planets getting together and deciding under what law they would operate. Nor do we find anywhere in the solar or stellar systems the debris that would necessarily accumulate if the universe had been operating at random.

Doubts Chance Is Ruler.

"The order that we do see does not appear to have been produced as the chance outcome of random motions coerced into some measure of uniformity. You cannot fail to recognize that law has been long at work when you examine the wonderful structure of the spirals. (It was at Yerkes that that tremendous picture was taken of the Andromeda nebula, the most gigantic spectacle in the material universe.)

"In a purposeful creation I find it not at all inconsistent to believe that there must be a mind behind developing the purpose.

"I make the premise that this is a primitive being, and the further premise that spirit is distinct from matter, and that it is not subject to sense perception, that it is without mass (or is not matter), that it is without length or spatial and probably without time dimension.

Man a Result of Purpose.

"We receive from this spiritual power some gift, and we may develop it dimly and distantly after the model of the creator's thought. If the universe is purposeful, then it is plain to me that man, who is the highest form of development on this earth, must himself be distinctly a result of purpose rather than accident. His evolution, whether it is by procedures which are clear to us or not, must be consistent with purpose and not with chance."

Thus he arrives at what Einstein has described as the cosmic spiritual sense, which may be a vague and useless sense to the fundamentalist point of view, but which scientists are coming more and more to adopt. They see in the smallest systems, the atomic, as well as in the super galaxies, studied through the spectroscope, the same or nearly all the same 92 elements that are found in the earth and in man.

If Determinism, So Be It.

"We know that there is one kind of matter in the whole universe, and this points to law," says Prof. Frost. "It proceeds along lines of cause and effect, and, with conditions absolutely identical, the result will be a definite one and not indefinite. This may be determinism, and, if so, let it be."

This was the same sort of determinism which Prof. Chamberlin believed in.

It is our ignorance which is at fault, Prof. Frost says, when there seem to be departures from these laws, and where chance seems to enter in and miracles occur. He finds no greater miracle than the bulb developing in his garden into the trumpet narcissus or the bird which wings its way across thousands of miles of sea and land every year to build its nest in his maple tree.

"The development of a human being," he says, "is doubtless as complicated as that of a star, but from the atom to the star and from the microbe to the man, we can believe that the same divine power holds sway."

He takes that ghost of philosophy, the second law of thermo-dynamics, which seems to call for the dissolution of the universe, and agrees with Millikan that there is scientific ground for the hope that the stage of degradation is reversed and that the chemical elements begin to build up again from the simple to the complex. He still waits, however, for observation to prove this.

There are millions of suns and no reason to think, according to Prof. Frost, that there are not other planets like this earth, inhabited by races which perhaps know more of the divine purpose than we do.

Explosion of a Sun.

As to the way in which planets are derived from a sun, he suggests a method which came to him as the result of observation.

"I refer," he said, "to the sudden outburst of a star which increases its brightness many thousand fold in the course of a few hours. Such a case occurred on the evening of June 8, 1918. We had been at our station in the Red Desert of Wyoming for the observation of the toral solar eclipse. At about midnight the senior member of the staff, the late Prof. Barnard, called us to witness a star of the first magnitude shining directly above us, not far from Altair, which had not been visible the previous night.

"When previous photographic plates could be examined, it was found that within 36 hours that star had increased its brilliance fully 30,000 times. It was the explosion of a sun—one of the most gigantic affairs in nature—surpassing anything we can imagine of terrestial origin.

Gas Bursting Out of Star.

"Observations since that time plainly show that a body of gas had been bursting out from the star with the speed of about 100 million miles a day, with a diameter of a visible ring increasing year by year. This ring of gas now has a diameter of one two-hundredth of a degree.

"This is a case of observation, not of theory, and while the mathematics have not been worked out, it is probably not very much more difficult to formulate the result for this case than for the development of planets out of gas extracted from the interior of stars that have had a close approach.

"The explosion of a star is by no means rare. In my own experience in astronomy at least 25 such novae have been observed that have attained such brightness they could be very carefully studied with the spectroscope. It is estimated that at least ten novae occur annually in our galaxy. By different methods the geologists calculate that the earth took on substantially its frame as we know it from one to ten thousand million years ago, perhaps two billion years ago.

Regular Process of Nature.

"At the rate of ten novae a year there would have been nearly twenty billion cases in the occurrence of novae in our own system during the past existence of our planet.

"This is an observational result. It is a fact far different from an hypothesis of the close approach of two stars with the assumed accidental result of the production of our planet. We must therefore face the question of evolution of planets or stars in terms of cataclysm. There are many processes in physics involving a critical state where abrupt changes occur, and so here we must regard such phenomena as explosion of stars to be a regular process of nature and not accidental.

"Among the luminous stars of our galaxy, estimated at many billions in number, there are doubtless millions of yellow suns having physical and chemical conditions and temperatures and atmospheres closely similar to those of our sun. Logically, we have no reason whatever to assume that our dwarf yellow sun is more likely to support planets circulating about it than are those other yellow suns.

"This is a big place in which we live and we don't know much about it."

Danzig Asks League to Remove Polish Marines

FLAMING BOAT IS SUNK AFTER IT RUNS AMUCK

Provincetown, Mass., July 13.—[Special.]—A flaming, floating gasoline filling station drifted aimlessly about in the harbor here today for an hour and a half, menacing two score yachts and water front property before it was sunk by shots from a coast guard boat. Two members of the crew are believed dying of burns. Hundreds of excursionists from Boston aboard the steamer Dorothy Bradford had a panicky few moments when the floating firebrand bore down on their vessel, only to veer off and head toward a flotilla of yachts.

Sailors from the U. S. S. Tallman manned a cutter, pursued the flaming boat and lassoed it in time to save two palatial yachts in its path.

The cutter crew began towing the gas boat for open water, when the main gasoline tank ignited and they were forced to cast off.

Then as the flaming craft bore back toward the yacht anchorage a coast guard boat arrived and sank it with several well placed shots from its bow gun.

HOOVER DOESN'T WANT PRESS TO 'HUMANIZE' HIM

Clamps Censorship Lid on Personal Items.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—The enthusiastic young press agents of the White House who set out several months ago to "humanize Hoover" are about ready to throw up the sponge. The President doesn't want to be humanized—at least, not in their way of doing it.

THEODORE JOSLIN
[Harris & Ewing.]

Mr. Hoover has clamped a censorship on White House news to prevent the communication to the press of those little anecdotes of the sayings and doings of the President which were being relied upon by the press agents to present him to the American public as an extremely human and attractive person, instead of a disembodied spirit of machine age efficiency.

The censorship is the result of two leaks of minor White House incidents in the last week. Mr. Hoover took umbrage at publication of the story of the interrupted nap he was trying to take following his exhausting activities in connection with the debt moratorium negotiations. He couldn't sleep because a carpenter working in a room above was making too much noise.

Declares Holiday on Noise.

The President sent word to the carpenter that he had declared a one hour moratorium on noise, also. The carpenter accepted with more alacrity than France and Mr. Hoover got his nap. But he didn't like it when he saw it all, including his own witty message, in the papers.

Then there was the leak regarding the President's 100 mile dash from his Rapidan camp to the White House last Sunday, in two hours and a half, to save the Paris negotiations from going on the rocks. The story related how the President left his luncheon untasted and departed so precipitately that the secret service men barely caught up with him, buttoning their shirts as they sped.

What irked the President most, 'twas said, was the letting of the cat out of the bag regarding the speed at which he drives to and from his camp. To make the 100 miles in two and a half hours, it is necessary to drive at 60 miles an hour on the non-mountainous portion of the road. The Virginia law limits speed to 45 miles.

Chooses Laws to Observe.

Mr. Hoover has asserted repeatedly that unless all laws are obeyed the republic will fall. This incident, however, showed that Mr. Hoover is very human: He chooses what laws to observe and what not to observe. But the humanizers had gone too far. Mr. Hoover clamped the lid on their activities.

The effort to "humanize Hoover" dates from the installation of Theodore Joslin, a clever newspaper man, as secretary to the President last spring. It was Mr. Joslin who conceived the idea of Mr. Hoover inviting to the White House Bryan Untiedt, twelve year old hero of the Colorado school bus tragedy.

Mr. Joslin followed that up with a revelation of the vast increase in White House telephone bills since the taciturn Coolidge departed, all because Mr. Hoover not only can talk, but insists on doing his own talking over the telephone with senators, congressmen, cabinet members, bureau chiefs and the leaders in every field of activity in all parts of the country.

Democrats Take Notice.

Mr. Joslin was getting along so famously at his task that the Democrats became alarmed. Mr. Hoover was being made entirely too human for their comfort. They charged the "humanizers" with attempting to build up a mythical Hoover for the 1932 election. Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], himself a presidential candidate, was the wrathiest of all. He burst forth with denunciation of the "crop of childish stories" that had "suddenly blossomed forth" for the purpose of "humanizing Hoover and rehabilitating him in the estimation of the voters."

"Perhaps the installation of a bedtime story secretary to the President," he went on, "is only another example of the superior efficiency we were given to expect when we were advised of all the blessings that would follow the election of a great engineer to the Presidency."

It transpires that the humanizers at first entertained notions of Coolidgeizing Hoover. They were going to record in word and picture the human doings of the President, as had been done in the case of Mr. Coolidge fishing, pitching hay, masquerading in cowboy togs, etc.

Material Proves Scarce.

But Mr. Hoover would have none of it and the material was slim, anyway. Mr. Hoover had no human weaknesses to play upon. He hated exercise and wouldn't let the photographers "shoot" his medicine ball tossing every morning.

As for fishing, he would as soon allow the photographers to snap him on his knees at bedside prayer. Nor were the humanizers allowed to record the scene at the Rapidan camp when Mr. Hoover unbends with his guests and lugs rocks to build the dam his engineering soul delights in.

He did not dance, play cards or go to the theater. He smoked, to be sure, but not picturesquely, like Coolidge with those paper cigar holders which enabled the smoker to get the last half cent's worth of smoke from the torch. Of course, he did not drink, but there was no record that he ever did, as in the case of Coolidge sipping beer in Northampton in the pre-Volstead era.

The pleasures of the table left him cold. For sustenance he preferred peanuts, which could be eaten without stopping work. But the humanizers did not despair till the censorship hit them.

COOLIDGE VISITING CHILDHOOD HOME ON VACATION THIS YEAR

Plymouth, Vt., July 12.—(AP)—Calvin Coolidge, back in the home of his childhood, strolled today among the peaceful scenes and mellow friendships of his youth.

The former President, with Mrs. Coolidge, arrived yesterday for his annual vacation in the Coolidge homestead, where eight years ago the late John Coolidge administered the oath of office as President to his son.

The vacation started off auspiciously. Within a few hours of his arrival Mr. Coolidge had pulled five plump, fighting trout from the pond of an old schoolmate, "Herb" Moore, about a mile from the Coolidge farm.

Mr. Coolidge hasn't any plans for his vacation except to look over the farm. However, Plymouth residents know exactly what he'll do. He'll spend many hours fishing and many more in chatting with old neighbors. He'll go on automobile rides about the countryside, read a book or two. But those who know him best predict he'll draw his greatest pleasure from the walks he takes—alone with his memories—over paths he trod before he set out on the trail that led to the White House.

PARTY 'SWITCH' OF HOOVER TOLD IN '32 'MIRRORS'

First Promised to Run as Democrat, Book Says.

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—How Herbert Hoover, after being closely identified for several years with the Democratic administration of President Wilson, was persuaded in 1920 to throw in his lot with the Republicans and thus prepare his way to the presidency, is told in detail and with a claim to authenticity in "The Mirrors of 1932," a work of anonymous authorship which will be published on Friday by Brewer, Warren & Putnam, Inc.

The book contains a series of portraits and political appraisals of men whose names have been mentioned in connection with next year's presidential contest. The list includes Mr. Hoover, Alfred E. Smith, Calvin Coolidge, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Dwight W. Morrow, Joseph T. Robinson, Albert C. Ritchie, Owen D. Young, Newton D. Baker and Gifford Pinchot, each with his own chapter. A final chapter is devoted to "John Barleycorn," in recognition of the part played by prohibition in national elections since the enactment of the eighteenth amendment.

Picture Unflattering.

The opening chapter, devoted to Mr. Hoover, presents an extremely unflattering picture of the President and his administration which, the unidentified author declares, has been shining with nothing more than "30-watt bulb" lustre.

The name of Governor Roosevelt is introduced as the author tells of Mr. Hoover's easy transition into the Republican party in 1920 after he had been entered as a contender for the Democratic nomination for president in the Michigan primaries without voicing a protest.

According to "The Mirrors of 1932" Mr. Roosevelt, then assistant secretary of the navy in President Wilson's administration, and Franklin K. Lane, President Wilson's secretary of the interior, were at that time Mr. Hoover's closest friends at Washington. They had been bending their efforts toward persuading him to declare himself a Democrat and go after the Democratic nomination for president. According to the author, Mr. Lane had received his promise that he would do so.

Charge Pledge Was Broken.

Then there entered into the situation United States Senators Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts and Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania, two of the most astute politicians and highly placed "elder statesmen" in the national organization of the Republican party. They took Mr. Hoover in hand and after some "missionary work," which was made less difficult by the fact that Mr. Hoover "had no deep political convictions," talked him into breaking his pledge to Mr. Lane and join the Republicans, as the "best bet" to gain the high political preferment he was seeking, as the Democrats had only a "faint chance" of emerging victorious either in 1920 or 1924.

A dramatic touch is lent by the inevitable inferences, not denied by George Palmer Putnam of the publishing house, that Gov. Roosevelt is authority for the statements made in the report of the political "conversion" of Mr. Hoover.

The Hoover chapter in the book also says that Mr. Hoover was anxious in 1928 to have for his running mate United States Senator George W. Norris—whom he has since denounced as the exponent of "degenerate" political doctrines—but that he was turned down coldly.

"The Nebraska maverick," according to the author, "denounced the fantastic proposal as soon as it was broached to him."

The author of "The Mirrors of 1932" looks upon the renomination of Mr. Hoover by the Republicans next year as a foregone conclusion, although "his orphaned party" would "cast him aside if practical politics permitted." Personal vanity, according to the author, keeps Mr. Hoover from accepting "the popular estimate of himself as President."

Watchman Falls to His Death in Elevator Shaft

Frank Kasperski, 56 years old, whose home is in Cicero, was killed last night when he fell one floor to the basement of an elevator shaft in the Atwell Printing and Binding company, 221 East Cullerton street. Kasperski was a night watchman in the plant. Because he weighed 260 pounds, employés of the company called the fire department to remove the body.

YOUTH'S AUTO KILLS MOTHER OF 4 CHILDREN

Runs Down Three Waiting for Street Car.

Mrs. Anna Musart, 51 years old, 10336 South Michigan avenue, was killed yesterday morning when an automobile in which three youths were riding struck a group of women waiting for a street car at Cottage Grove avenue and 58th street.

Mrs. Josie Zalecki, 11816 South Peoria street, and Mrs. Mary O'Boyle, 1715 Marquette road, received minor injuries. They and Mrs. Musart had just finished a night shift at a nearby laundry and were on their way home. Mrs. Musart was the principal support, police learned, of four children. Her husband, an employé of the Pullman company, has had little work for the last two years.

Three Youths Seized.

Steve Bartus, 20 years old, 734 East 92d place, his brother John, 19 years old, and William Howey, 20 years old, 9355 St. Louis avenue, were arrested by the Wabash avenue police and held for the inquest into her death today. The elder Bartus boy, who was driving, attempted to escape after the accident, the police charged.

This death and seven others raised the 1931 Cook county auto toll to 604. The other victims:

Stanley Polkowski, 15 years old, 2223 South Trop street. Died at St. Anthony's hospital of injuries received Saturday when he was struck by an automobile while riding his bicycle at Ridgeway avenue and 22d street. Robert Gaude, 43 years old, 2053 West 17th street, driver of the car, was held.

Anthony Pokvitis, 63 years old, 6231 South Washtenaw avenue. Died at the county hospital yesterday of injuries suffered July 4 when he was struck by an automobile driven by James Kolozy, 3754 Normal avenue, at 37th street and Wallace avenue.

Newland Snyder, 21 years old, colored, 3711 South Dearborn street. Fatally injured when he was jolted from his automobile after a collision with the car of E. W. Hatchet, also colored, of 5432 Prairie avenue, at 57th street and Prairie avenue.

Fred Brooker, 45 years old, 3026 5th avenue, a newsboy. Fatally injured when struck by a hit and run driver early this morning at Madison street and Sacramento boulevard. He died the county hospital.

L. C. Bell, 78 years old, 8 West Maple street. Died in the Passavant hospital of a fracture of the skull he suffered July 9 when he was run over by an automobile while crossing Lake Shore drive at Bellevue place. The driver of the automobile was Adrian Wood, 30 years old, 6040 Winthrop avenue.

Unidentified man. About 21 years old. Died at St. Anne's hospital of injuries received early this morning when struck by an automobile driven by Edward F. Griesz, 1426 North Latrobe avenue.

Unidentified man about 55 years old, wearing a gold wedding ring. Fatally hurt as he stepped from a State street car at 58th street and was struck by an automobile driven by Daniel McNamara, 19 years old, 6213 South Peoria street.

Wealthy Youths in Crash.

Three youths, members of wealthy families, were bruised late last night when their automobile sideswiped one machine and collided head on with another in Waukegan road, on the western limits of Lake Forest. They are John Morse, 18 years old, 1242 Lake Shore drive, son of Col. R. H. Morse, head of Fairbanks Morse & Co.; Paul Poole, also 18, of 3100 Sheridan road, and H. Wardwell, 17, of 5423 Hyde Park boulevard.

Lake Forest police said that the boys had just left the Knollwood Country club and were driving north in Waukegan road, when Morse, at the wheel, veered too far to the left and grazed the southbound car of Edward J. Upton, 5072 West Monroe street, and crashed a second later into the machine of L. Bloomenthal, 914 Glengyle place, also south bound. The boys were given aid at the Alice Home hospital in Lake Forest. Later young Morse was charged with reckless driving, and ordered to appear in Police court July 15. He was bailed out by his father on $500 bond.

HINT PANTAGES CASE WILL BE DISMISSED; TRIAL SET FOR TODAY

San Diego, Cal., July 12.—(AP)—With the retrial of Alexander Pantages, theater magnate, and three others on conspiracy and morals charges scheduled to open tomorrow, it was reported today from various sources that the "girl market" case would be continued or dismissed.

District Attorney Tom Whelan, indicated a continuance would be asked on the grounds that his deputies were busy.

Attorneys who defended Pantages said any effort to continue the case would be fought vigorously. They intimated they had been assured that the case would be dropped. At the first trial the jury disagreed.

SEALER GREIN WARNS OF FAKE FEE COLLECTORS

City Sealer Joe Grein yesterday warned the public that racketeers were visiting merchants, representing themselves as employés of his office and fraudulently collecting fees after going through the motions of testing scales.

One of the swindlers entered the Ribki grocery at 3231 Wall street on Saturday and charged 30 cents for his services after testing two scales. The same man, it is believed, went to the Katterski store at 3344 Wall street, and charged 30 cents for inspecting three scales.

SUSPECT SEIZED IN CICERO NAMED IN KIDNAP PLOT

Peter Valance, 33 years old, 1424 South Cicero avenue, Cicero, was identified yesterday at the detective bureau by Erwin Kolar, a taxicab driver, who is the complaining witness against John Erwin, alleged bandit, as one of three men who forced his car to the curb on June 22 and tried to kidnap him.

Kolar charged to the Chicago Crime commission recently that first bribery and then intimidation had been used in an attempt to persuade him to drop his charge against Erwin. Cicero police, who arrested Valance and turned him over to Sergts. Joseph Haksa and Edward Tyrell of the detective bureau, characterized the prisoner as a petty hoodlum, known as "Mexican Pete," who had served one term of a year in the Bridewell.

Valance denied that he had attempted to kidnap Kolar. On the contrary, he asserted, he and his companions were seeking Erwin, "to give him a couple of black eyes," because by his activities Erwin had directed police attention to the Cicero saloon where Valance and his companions held forth.

CALL CAPTAINS TODAY FOR QUIZ BY GRAND JURY

Subpoenas are to be served today on several police captains requiring their appearance tonight before the special grand jury which has been investigating police bank accounts and real estate holdings. The prosecutor's office refused to reveal the names of those to be called, but it was understood the following would be included: Capt. Joseph Goldberg of Albany Park, Capt. Patrick Harding of Rogers Park, and Capt. Michael Grady of Kensington.

TWO PILOTS DIE AS NEW PLANE CRASHES, BURNS

with a company of firemen. Warren's body was on top of the machinery and it was quickly pulled from the fire. A parachute with Warren's name on it was found in the wreckage. Bailes' body was under the debris and it could not be removed until firemen had poured chemicals on the flames.

Other witnesses corroborated the statement that the motor had stopped. Dr. E. M. Stanton Jr., an optometrist with offices at 108 North State street, said the plane went into a tailspin. The motor was said to have been a Pratt-Whitney Wasp of 425 horse power. One explanation given was that Bailes may not have warmed up the engine sufficiently before starting the flight.

DIRIGIBLE WRECKED

Kansas City, Mo., July 12.—(AP)—Breaking away from a ground crew during a wind and rain storm late today, the Goodyear Zeppelin airship Mayflower crashed into high tension wires at the edge of the Kansas city municipal airport and burned.

Capt. C. E. Brannigan, 35 year old pilot of the ship, here on tour from Akron, O., was dangerously burned. R. H. Hobensack, co-pilot, was slightly burned in pulling Brannigan from the flaming wreckage. Two other members of the crew were bruised.

Hobensack said the ship, which carried no passengers, apparently caught fire when the gasoline lines were broken and the fuel ignited as the blimp crashed into the highly charged wires. The bag of the ship was filled with noninflamable helium.

The Mayflower, on June 22, had a hard time riding out a storm in which she was caught over Chicago:

Girl Flyer Forced Down.

Waynoka, Okla., July 12.—(AP)—Laura Ingalls, who left Burbank, Cal., for New York this morning in the airplane in which she plans to fly solo to Paris, was forced down here late today by stormy weather.

Two Girls Are Killed.

Jonesboro, Ark., July 12.—(AP)—Two girls were burned to death and Pilot H. E. Lawhead was critically injured as their plane burst into flames and crashed near here this afternoon. Miss Elizabeth Osborn, 18, and Miss Ruby Hinson, about 18, both of Jonesboro, were killed.

Two Boys Die in Crash.

Harrisonville, Mo., July 12.—(AP)—Two Harrisonville farm boys, George Colburn and Jake Thomas, were killed and J. E. Vrooman, Kansas City airplane pilot, was critically injured in an airplane crash near here late today. The boys were passengers on a flight with Vrooman.

Two Canadian Victims.

LLOYDMINSTER, Sask., July 12.—(AP)—Two men were killed and one was seriously injured as their airplane crashed from a height of 1,200 feet. The dead were Art Bielby, pilot, and William Brampall, passenger, both of Lloydminster. W. Lang of Kitscoty, Alta., was seriously injured.

TWO N. Y. FLYERS ON WAY TO MEXICO CITY PASS RICHMOND, VA.

Richmond, Va., July 12.—(AP)—A black Stinson monoplane, believed to be that of Seth Yerrington and Edward Maloney, flying from New York to Mexico City, passed over here at 7:20 p. m. eastern standard time.

Officials of the Richmond Air Transport company said they were unable to read license numbers on the ship, which appeared from the north, circled Byrd airport once at a height of 1,500 feet, and headed southward.

Ex-District Attorney Keyes Out of Prison in 3 Months

San Quentin, Cal., July 12.—[Special.]—Asa Keyes, ex-district attorney of Los Angeles county, has three more months to serve in San Quentin penitentiary. The state parole board met here today and fixed Keyes' term as five years, with the last two years on parole. This will give him about three months yet to serve. Keyes was convicted and sentenced to prison on graft charges.

SCHOOL SCRIP PLAN UP FOR A DECISION TODAY

Members of the board of education will hold a special meeting today to reach what is expected to be a final decision on the plan of their president, Lewis E. Myers, to pay employés and contractors with scrip instead of checks.

The way was opened for issuance of the scrip last week when Mayor Cermak and Controller Szymczak signed the $5,200,000 in 1931 tax anticipation warrants, which the board expects to use as security for the scrip, or participation shares, as the scrip has been designated.

The mayor, in signing the warrants, however, gave warning that the scrip plan is of doubtful validity and that it might impair the value of other city and school securities, since holders of the scrip may have to dispose of it at a discount.

While engineers and janitors have generally indicated acceptance of the plan, the teachers have consistently opposed it, contending it would place them at the mercy of loan sharks. Many board of education employés are hoping banker friends will accept the scrip as security for loans without requiring a discount.

PARIS, July 12.—(AP)—The Paris Midi says it learns that Franco-Soviet negotiations are about to be concluded by formal treaty, but on a smaller basis than anticipated. A new French ambassador to Moscow is to be named.

NONSTOP FLYERS PASS MOSCOW ON ROUTE TO TOKIO

Lebrix and Doret Ahead of Schedule.

PARIS, July 12.—(AP)—The French aviators, Joseph Lebrix and Marcel Doret, attempting a nonstop flight from Paris to Tokio, passed over Moscow at 11 a. m. [Chicago time] today in their airplane Hyphen, according to word which reached here tonight. They are accompanied by Rene Mesin, a mechanic.

The news was immediately flashed on electric signboards in the central boulevards, and a great shout went up from the Parisian throngs who were celebrating the eve of the second day's anniversary of the fall of the Bastille, one of France's most important holidays.

Make Fast Time.

It was the first news of the flyers which had reached here since they were reported over Belgium a little over an hour after they took off from Le Bourget airdrome. The news indicated the flyers were nearly an hour ahead of their original schedule, which called for a flight of 12½ hours to Moscow.

The fliers hoped to reach Tokio in 41 hours, flying directly across Russia. They expect to reach Chita in 6 hours and Mukden in 32½ hours. If this schedule is maintained, the Frenchmen will break the world record for a non-stop, straight-line long distance flight.

Carries Fuel for 70 Hours.

The plane carried fuel for 70 hours of flying. The distance from Paris to Tokio is 6,000 miles. The present straight line record, held by Dieudonne Costa and Maurice Bellonte, is 4,909 miles.

The Hyphen is the same plane which Lebrix and Doret used a few weeks ago to break the world's distance record in a closed circuit.

ASK HUNT FOR MISSING GIRL.

Police were asked yesterday to search for Rose Hayden, 16 years old, who left her home at 5655 Magnolia avenue on July 5 and has not been seen since by her relatives.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE POLITICAL PAY ROLLS.

In 1910 there were 22,500 names on the pay rolls of the city government and the school board of Chicago. In 1915 the number had increased to 23,000. By 1925 the number of jobholders had mounted to 35,000. In 1928, the last year for which the figures are available, the army of jobholders had increased to 41,000.

The figures are Oscar Hewitt's and they tell with precision why the taxpayers of Chicago have been driven to the point of desperation by the costs of government while the local governments of Chicago are unable to pay their bills. The rest of the story is to be found in the statement of District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson. He found, upon examining the books of contractors who had dealt with various local governments, that the taxpayers were paying, in the main, twice as much for supplies and construction as honest dealing could have justified.

Since 1910 the population of Chicago has increased by 54 per cent. The number of names on the pay rolls of city and schools alone has increased 86 per cent. If the increase in the number of employés had kept pace with the increase in population the city and schools could save more than $16,000,000 a year despite the fact that the average wage in these services had increased from $1,106 in 1910 to $2,484 in 1929, or 121 per cent.

In recent years every major industry in the country has undergone a sharp liquidation. Agriculture, manufacturing, mining, transportation, merchandising, and communications have all suffered. Prices are down. Profits are down. Wages are down either as a result of lowered rates or unemployment. In shining contrast are the costs of government. They have risen steadily and no genuine effort has yet been made to lower them. The expenditures of the federal government are larger than they have ever been before in time of peace and the expenses of local government were never so high in peace or in war.

Since the new administration took charge in Chicago the number of pay rollers has been somewhat reduced, but it is plain from Mr. Hewitt's analysis and from the recent action of the city council that the movement has not gone far enough. Money has been saved by imposing enforced vacations without pay, but that expedient does not reduce the total number of employés; indeed, it guarantees the permanence of the problem of finding money to pay all of them for 52 weeks a year. If the burden on the taxpayers is to be lightened, the number of pay rollers must be reduced by thousands, and permanently.

The paring of the pay rolls and the elimination of contract graft are the first essentials to any genuine tax relief in this community. Taxes can be paid only from the productivity of the business enterprises of the community. The present costs of government place a burden upon productivity which is too heavy to bear. The liquidation of government to 1931 levels may prove painful to the politicians but it has to come if the finances of the local governments are ever to be restored to soundness.

PUBLIC CONTROVERSY IN THE MAILS.

Add to the lengthening list of attempts to suppress publicity and public discussion Henry L. Doherty's request to the postmaster general that he exclude the Kansas City Star from the mails. Mr. Doherty complained that the Star had published "colored" articles that resulted, he alleged, in the banning by the state of Kansas of certain securities of the public utility corporation of which Mr. Doherty is the head. The postmaster general declined to accede to Mr. Doherty's request on the ground that the department had no evidence that matter of a libelous, scurrilous, defamatory or threatening character had been carried in the mail. Postoffice officials are reported to have said that no action would be taken on the request unless it was shown that the articles objected to were "obscene."

The latter report puts the decision on a much narrower basis than the former, and a much safer one from the viewpoint of the freedom of the press and the right of the public to be informed on public questions. In the case of Mr. Doherty's corporation, the Star is engaged in a controversy over rates of service, and the governor of Kansas shares the Star's opinion that they are too high and that the corporation has made itself liable to measures under the laws of Kansas. Without implying any judgment upon the merits of the controversy, it seems clear that to shut out a newspaper from the mails is to deny the public the right to come to its opinion and would be an improper use of power. If articles published by the Star are libelous, Mr. Doherty and any one injured by the libel have recourse to action in courts, to which he has now resorted. Scurrilous and defamatory statements may also be actionable, but these are terms of a rather vague or elastic meaning which it would be very bad public policy to use as a basis for depriving any citizen of his privilege in the mails. A federal statute applies them and also the term "threatening" to postcards or other matter in which the statements objected to are exposed so that they may be seen generally. But publication of news and comment is the function of the press and to subject it to suppression on terms as controversial and undefinable as these would be, as the Supreme court has recently said emphatically, contrary to public policy and to the guaranty of freedom of the press.

The American theory is that the correction of unfair or "colored" report or comment must be left to the intelligence and sense of justice of readers rather than to the judgment and authority of officials, except when libel is committed, for which the courts give remedy. It is recognized that injustices will occur, but remedy by suppression, as the courts have pointed out, is subject to worse abuse and opens the door to more serious evils than the wrongs sought to be cured.

NEW WARDS.

The city council has redistricted the city into fifty new wards. The terms of present aldermen are not disturbed but the next election will give a redistribution of representation. Inequalities have been corrected. Vest pocket wards have been brought up toward the proper ratio. Heavily populated wards have been cut up. In general a fair average has been struck. The new map is not one of perfect equities. The political finger ran the lines and some of the geography is personal and some is racial but the principle of equal representation is fairly well served.

There remains now in the state only the disfranchisement of the metropolitan areas in the legislature. That injury to the democratic system of government stands by itself. The squirearchy of rural Illinois is carrying on its conscience the responsibility for the great lapse of representative government in this state.

OUR ROLE AT THE ARMS CONFERENCE.

Let us realize now on the threshold of a new armament conference that if our government assumes a leading part, as it seems preparing to do, in a conference dominated by the European powers, our position will not be strong. Our idealistic view is to the contrary, but idealism will have little to do with the proceedings. Our only card will be our ability to lend Europe money. Our previous concessions, beginning with the Washington conference, have left us little to concede, unless our government is ready to make concessions which even our American complacency will refuse. Our failure to take advantage of our treaty rights to build up to our ratio and the reputation we have created of being unwilling to spend the money necessary for a strong navy have deprived us of influence on that score.

We are also going to be told, so far as the chief problem of the conference is concerned, we are the least fitted to judge or to propose. That problem is not naval but land armament. We shall meet representatives of nations naturally and wisely unwilling to be advised on what they rightly consider their vital interest in security, diplomats who will have no illusions as to the cards we hold and who will see to it that any of those insubstantial victories our diplomacy has had to be content with in our recent international experiments must be paid for only in some sound medium.

COLLEGE DORMITORIES.

Perhaps the most striking physical change in our universities in recent years has been the great increase in dormitory construction. This is to be explained in part at least as the physical expression of the fact that our universities are tending to organize themselves after the pattern of Oxford and Cambridge, with their more or less independent colleges as the nuclei of academic life.

It is curious, however, and somewhat paradoxical that, at the same time that the dormitories are being built, the presidents of the universities are insisting that the student is not an infant, and to treat him as such is to do him a grave injury. If he must be treated as an adult, it is a little difficult to understand why he must live in a house presided over by a faculty member. If he is old enough to be regarded as a responsible adult in other matters, he ought to be old enough to find suitable living quarters for himself and conduct himself in a seemly fashion while off the campus.

College dormitories have much to be said for them, but if what the college administrators say of their need of more money for salaries and research is true it is curious that available funds are being used for what is, after all, a relatively unimportant aspect of university life. So far as the situation in this city is concerned, it is doubly curious that dormitories are being built on campuses surrounded by fairly pleasant residential neighborhoods while little is being done to improve the living conditions of students attending the west side medical schools. There, we should suppose, dormitories would be of great value.

A NEW CHARGE AGAINST BEES.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

Honey bees carry on a manufacturing business, according to the city engineer of Baltimore. He holds that therefore a man who keeps bees on his premises keeps a factory and breaks the restrictions on a residential section.

But it is not so simple as that. Probably the neighbors who complained about the Baltimore bee man would not have minded his able assistants if these would only have stayed in their factory. The bee is not a factory worker in the ordinary sense. She spends most of her working time off the factory premises. Much of it she spends miles away.

When within the hive she behaves herself admirably. She makes little noise, no smell and not a bit of smoke. The manufacture of honey is about the only industry that generates no waste to be cast out on dump heaps, carted away or turned into streams to pollute them.

Why, then, complain? The dislikes of the neighbors for bees among them must be attributed to the actions of the insects when outside the factory premises. Perhaps they have been guilty of trespass, of assault and battery, of carrying concealed weapons and of infractions of the traffic regulations. In such case they should be punished in accordance with their deeds rather than framed on the manufacturing charge.

But we should much rather see them left alone. Bees give us all a good example. They do actually and admirably attend to their own business. They solved, tens of thousands of years ago, those twin worries, the labor problem and the employment problem. They laugh at industrial depressions. We should study them, not fight them.

POISON IVY TREATMENTS.

THERE seem to be some promising improvements in methods that are of interest to people subject to poison ivy. One is a way of measuring susceptibility, two are forms of treatment, and a fourth is a means of eradication of the shrub or vine.

To measure susceptibility: The poison is extracted from poison ivy with either 95 per cent alcohol or almond oil [both preparations are on the market]. For the purposes of this test watery dilutions of the alcoholic extract are made. There are six of these, ranging from one in five to one in five hundred. A piece of rubber adhesive 2½ inches square is cut. In the center of this is placed a piece of glazed paper one-half inch square and, on this, a circle of white blotting paper one-third inch in diameter is put.

The blotting paper is saturated with the poison ivy extract, after which it is applied to the unwashed skin of the front surface of the lower arm. The tests should begin with a very dilute solution. The application is left in place for 8 hours.

It is then removed and the skin thoroughly scrubbed with soap and warm water to remove all trace of the poison. The area is watched for one week, since the poison ivy eruption may be delayed for several days. If there is blister formation after the use of a one to five hundred solution the person tested is very sensitive. Reaction after 1 to 100 indicates considerable sensitivity. After 1 to 10, very little.

The first method of treatment consists in overcoming sensitivity by the use of these alcoholic or almond oil extracts. The method has been developed to the point where it seems to offer much to those to whom the words are now a terror. The other treatment consists in applying a ten per cent watery solution of tannic acid to the oozing, itching blisters. It is applied by means of saturated gauze. But one application is made and the gauze is left on only one hour. After that, nothing is used except it be a protective covering of gauze.

Bob Becker says the best method of killing poison ivy plants is to pour a strong salt brine on the ground around the stalk of the plant. He applies the brine by means of a watering can with a small nozzle or spout. The brine must reach the roots.

Paul Potter quotes Prof. Muenscher as advising a spray composed of a solution of calcium or sodium chlorate, or a strong brine.

PRURITUS MEANS "ITCHING."

M. L. M. writes: What are the symptoms, cause and treatment of pruritus?

REPLY.

Pruritus is a symptom and nothing more. It means "itching." When the word is used as though it meant a disease it is combined with some other word. Examples are: Pruritus senilis, the itching to which old people are subject; pruritus diabeticus, the itching of diabetes; pruritus auris, itching of the ear. Since it is a symptom present in many diseases the causes must vary. A direct cause of some of the cases is supposed to be an excess in the tissues of a chemical called histamine. One theory is that pressure on the nerve endings in the skin is another direct cause.

Of course, treatment also varies. Calcium gluconate has a place in the treatment of some cases. Extract of spleen has a place in the treatment of others. Tanning the skin by light is curative for some cases. Cleanliness cures others. Treatment of the underlying disorder has a place, of course. Itching in old people is benefited by the free use of grease on the skin. This applies to salves advertised as cures and others not so advertised. Some cases are cured by staying in for and moist air.

NO HARM IN ALUMINUM.

K. H. writes: I wish to know if you think cooking in cast aluminum is harmful to one's health and if it could possibly cause cancer.

REPLY.

It does not cause cancer and it is otherwise harmless.

PROBABLY TOO LATE.

J. M. writes: I am 16 years old and have rickets. Do you think there is any chance of curing myself of this disease by taking cod liver oil?

REPLY.

Probably rickets has done you most of the harm it can. Stay in the sunlight as much as possible. Take cod liver oil or viosterol. Eat radiated foods.

LEGAL DOCUMENT.

Chicago, June 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I signed a paper which reads to the effect that I promised to pay rent, at the rate of so much a month for six months. It was written on tablet paper, and there were no witnesses present. 1. Is it legal? 2. What steps would have to be taken to collect? E. S.

1. Yes.
2. Employ an attorney.

BANK STOCK.

Chicago, July 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Eight years ago I bought eighteen shares of a national bank stock. A year later I sold these shares. If the bank should fail and not pay its depositors would I be held liable for this stock, and if so, how much? W. C. M.

You might be held for debts that were incurred while you were a stockholder, but it seems probable that such debts have been paid.

ALL NIGHT PARKING.

Chicago, July 8.—[Friend of the People.]—Six or seven cars and a good sized truck park night after night in front of a building near 78th and Wood streets. This is not only a fire hazard, but does not enhance the appearance of the neighborhood. Another thing, guests calling on residents of the neighborhood are compelled to park elsewhere because of the space monopolized by these cars. Isn't there a city ordinance prohibiting private cars remaining on the street all night? C. L.

The captain commanding the fourteenth district reports that this complaint was investigated and the officer found about seven machines parked as stated. These were checked with the vehicle bureau to obtain the names of the owners. The owners were notified to discontinue parking all night. Instructions have been issued to follow up this complaint and proper action will be taken against any car owners who make it a practice to park their machines there all night. JOHN H. ALCOCK,
Acting Commissioner of Police.

THE TRAGEDY OF HAMLET.

(Slightly Revised and Brought Strictly Up to Date.)

THE KING.....The G. O. P.
HAMLET.....The Democrats
THE GHOST.....The Moratorium Deficit

Scene in the Palace.

The King. 'Tis sweet and commendable in your nature, Hamlet,
To be so sore because the thing's put o'er.
But to persevere in obstinate condolement is a course
That giveth us a pain within the neck.
The moratorium, Hamlet, will bring peace and plenty
To all the world. 'Twill bring prosperity
From where it hath long been hiding
Around that corner. 'Twill cause all nations
In the world to lay aside their differences and hates,
To sink their navies and send their armies home
To practice there the glorious arts of peace.
All this will the great moratorium do, Hamlet,
All this and more, in time 'twill be be so much extended
As to control the seasons, the tides, and the Blistering rays of the sun upon a July day.
This good will fall upon thee, Hamlet,
As well as on all other members of the human race,
So I beseech thee throw off thy deep prevailing woe
And join in the general chorus that springs

[Flourish of trumpets. Exit King.

Hamlet. Oh, that this too too solid
G. O. P. would melt and give me
Just a look-in in 1932. Once I thought
I had 'em on the hip, but now with this moratorium
They have caught the fancy of the crowd,
And I who thought but a short while ago
To march to a great and glorious victory am cast back
Into that deep, dark slough wherein we Democrats
Usually wallow. The great depression, the Grundy
Tariff, the revolt against the iron laws of Prohibition, the low price of wheat and the Rising wrath of the farmers and the unemployed,
All were with me. But now they have launched
The moratorium, and I am undone. Break, break, my heart,
For I must hold my tongue.

Enter Ghost.

Hamlet. Angels and Thomas Jefferson defend us!
Be thou the spirit of victory in 1932 or the shade
Of Tammany Hall come back once more to drag me to disaster?

Ghost. Question me not, but lend thy serious hearing
To what I shall unfold.
I am the two hundred and sixty-two Million dollar loss of revenue that the government
Of these United States will sustain this coming year
Because of the nonpayments of war debts by other nations.

Hamlet. Oh, my prophetic soul! The moratorium!

Ghost. You've said it, boy. That much vaunted
And most accursed thing will set this country back
Just two hundred and sixty-two million bucks.
And now you know. Adieu, adieu, adieu! Remember me.

Hamlet. Remember thee! Aye, thou poor ghost,
Thou two hundred and sixty-two million berries!
Remember thee! While memory holds a seat
In this distracted globe. Remember thee!
Yea, from the table of my memory
I'll wipe away all trivial fond records,
Of tariffs, prohibition, farm boards, and
Other lesser things, and scream aloud so that My voice will echo from sea to sea, "Two hundred and Sixty-two million dollars deficit! What ho! What ho!"
The great moratorium gives us a deficit of two hundred and Sixty-two million bucks. What ho! What ho! Hear me,
All ye people! Hear me! The moratorium gives ye
A deficit of two hundred and sixty-two million bucks which
You will have to pay. Two hundred and sixty-two million Dollars deficit! Two hundred and sixty-two million dollars deficit!
Thus bad begins and worse remains behind—
I'll warn thee well!
Oh, most pernicious G. O. P.
To vaunt and praise a "moratorium!"
That sets us back just two Hundred and sixty-two million bucks!
Oh villain, villain, damned villain!
Oh, this thing will sweep us on to victory
In 1932! An issue! An issue that will save Democracy.
At last an issue that means victory.
Ha, hear me, all ye people. Two hundred and sixty-two Million dollars deficit which ye must Pay. Two hundred and sixty-two million dollars in the red!

[Exit Hamlet shouting. Enter King.

King. Ha ha! he thinks he hath me on the hip and fain wouldst do me mischief!
But he hath been like that full many a time,
And never did it get him anywhere.
I'll tell the voters I call money from the air
And they'll believe me!
Ha! Twenty million people can't be wrong.

BETTER WORK FAST

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 13, 1915.

WEST ORANGE, N. J.—Thomas A. Edison has accepted an offer of Secretary of the Navy Daniels to head a board of civilian inventors to advise a new branch of the service—the bureau of inventions and development. Honor will be his only pay; patriotism is his only motive.

MINEOLA, L. I.—William Patterson, chief chauffeur for J. P. Morgan, told an astonishing story of an attempt of six men in a black limousine to stop Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, while Patterson was driving him in one of Mr. Morgan's cars on the Westbury road, near Greenvale, on July 5, two days after Frank Holt shot Mr. Morgan. According to Patterson, the incident occurred while Sir Cecil was on his way from the Morgan home on East Island to Willard M. Straight's house at Greenvale. The ambassador was a guest of Mr. Morgan when Holt made his attack on the financier. The six men had blockaded the road by backing their machine diagonally across the road and strung themselves in a line across the road, waving and shouting in a foreign tongue. Patterson outwitted them by skirting the car at full speed.

LONDON.—From what appeared to be a lull on the western front has sprung suddenly some of the most severe fighting in months, with the Germans the aggressors. The kaiser's forces have bombarded the allies' positions in front of Nieuport and Lombaertzyde; have attacked the British at Ypres, and have delivered a heavy stroke against the French at Souchez.

39 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 13, 1901.

CHICAGO.—Mayor Harrison declared it is an empty honor to be mayor of a city which has insufficient revenues. He admits he is "tired of his job"—tired of trying to make ends meet—and is thinking of quitting. "Not seriously thinking, but just thinking," he said.

CHICAGO.—The Rev. Father P. J. Muldoon of St. Charles Borromeo's church was appointed auxiliary bishop of the diocese of Chicago. The appointment was made in Rome on June 11, and Father Muldoon probably will be consecrated on August 24 in Holy Name cathedral.

PARIS.—An official test will decide whether Santos-Dumont is winner of the prize of 100,000 francs offered by Henry Deutsch for the first manageable balloon. In its trip today the craft seemed under perfect control and was steered in any direction M. Dumont wished, returning to the starting point when the test was ended.

CHICAGO.—The 1901 city directory, which will be ready for distribution on July 20, will contain 606,700 names, an increase of 22,700 over last year.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 13, 1881.

WASHINGTON.—President Garfield is better tonight than he was last night, according to Dr. Boynton, one of the advising physicians. However, the doctor said the President is a very sick man and his case is a very critical one. It was not until today that the extremely critical condition of the President yesterday and last night was realized. During the afternoon his temperature rose to the highest point it had attained, but it began to fall when he received his evening morphine and today it has corresponded with previous days. The surgeons have inserted a drainage pipe two inches into the President's wound for the purpose of keeping it open and to carry away the pus. At 2 p. m. the President was resting quietly with two attending physicians, Drs. Bliss and Rayburn, sleeping in an adjoining room.

CHICAGO.—The genial "Dave" Thornton, known to nearly all Chicagoans as he of "The House of David," is no more. He died at Manitou Springs, Colo., before his wife, who was on her way to his bedside, could reach him. He was 34 years old and came to Chicago in 1866, shortly afterward opening a saloon at Madison and Dearborn streets. In 1874 he opened "The House of David" at 162-164 Clark street. In many respects he was one of the most popular restaurant men in Chicago.

BANK RECEIVERS.

Chicago, July 8.—I am at a loss to understand the reasoning in the statement of Oscar Nelson, state auditor of public accounts, in regard to the centralization of receiverships of closed banks, as it appears in today's TRIBUNE.

"There are thirty-nine closed banks in Greater Chicago, with a receiver appointed for each at an annual salary of from $5,000 upwards. Allowing a minimum of three other employes to each bank, 117 clerical help are being employed. Also, and Mr. Nelson fails to enumerate this item, there is stationed in some of the banks, at least, a notary public, paid out of the bank's assets, whose only duty it appears is to sit in the lobby, gossip with visitors, and occasionally place his notarial seal upon the claim of some depositor.

Then there is the item of attorneys. Probably 50 per cent of the closed banks were in the million dollar class, which means that twenty attorneys, if not more, are receiving a "per diem" out of the assets. What this "per diem" is, deponent sayeth not, but after reading of the $50 to $150 "per diems" paid by the school board, the city, the sanitary district and other tax eating bodies, we depositors in these closed banks have every reason to fear the worst.

Why should it cost $70,000 to $100,000 to wind up the affairs of a $1,000,000 closed bank? And why should it cost $350,000 to $500,000 to close the receivership of a bank with assets of $5,000,000? That's exactly what Mr. Nelson's "seven to 10 per cent" amounts to. Wouldn't a centralized receivership materially reduce this cost to the depositors, many of whom have their lifetime savings tied up in these closed banks?

Mr. Nelson's enormous respect for the law reminds me of that of a former United States senator from New York. It was said of him that he employed a man to keep him informed of the new laws passed by the state legislature, so that he would by no chance inadvertently violate the statute.

Of course, Mr. Nelson's privilege of appointing thirty-nine receivers, with their subsidiary patronage, has nothing to do with his attitude. But I cannot help but feel that if we had a man in the office of state auditor of public accounts, of, say, the character of Joe Grein, there would be less leaning backwards in respect to the law, and it wouldn't cost depositors and stockholders $70,000 to $100,000 to administer the receivership of a million dollar bank.

REQUEST FOR BUSES.

Chicago, July 6.—Although Ashland avenue has been widened into a large, beautiful boulevard at a great expense to the taxpayers, there is as yet no bus route along that thoroughfare. I am sure that a regular route along that boulevard from Devon avenue south would be well patronized. There is a regular network of bus lines on the south side, but only one on the north side—Sheridan road, too far east to be of service to the inhabitants along Clark street and Ashland avenue.

LIONEL EDENSON.

MR. WASHBURNE'S LOIN CLOTH.

Winnetka, Ill., July 8.—The Tribune, I believe, was one of the newspapers which some weeks ago printed a cable story from India to the effect that Carleton Washburne, superintendent of Winnetka schools, were nothing but a loin cloth when he was accorded an interview with Gandhi.

Mr. Washburne did not dispose himself about India or call upon Mr. Gandhi clad only in a loin cloth, and I think his many friends would appreciate it if you would publish the following statement contained in a letter written by Mrs. Heluiz Washburne, his wife, who has just been received by friends in this country:

"We've heard rumors that some of you folks have actually believed the story about Carleton running around India in a loin cloth. Did you imagine me to be running about the Hawaiian Islands in nothing but a grass skirt? In case you need documentary evidence to convince friends who were so gullible or who knew us so little as to believe the story you may take this letter as absolute authority that, except for the occasional use of Gandhi caps, the entire party has worn nothing but American (or English) style of clothes throughout the whole trip."

CHAS. V. JULIAN.

THE LINCOLN TOMB.

Bloomington, Ill., July 7.—Since President Hoover rededicated Lincoln's tomb at Springfield I have been waiting for some abler pen than mine to voice a protest against the execrable taste displayed there in one particular. The tomb of our Lincoln lies practically between and under two public comfort stations, so indicated in letters large enough to be seen a block away.

With acres at their disposal or within their reach our representatives at Springfield allow this desecration—one might almost say this obscenity.

It is hard to believe that this can occur in Illinois; it is difficult to understand why a thousand haven't protested against this frightful lack of a sense of the fitness of things.

W. G. S.

UNCLE SHYLOCK.

Winnetka, Ill., July 6.—"Mr. Snowden's Further Sacrifices" caps the climax in the series of anti-British and pro-French editorials that you have put out lately. Your attempts to place the almighty dollar above the value of human life and common decency and even friendship are disgusting.

Consider that France had casualties of 6,160,800, or 73 per cent of her forces. British empire casualties of 3,190,235, or 25.8 per cent. But the United States, who won the war, the savior of Europe, etc., etc., had casualties of 320,000, or 8.0 per cent of her forces. (Figures compiled by United States war department.)

STRANGE MALADY AT COUNTY NURSE SCHOOL PROBED

Whealan Orders Inquiry Board to Act.

An investigation was begun yesterday at the instigation of the county board of a perplexing malady resembling ptomaine poisoning, with which several nurses were stricken Saturday in the Cook County School for Nurses. President Emmett Whealan of the county board ordered the investigation and there were intimations last night that reports of illness and dissatisfaction among the nurses would have a political repercussion.

MICHAEL ZIMMER.

The county commissioners appropriate $1,325,000 annually for the county hospital, but members of the board said last night that the funds were spent largely at the discretion of the county hospital officials, who are responsible for the living conditions of the 800 nurses and student nurses of the institution.

Names Three For Inquiry.

Warden Michael Zimmer of the county hospital, Dr. Karl A. Meyer, chief of staff there, and Dr. Edward Corcoran, a prominent surgeon and member of the West Side hospital staff, were appointed by President Whealan to make the investigation. Dr. Meyer was out of town yesterday but Dr. Corcoran and Warden Zimmer visited the School for Nurses at 102 South Honore street, to begin their inquiry. It is expected to continue today.

Samples of food and water served at the nurses' tables were being subjected to chemical analyses. Special attention of the committee was focused in two articles of Friday's menu, baked fish served at the noon meal and baked beans and tomatoes served in the evening. Health officials hope to report on both these dishes this morning.

The more serious cases among the nurses were those of Margaret McLaughlin, Bertha Angriese, Josephine Brown, Eunice Rhode, Charlotte Kollmorgen, Viola Kudnert, Harriet Bunton, Marie Bublitz, Irene Hassinger, and Irene Dowell.

Dean Blames Water.

Miss Laura R. Logan, dean of nurses, expressed the belief that the trouble was due to contaminated water in that district.

For the last several months a dispute has been in progress between the Chicago Medical society and the staff of the county hospital, headed by Dr. Meyer, on plans for reorganization of the institution. A compromise committee named by President Whealan is attempting to work out a scheme that will meet the approval of both factions.

SEEKS JUDGMENTS TODAY UPON 450,000 REAL ESTATE PARCELS

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki will hear today a demand of County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough that judgments be entered against 450,000 parcels of Cook county real estate on which taxes are delinquent. The amount of 1929 taxes overdue on these properties is $34,000,000.

EDMUND K. JARECKI. [Moffett Photo.]

On Saturday 837 books containing the listing of the real estate parcels were taken to Judge Jarecki's court. They made a heap five feet high and ten feet long.

The delinquent 1929 taxes were advertised on June 27. Since then a number of property owners have sought injunctions to prevent the treasurer going ahead with the action in County court and 9,000 such injunctions have been granted. After the judgments are entered, it was said, Mr. McDonough will seek an order from Judge Jarecki, probably on July 27, for the sale of all the properties on which taxes are overdue.

Payment of all these delinquent taxes would enable the city and county to meet their pay rolls. Mr. McDonough plans to push the sales of the real estate that is delinquent in order to supply the funds.

SEARCH FOR MISSING WOMAN.

The police were asked yesterday to search for Mrs. Mildred Kolbe, 28 years old, who has been missing from her home at 1457 Cornelia avenue since midnight, Saturday.

VOTE ON PHONE FRANCHISE SET FOR TOMORROW

Although action on the proposed franchise grant to the Illinois Bell Telephone company has been postponed twice, a final vote on it has been scheduled for tomorrow by the aldermen.

JACOB M. ARVEY. [De Harvey Photo.]

Opponents of the ordinance declare that the repeated postponements are evidence that the sponsors of the ordinance are having difficulty in lining up sufficient votes to obtain its passage. They contend that the delays add to the strength of the opposition, and that if the ordinance is passed it will be only after a stormy session of the council.

Changes Delay Action.

Last minute changes, according to Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the committee that drafted the ordinance, prevented him from calling it up at the July 8 council session. At that time he said he would ask for a vote at the recessed session of July 10.

Two other important ordinances were taken up on the 10th, and the council recessed again without any action on the phone ordinance. Before recessing, however, the council convened itself as a committee of the whole to consider the ordinance and then recessed.

This move by sponsors of the ordinance was fought bitterly by Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th] and Oscar Nelson [46th]. They claimed that in the committee of the whole they would be unable, under the council's rules, to get a roll call vote on the amendments that they intend to submit.

Safeguards in Amendments.

The amendments to be submitted provide additional safeguards for the city. One would definitely fasten upon the phone company the cost of relocating its equipment out of the way of subway construction. Under the new ordinance the company is required to pay only the same proportionate part of the cost as other public utilities.

The proposed franchise also has been characterized as practically an indeterminate grant because of the provision that it shall operate for a period of 23 years from the date of the expiration of the old ordinance, January, 1929, and thereafter until terminated by a six months' written notice either by the city or by the company.

WOMAN DIES OF GAS.

Mrs. Grace Franklin, 34 years old, who was found unconscious in a gas filled room at her home, 1411 West Washington boulevard, on Thursday, died yesterday at the county hospital.

DRY PADLOCKINGS SHOW DECREASE OF 27 PER CENT

Fewer permanent injunction padlocking places of business and miscellaneous spots in the Chicago area for violation of the prohibition laws were issued in the fiscal year ending last June 30, than in the previous fiscal year, a report compiled by Assistant District Attorney William Parrillo revealed yesterday.

WILLIAM PARRILLO.

A total of 334 permanent injunctions were granted in the fiscal year just ended as against 461 for the previous year, making a decrease of 27 per cent. Not a single cabaret was padlocked during the last year, indicating a letup in the once popular use of the so called "observation evidence."

By allotting $5,000 as the estimated average for each place enjoined, the dry law injunctions tied up a real estate investment of approximately $1,670,000. The real estate tied up in the previous year was estimated at $10,000,000, but this was due partly to the fact several cabarets, each valued at $50,000 or more, and 75 pharmacies, were closed.

REJECTED SUITOR KILLS MOTHER OF SIX AND SELF

Omaha, Neb., July 13.—(AP)—While two of her six children played in the yard outside her home, Mrs. Alice White, 47, today was slain by James O'Connell, 50, described by members of her family as a rejected suitor, who then killed himself.

Mrs. White, a widow, was shot through the head, police said. O'Connell, when found, was dead and was clutching a pistol in his hand. He also had been shot through the head.

Mrs. White's two younger children, Richard, 9, and Robert, 6, rushed into the house, found their mother's body on the kitchen floor and that of O'Connell in an adjoining room.

BANDIT ROBS 3 NO. SIDE HOTELS IN 23 MINUTES

A bandit robbed three hotels on the north side in a space of twenty-three minutes early yesterday.

He took $10 from Karl Unger, clerk at the Berwyn Beach hotel, 1049 Berwyn avenue, at 3 o'clock. Ten minutes later he stepped into the Regent hotel, 5042 Winthrop avenue, and took $50 from Theodore Prentiss, the clerk on duty there.

Pausing in the lobby for a drink of water, he went to the Glenn hotel, 4940 Winthrop avenue. He arrived there at 3:23 o'clock, took $65 from the clerk, John Kennedy, bade him a cheerful "good night," and sped out the door.

CATALONIA GETS FEDERAL STATUS; AGREEMENT SEEN

Spanish Deputies Gather to Choose Rule.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, July 12.—The deputies of the Spanish people, who convene Tuesday in constituent assembly to determine what kind of a republic there is to be and how deep this revolution is to go, are making at least one pleasant discovery as they trek into this torrid capital. What has been all along considered the chief menace to the life of the republic, they find practically eliminated.

Catalonia is no longer asking for the moon, and what she is asking for, the provisional government has at last agreed to demand for her in the cortes.

Envoys Are Satisfied.

Col. Francisco Macia's three envoys to Madrid have gone back home with their constitution, which they will submit to the provincial parliament tomorrow and the people of Catalonia later in the month, considerably softened, but with practical assurance that the cortes will give them a clear cut federal status, no matter whether the rest of Spain is federal or unitarian.

A copy of the revised constitution revealed that the old Catalan Quixote has backed down on his refusal to permit his flock to carry arms for Spain. His envoys agreed to abandon a formal provision in this respect, and hope is expressed in the preamble, which reads as follows:

"This statute confirms resteration of the unity of Catalonia, in answer to the fervent wishes of the people. It determines the faculties reserved to the central government and those inalienable to the generalitat in a strongly democratic regime, which is the inspiration of Catalonia's love of the republic. Catalonia, however, hopes to obtain radical transformation of the school system, the army and the whole matter of national defense and armaments. All offensive war is outlawed by the generalitat."

May Not Please Catalans.

Surely this is nothing to make the Catalonians wroth. But whether it will please the mass of Catalans is another matter. It is believed that Col. Macia's machine will get it through, although he has given Catalonia less than he promised. Señor Abadal, successor to Francisco Cambo as head of the regionalist league, which Col. Macia has shoved into the background, sniffed tonight in an interview.

"I don't see that this constitution, aside from giving us a lot of decorative jobs, grants us as much as the league's almost successful program of 1919," he said.

The ten chapters and 59 articles of the constitution show clearly that while Catalonia gets statehood she remains more an integral part of Spain than her dreamers want. Her deputies still sit in parliament at Madrid, and various prerogatives of the central government which Catalonia hopes to annex will be delegated to the generalitat merely for enforcement.

FEDERAL TRADE BOARD REPORTS ON CO-OP CHAINS

Centrally Owned Stores to Be Studied Next.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—In its first report to the senate, in reply to the senate's demand for an investigation into chain store methods, the federal trade commission today revealed that 295 coöperative chains in the United States, in 1929 had a membership of 53,400 retail stores and transacted a volume of business estimated at between 600 million dollars and 700 million dollars.

The report of the commission dealt with coöperative chains only. It was explained that reports on centrally owned chains would follow later.

Importance of Study.

Transmittal of the report on coöperatives prior to that on centrally owned chains, said the commission, was prompted primarily by "the emphasis which has frequently been placed on the idea that the coöperative chain may be the salvation of the independent retailer."

Study was made of 319 chains with a total of 43,141 member stores.

"The results shown by this report lead to certain definite conclusions," the commission states. "The first of these is that the retailer coöperatives have concentrated their activities primarily on the distribution of goods to members at a low cost. As compared with the wholesaler-retailer coöperatives, much less has been given in the way of service and less attention has been devoted to advertising.

Methods, Not Cost, Emphasized.

"In contrast, the average wholesaler-retailer coöperative, in attempting to meet chain store competition, has placed the chief emphasis on the regular use of retail members of a number of low priced leaders, backed by extensive newspaper and miscellaneous advertising, on store appearance, arrangement, display, and on store management and supervision."

HUSBAND DIES IN WATER; WIFE FAINTS, RESCUED

Edwin Johnson, 45 years old, 1246 Washburn avenue, was drowned yesterday in Silver lake, near Kenosha, Wis. His wife, Mrs. Mary Johnson, and Miss Catherine Kneits, 5651 North Oakley avenue, were rescued after both, unable to save him, had fainted in the water.

Johnson was teaching his wife to swim when he was seized with cramps in water only four feet deep. Mrs. Johnson attempted to hold him up but fainted just as a boat with a rescuer arrived. Miss Kneits also became unconscious from fear. While the rescuer, John Vondrasek, 3510 North McVicker avenue, was pulling the women into the boat Johnson is believed to have slipped from a sand bar into deep water.

Thomas Muncy, 21, of Ada, W. Va., a student at the Coyne Electric school in Chicago, was drowned while swimming in Honey lake, west of Racine, yesterday.

SWARM TO TINY BLAZE.

Seven fire engine companies and hook and ladder trucks dashed to Van Buren and Market streets yesterday to extinguish a fire on a street car caused by a defective motor brush. The damage was negligible.

The bride's first husband was a British army officer, Capt. Barnard. Her second was a British aristocrat, Lord Sholto Douglas. The investigation into the régime of Timothy J. Crowe as president of the district was started more than 30 months ago and as yet no criminal trials have resulted.

T. J. CROWE. [Walinger Photo.]

Judge David has ordered the cases on his call for this morning and will outline procedure which, it is said, will result in forcing the case to trial within the next six weeks. The attorneys for the defense and prosecution are to make known today what motions if any are to be argued and when they will be ready to go before a jury.

On List of Defendants.

The defendants, besides Crowe, are all former trustees and officials of the district. They are James M. Whalen, John J. Touhy, Frank J. Link, John K. Lawler, and August W. Miller, trustees; Timothy L. Connolly, former purchasing agent, and Martin Edelstein, former real estate agent of the district.

The Sanitary district investigation was started by Attorney Frank J. Loesch, acting as a special state's attorney at the request of the Chicago Bar association. This was under the régime of Robert E. Crowe as state's attorney.

When State's Attorney Swanson was elected he took over the Sanitary district graft cases so that Mr. Loesch and his assistants could investigate charges of vote frauds and police corruption. Indictments had been obtained by that time by Loesch's assistants, based on whoopee parties staged by the board members with taxpayers' money.

Takes Over Prosecution.

Attorney John E. Northup, then a government prosecutor, went to the state's attorney's office as Mr. Swanson's first assistant to take over the sanitary cases. He has had charge of them since that time. Prosecutor Northup obtained new indictments after he took charge of the case, basing his action on alleged contract grafts and misappropriations of funds. The cases were allowed to rest in the Criminal court clerk's office without assignment for many months. Finally they were put on the call of Judge David.

Judge David after several months of hearing arguments quashed three counts of Northup's indictment. The prosecutor then obtained a new indictment from the June grand jury.

SHOW WARD LOST TO SOUTH SIDE IN REMAP SHUFFLE

Figures Indicate West Side Is Gainer.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

On the basis of population, it appears that the city council in adopting the remapping ordinance last week gave the west side a ward which should have been given to the south side.

It was announced that the redistricting was done "on the basis of the 1930 federal census." That showed a population of 3,376,438 in Chicago, while by the council's estimate the population of the new wards totals 3,443,200. Therefore the council assumed that there had been an increase of 66,762 in Chicago's population since the federal census count of a year ago.

A Difference in Estimates.

The census showed 604,859 residents on the north side a year ago, which was a growth of 133,939 since 1920. Accordingly the federal government in estimating the north side population this year would add one-tenth of the previous decade's growth, or 13,393, to the 1930 figures. Its estimate would show the north side with 618,252, but under the city council's estimate used in the new ward map, the population decreased from 604,859 to 601,043.

In framing the new wards the aldermen estimated that the population of the west side is now 1,488,811, as compared with the 1,436,768 found in the census a year ago. In the opinion of the council the west side has grown 32,043 in the last year, while the south side has grown only 24,530, although the south side's growth between 1920 and 1930 was two and a third times as fast as that of the west side.

Dividing the Aldermen.

Applying the federal census system of estimating population, the south side at present has 1,365,027 population, the west side 1,449,161, and the north side 618,252.

On that basis of reckoning the south side would be entitled to 19.7 aldermen, the west side 21.3, and the north side 8.99 aldermen.

In the redistricting the north side was given 9 aldermen, the south side 19, and the west side 22. The result is that each south side alderman has an average of 71,843 constituents, while the average west side alderman has 65,871, and the average north side alderman 66,694.

Another Way of Doing It.

If the south side had been given 20 aldermen and the west side 21 then the south side wards would average 68,251, the west side 69,002, and the north side 66,694.

If the average of 65,871 persons allotted in the redistricting to each west side ward was applied as the right number of constituents for a south side alderman, there would be a surplus of 113,478 persons on the south side without aldermanic representation.

PHILADELPHIA— A Liveable City

The great Benjamin Franklin Memorial, costing seven and one half millions of dollars, for which ground already has been broken, will soon be erected on Philadelphia's Parkway. It is the city's tribute to the greatest American and to science.

In Philadelphia and its environs are to be found many of America's leading educational institutions; the University of Pennsylvania, Temple University, famous schools of medicine, of dentistry, of business, of law: Philadelphia's public school system is admittedly second to none:

Philadelphia's cultural advantages in art, music, sculpture, literature and in science make her one of the most desirable cities in which to live.

Industrial leaders can come to Philadelphia with their particular enterprise in the certain knowledge that Philadelphia is a city in which they will enjoy living, in which they can rear their children among cultural advantages that are as nearly ideal as can be found in any city of the world.

PROTESTS OVER RAIL RATE RAISE FLOODING BOARD

Hearings on Petition to Start This Week.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Light on one of the toughest problems with which it has had to deal will be sought by the interstate commerce commission when hearings begin Wednesday on the application of the railroads for a 15 per cent increase in rates on all freight traffic.

SECRETARY HYDE. (H. & E. Photo.)

The financial plight of the railroads is generally admitted in and out of the commission by proponents and opponents of the proposed increase. In the first five months of this year the class one railroads had a net railway operating income of $188,387,587, or 2.10 per cent on their property investment, and forty-four of the 171 roads operated at a loss, of which fourteen were in the eastern, six in the southern, and twenty-four in the western district.

Argue Wage Reduction Threat.

In the background of the railroad situation lies the unmistakable threat of a reduction in the wages of railroad employes. The railroads have chosen first to seek an increase in revenue by the route of increased rates rather than by wage cuts. In this they are conforming to the wish of President Hoover that existing wage scales be maintained.

Many shippers, however, in protesting to the commission against the proposal for higher rates, have urged that wages be reduced, contending that they cannot bear higher transportation charges.

One group of southeastern shippers, headed by the North Carolina Traffic league, in a protest submitted to the commission, referring to a statement in the railroads' petition as to the policy of the federal government to maintain existing wages, declared that the question was not to be decided by the White House or in line with what the present administration might or might not desire.

Object to Hoover's Influence.

"A question which involves the taking of millions of dollars away from the industries of this country under present circumstances must be judicially determined and without executive interference," said these southeastern shippers.

President Hoover has refrained from injecting himself into the rate controversy. Answering shippers who have protested to him directly against an increase in rates, he has stated that he has no authority or right to intervene or make suggestions to the interstate commerce commission in questions of rates; that the commission was expressly set up as an agency independent of administrative control, as are the courts, and that, therefore, shippers should deal with the commission and not with the White House.

Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, however, has publicly asked the commission to take into consideration the fact that while the revenue of the railroads dropped 16 per cent last year, the revenue of the farmers dropped 20 per cent; that farm prices are down to pre-war levels, while freight rates are relatively high; that with many products taxes, manufacturing costs, and railroad rates can be passed on to the consumer, but that the farmer cannot pass his costs on.

State Commissions Object.

Though a number of small manufacturing and business houses have urged the commission not to permit the railroads to increase rates, protests against increases on agricultural and forest products outnumber those relating to other specific commodities. Several objections to increases in the rates on coal have been made.

Railroad regulating commissions of the states, particularly those in the west, will oppose the granting of the railroad petition. Iowa, Florida, and North Dakota have voiced objection to the rail proposal in communications to the federal commission. At the same time, under a scheme of cooperative procedure established some time ago, seven state commissioners will sit with the federal commission in the hearings and participate in the consideration of the case, though they will have no votes.

Hunt Bandit Who Robbed Mrs. Kroch of $10,000 Gems

Police searched yesterday for the bareheaded bandit whom Adolph Kroch, Michigan avenue book dealer, found waiting in his apartment at 3345 Pine Grove avenue when he, his wife and their son, Carl, returned there late Saturday night. The bandit, who, Mr. Kroch said, showed considerable knowledge of the rare editions of books in the apartment, robbed Mrs. Kroch of jewelry valued at $10,000 and took $60 from the bookseller.

"SURE, I'M KEEPIN' KISSABLE WITH CLEAN, CELLOPHANE SEALED" OLD GOLDS

Maybe he says it with a twinkle in his eye. But he means it just the same! No self-respecting husband wants to salute the wife and kiddies . . . with a breath like an ash-tray . . . heavy with the reek of stale tobacco.

Two things about OLD GOLDS make them odor-clean and fragrant. FIRST, they are PURE-TOBACCO . . . free of greasy, breath-tainting, teeth-staining, artificial flavorings. SECOND, they are never stale or dry. For they come to you factory-fresh . . . sealed in Cellophane.

Whether you're a stalwart steel-worker . . . or a dainty debutante . . . you'll like PURE-TOBACCO OLD GOLDS! Their clean, sun-ripened, Nature-flavored tobacco will make "Keep Kissable" . . . a real and pleasant fact for you.

Further Gossip About Authors, Foods, Wines

Presenting Miss Delafield and M. Duhamel.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

THE HAGUE.—[Special Correspondence.]—Miss E. M. Delafield, who was among the celebrities at the P. E. N. congress here, is an extremely attractive person, tall, thin, with dark hair, dark eyes shaded by lids that droop halfway over them when she is in repose and that have a languid, luring light when she is talking. She has the charm of her French ancestors—her name really was De la Pasture, pronounced Delapasture. Her mother also was a famous novelist. Miss Delafield is married, has two sons, and lives in Devon.

Arthur Meeker Jr. of Chicago, who also was present at the congress, has cherished for many years the most profound admiration for the work of Miss Delafield. Of all the delegates to the congress she was the one to whom he most wanted to talk. One day we were all taken over to Rotterdam. We spent the afternon touring the harbor in a little boat and were transferred to a beautiful East India liner for dinner. The most enchanting Malays in turbans and white duck patrolled with bare feet around the decks and served us with sherry and port wines, and finally with the typical, enormous Dutch dinner. As we were seating ourselves at the tables the chair next to Mr. Meeker was vacant. It was nothing but the hand of fate that brought Miss Delafield to the vacant chair.

But there she found an admirer who knew her books almost by heart. It was a real delight to listen to them talk. She likes America so much that she is going to send her daughter to college there.

"In England girls learn only to be useless in their dress," she said, "but at Wellesley, where I intend to send her, she will learn to dress smartly as well as be educated."

Mrs. Alfred Dashiell, whose husband is editor of Scribners, had gone to Wellesley. She gave a snort of joy as she heard Miss Delafield say that. "That would give my classmates a good laugh," she remarked. "We never were more than decently clean, certainly never fixed up except for our rare trips to Boston." It all reminded me of an English woman whom I met on the boat who said that she was sending her daughter to America to school to learn American swearing because she thought it would take the girl farther in life than anything else.

The Hague is so cosmopolitan—American machines advertised everywhere, American motor cars hooting on the streets—except for the swarm of bicycles this city almost might be in our own country. Amsterdam, however, is thoroughly, enchantingly foreign. Canals take their semi-circular courses through the busiest part of the town and down them ply strange brightly colored barges, silently going to mysterious places and returning from there.

Of all the delights Holland offered the visiting writers of the P. E. N. the culmination was an evening in Amsterdam's Rijkymuseum. The room in which Rembrandt's famous "Night Watch" hangs was all in darkness except for a special illumination of that one vast masterpiece.

To receive the guests the members of the Dutch committee had, as a complete surprise, arrayed themselves in the most enchantingly beautiful costumes that the museum offered. There they stood, like pictures come alive in the frames of the museum.

It was there that I had a talk with Georges Duhamel, whose "America, the Menace" has caused such discussion in that country. He has the most venomous reviews, and articles have been written against him and against his book. He wrote an answer to them, published in the current issue of This Quarter. He said he thought the review which appeared in The Chicago Tribune was the fairest and the most understanding that America had offered.

Not America, he declared, was denounced by him, but a type of modern civilization now best exemplified in America, but which is permeating all of modern life.

M. Duhamel was violent about the title which the publishers chose for the American edition. He never called the book "America, the Menace," he insisted, and protested against the use of that title. When it was used against his wishes he was so angered he is starting a lawsuit against his publishers, he asserted.

[The last article, giving Miss Butcher's views and the gossip of the congress, will appear tomorrow.]

Good morning!

Right around the corner from the State-Lake, which has one war picture, the Oriental is screening another. Yo' pays yo' money and yo' takes yo' choice.

The Oriental's offering sings of the warring and loving of the two Ingleside brothers, whose fate it is to desire the same girl. They are English lads of wealth and gentle breeding, and inseparable both at home and abroad. Through a general all around misunderstanding, Molly Prescott becomes engaged to Tom, the brother she does NOT love. On the battle front, shortly before he goes west, he learns the truth—wrung reluctantly from Jack.

Though well enough acted "Chances" falls rather flat. It's not a poor picture, but it never rises above the "just another movie" level. The likable personalities of Rose Hobart, Douglas Fairbanks Jr. [He's had a hair cut! He's had a hair cut!] and Anthony Bushell may put it over.

See you tomorrow.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 12.—[Special.]—Rowland Brown, a newcomer among the "ace" directors here, but a picture maker with exceptionally bright prospects, has been subject of much conversation here since his recent quarrel with a Fox executive resulted in mutual cancellation of Brown's Fox contract.

Brown had gone to Fox's on the strength of "Doorway to Hell," a hit which he wrote for Warner's. At Fox's he directed "Quick Millions" and was programmed to do "The Sun Also Rises" and "The Yellow Ticket" for the same studio, but the tiff with the studio straw boss interfered. The day afterward Brown was returning to the Fox lot to finish some work not quite completed and was astonished to find the gateman had been given word not to let him on the lot at all any more. Brown is now signed to a contract to make films for Universal.

Warren Hymer, comedian, is another who recently got the pink slip at Fox's, although Hymer's case is unlike that of Director Brown in that Hymer, although a sure hit in his funny rôles, became too costly an adjunct in his pictures, because of his tendency to be late for work, and to report sometimes not much on his mettle when he did arrive.

Howard Hughes, the millionaire, who is making the dollars roll out [and roll right back again] with such pictures as "Hell's Angels" and "Front Page," is angling for Hymer.

United States District Judge George Cosgrave today had a decision on file denying Harold Lloyd and the Lloyd Film corporation a new trial in the plagarism suit which recently was decided in favor of Mrs. Sadie Witwer, widow of the late humorist, H. C. Witwer. At the same time the judge denied the Witwer plea to adjudge the widow should share in profits of Lloyd's film, "The Freshman," over the entire period of its exhibition. The earlier federal district court decision awarded Mrs. Witwer an accounting and share in proceeds from the film starting with a period eight months subsequent to its first release. This saved Lloyd more than $1,000,000 in the early profits from the film, at the time the income from its showing was largest.

Eddie Sutherland, now completing direction of "Palmy Days" for Sam Goldwyn, has been signed by Howard Hughes to do the "rescue" act for "Sky Devils," partly made Hughes film from which Director Edward Sedgwick recently was withdrawn. Hughes has bought another airplane story, "Cock of the Air," to be started Aug. 1. Five men are writing it, including Lewis Milestone and Tom Buckingham, directors; Robert E. Sherwood, author; Dashiell Hammett, film executive, and Charles Lederer, scenarist.

Coast Guards to Save Lives at Cherry Fete

Festival Opens Wednesday at Traverse City.

Traverse City, Mich., July 12.—[Special.]—Another division of Uncle Sam's uniformed forces has been announced as a participant in the national cherry festival program, opening here Wednesday, and continuing until Friday night.

The United States coast guard crews from Charlevoix, Manitou Islands and Sleeping Bear Point will be here Friday afternoon for a drill on Grand Traverse bay. They will demonstrate to thousands of inlanders what the life savers do when a ship is in distress. They will bring their beach apparatus and life boats.

The Michigan state patrol boat operated by the conservation department will serve the rôle of a sinking ship. To that boat the coast guardsmen will shoot out a line. Rope will be rigged up for a breeches buoy that will bring several persons ashore.

Exhibitions by United States army flyers from Selfridge field and the United States naval reserves already have been announced as attractions. Six members of the First Pursuit group will be here Friday.

The Great Lakes training squadron of the navy, consisting of seven ships, will cast anchor off Travers City at 8 a. m. Wednesday. The sailors will parade and will have shore leave from 4 p. m. until midnight.

The opening spectacle of the festival, the cherryland jubilee at the Northwestern Michigan fairgrounds Wednesday night, will have a religious element. There will be a prayer of thanksgiving by the Rev. C. E. Woodcock, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Keptucky, who is a summer visitor near Traverse City. The speaker of that evening will be Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit.

Concerts at Loyola Stadium Are Started with Orchestra of 80

BY EDWARD MOORE.

A new musical organization, the Chicago Philharmonic orchestra, began a new series of concerts in the stadium of Loyola university last Sunday under circumstances indicating much extremely pleasant music to be heard under extremely pleasant conditions.

The orchestra numbers about eighty players and operates under the gifted baton of Adolph Dumont. It is a fairly well trained body, probably destined to be better trained before the end of the series, which will take place on successive Sunday nights until eight concerts have been played. Admission charge, 50 cents, is justly characterized as popular, and hearing good music in the open air should become a popular practice.

Last night's program contained the preluds to "Die Meistersinger" and the finale of "Das Rheingold," as Wagnerian excerpts, Casella's "Italia," Strauss' "Blue Danube" waltz, Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody, and other works of the same character, excellent hot weather music. Alice Mock, soprano of the Civic Opera company and the first soloist of the series, sang "Ah, fors' e lui" from "La Traviata" and the Jewel Song from "Faust," in a slender but flexible and attractive voice, and was well applauded.

Week end music at Ravinia was more than commonly delightful because the Saturday night offering was "The Bartered Bride." This is a work that after many years of undeserved silence suddenly stepped last season into the position of an operatic best seller and would seem to be holding the place. It is a jewel of a piece, packed full of charming tunes and with such cheery comedy that at least one of the Ravinia pay customers audibly wished that it were in English so that he might understand what was going on.

Naming the high lights among the participants becomes almost a process of naming the cast. Elisabeth Rethberg is the most delightful singer of the rôle of Marie that the generation has known. Mario Chamlee, the Hans, sang his German with a Czech accent, which after all is a good deal to the purpose in a Czech opera. He also sang his music and impersonated his character in a way to indicate that he is one of the most prominent American artists on the operatic stage today.

There was some great comedy by Louis D'Angelo in the part of the marriage broker, though unfortunately not in his accustomed fullness of voice; there was a marvel of inspired goofiness by Marek Windheim as the stuttering lover, there was a minor but perfect characterization by Ina Bourskaya, there was a pair of dances by Ruth Page and Blake Scott that put the final touch of cheer upon the occasion. Louis Hasselmans conducted with evident delight.

The Sunday afternoon concert was a French program by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, followed by a song program by La Chorale Francaise. In the evening there was a repetition of "La Boheme," with Edward Johnson and Alfredo Gandolfi entering the cast for the first time this summer.

Rudy Vallee Explains Bride Will Spend the Winter in California

Atlantic City, July 12.—[Special.]—Rudy Vallee, here today with his wife, the former Miss Fay Webb, whom he married last week, announced that they would pass next winter apart, as physicians who had attended Mrs. Vallee during a case of pneumonia last winter ordered her for the next few winters to a mild, sunny climate. Mrs. Vallee will return to California, while the crooner's engagements will keep him in New York.

"I am telling you this now," said Mr. Vallee in a brief interview at the Ritz-Carlton, "so that next fall, when Mrs. Vallee boards a train for the coast no one will think our romance is over. That romance is going to last forever and ever, and even longer than that, isn't it?" he said, turning to Mrs. Vallee.

"It sure is," she said.

Mrs. Vallee insisted she would not return to motion pictures.

"My place now," she said, "is with Rudy. All either of us wants is happiness."

Visitors to Finland More Numerous Than in 1930

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, July 12.—Figures published by the Finnish Tourists union show that the number of visitors to Finland this year is more than double that of last year. In May this year 3,455 persons visited Finland. Of that total 1,751 were tourists. The corresponding figures for May, 1930, were 2,336 and 703. Esthonia and Sweden, Finland's two closest neighbors furnished the largest numbers of tourists, but the United States was third.

SALLY'S NEXT PARTY WILL BRING LAUGHS FOR ALL HER GUESTS

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Our next party of the summer season, girls and boys, will be at the Balaban and Katz Chicago theater on Thursday, July 23, as you probably read in yesterday's paper, and the picture will not be "A Son of India," as you also read, but a grand and screamingly funny comedy called "Politics." I haven't seen this talkie myself, but because the leading rôles are played by that inimitable pair, Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, I know that we'll be hysterical with laughter during the greater part of its many reels.

If you saw some of their earlier pictures, and almost every movie fan has, you can appreciate the kind of fun one has at a Dressler-Moran show, and if you haven't, then you've something in store for you that's difficult to equal.

In "Politics" we find this delightful pair running for office. Can you imagine the way either of these women would grace the city hall? They go through the gathering of votes and making campaign speeches, all of which they intersperse with a few lively battles that threaten the dignity of our lady politicians. Whether they win or not remains to be seen—I wouldn't give the secret away—it's much too funny!

I know that every young movie fan and every boy and girl who likes a rollicking good comedy will want to attend this party at the Chicago. As usual, I may take only one hundred of you and I should like to invite those of you who will enjoy the show the most. Write me a letter telling me why you think you belong in this group. If you are an admirer of either of these actresses that shouldn't be a difficult thing to do, because just thinking of the pictures you've already seen them in will inspire you to write an enthusiastic, convincing letter.

In order to win an invitation it is necessary that you adhere strictly to the rules, which are quite simple. To begin with, your letter must show that you are anxious to join the party. Then it should include your name, address and age, and should be sent to Sally Joy Brown, Chicago Tribune, Chicago. And last, it should be mailed in time to reach me not later than next Thursday morning, a week before the late of the party.

Zion Session Divides Over Palestine Rule

One Group Wants Jewish Majority There.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

BASEL, July 12.—The general session of the world Zionist organization congress opened late tonight to consider the report of the political committee on the outcome of which depends the fate of Dr. Chaim Weizmann as president.

The political committee decided to attempt to put through a vote censuring Dr. Weizmann for his views against a Jewish majority on both sides of the River Jordan, but the second part of the resolution omits mention of the word "majority" in describing the ultimate aims of Zionism in Palestine. This is regarded as a slap at Dr. Weizmann, whose explanation the committee regards as inadequate, and is designed to eliminate him as a candidate.

The wording of the political committee's resolution has been changed a dozen times, the last one this evening. Anti-Weizmannites plan to obtain precedence for the resolution censuring Dr. Weizmann, and the first test of his strength will come on this vote. If it is adopted he will likely be eliminated for reelection. The second test will be on the censuring resolution itself.

Revisionists plan to offer a militant resolution declaring for interpretation of the Basel program as "transformation of the entire mandated territory of Palestine on both sides of the Jordan, into a Jewish state or commonwealth, with a population having a Jewish majority."

The administration committee of the Jewish Agency held its first meeting today, and Dr. Weizmann, as president, delivered a report on the political situation. A letter from Felix M. Warburg, chairman of the administrative committee, officially resigning because of ill health, was read.

The treasurer of the Palestine executive of the Jewish Agency reported the financial situation. Joseph C. Hyman told of the activities of a provisional committee of Americans, members of the administrative committee.

A world congress of Jewry to discuss the protection of Jewish rights in every nation will be held in two or three years, according to a decision made today at a meeting called by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York, honorary president of the American Jewish congress. This meeting of representative Jews from a dozen nations voted to make preliminary plans covering the scope of such a congress, following the adjournment of the present session.

The possibility of a world congress of Jewry has been discussed for some time, and the American Jewish congress sent Abraham Goldberg to Europe to study the situation.

In addition to the protection of Jewish rights, the world congress will discuss the building up of Palestine, also the formation of a permanent representative of world Jewry, clothed with power to intercede when Jews require spokesmen to interpret their aims.

RULER SIGNS DIVORCE LAW FOR BARODA; BREAKS HINDU CUSTOM

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.

BARODA, India, July 12. — The maharaja of Baroda has signed the Baroda Hindu divorce act, granting for the first time in history the right of Hindu spouses legally to separate.

The new divorce act provides the following:

"A married man or woman will be able to seek relief by the annulment of his or her marriage:

"If his or her partner is missing and not found for seven years; is converted to another faith; is initiated into asceticism; constantly for three years treats her or him with cruelty; deserts her or him; is constantly under the influence of drink or drugs, or other women."

That is not quite all.

"Marriage will also be annulled," says the act, "if one is able to prove that his or her partner was at the time of marriage suffering from disease or was deaf, mute, blind, mad or converted, or was under age or that he or she was tricked into marriage."

Any persons not coming under one of these categories will be not considered as having reason for divorce.

Contrary to Hindu law and custom since time immemorial, the new Baroda law permits women who have been married once to marry again.

U. of C. Acquires Many Letters of La Fayette

How Lawyers Groaned Over War Expenses.

An intimate portrayal of the private life of the Marquis de La Fayette, sketching hitherto unknown details of his financial troubles and affairs of the heart, was made available to the University of Chicago yesterday.

The portrayal is contained in a collection of 250 unpublished letters and documents written by Gen. La Fayette or about him, a collection purchased from a New York dealer, E. F. Bonaventure, by the university library. A cursory study of the collection by Prof. Louis Gottschalk of the university faculty led that authority to call it the most valuable source of new La Fayette materials in existence.

The marquis' name was Marie Joseph Paul Yves Roch Gilbert du Motier, marquis de La Fayette.

There are letters, for example, written by La Fayette's family attorneys, Gerard and Morizot, while the French general was serving under Washington's orders in the American revolution. The missives indicate that La Fayette's expenses in fitting out American troops exceeded the income from his estate, one letter asserting that "his fame is being purchased at the cost of his fortune." During a time of privation for the troops he clothed them out of his own funds.

At one time his creditors proposed serving him a writ to obtain payment of over due bills. Subsequent documents treat of land grants made to La Fayette by the United States congress and contain autographs of Presidents Madison and Monroe.

In one letter there is reference to the establishment of a trust fund for 150,000 francs, owed by La Fayette to one Alex Baring of London.

The collection includes fifteen letters exchanged between La Fayette and Fanny Ward, a distinguished English woman, who wrote "Views of Society and Manners in America." These letters indicate the existence of great devotion and affection between the couple, according to Prof. Gotschalk, and contain a wealth of comment on contemporary social and political issues.

Correspondence between La Fayette and Mme. Malibran, celebrated actress and singer of that era, illuminates another phase of the general's career.

The collection contains a manuscript copy of a letter from La Fayette to Napoleon in 1802. In it La Fayette compliments the Corsican on his accomplishments, but reserves political support until Napoleon firmly demonstrates liberal principles.

An important part of the material is the correspondence exchanged be La Fayette's daughters and his son, Georges Washington Motier de La Fayette. There also is a last testament written by his sister-in-law, Louise Noialles, ten days before she was beheaded by the French revolutionary tribunal.

Lawrence Lewis and Bushrod Washington, nephews of George Washington, are represented by letters. One of these accompanied a brace of pistols which Washington bequeath to La Fayette.

Other items are a business letter written to La Fayette by Pierre S. Dupont in 1805; a letter of Napoleon's eldest brother, Joseph Bonaparte; a letter of Louis Berthier, prince of Wagram, who was a captain under La Fayette in the American revolution and minister of war under Napoleon; and a letter of Charles Fox, the English statesman. The Du Ponts are credited with having made powder for the revolutionary troops.

Friends of Orphans Meeting Tomorrow to Plan for Outing

Committees handling the arrangements for the annual entertainment, on Aug. 19, of the Orphans Automobile Day association will meet tomorrow evening in the Café Brauer in Lincoln park to outline the program. More than 5,000 juveniles and aged dependents will be feted on that occasion, the prospects at present embracing a picnic with toys, refreshments, vaudeville stunts, music and an automobile ride to and from the scene of the outing.

Arthur Jones, president of the association, which includes the Chicago Automobile Trade association, the Autombile Club of Illinois, the Chicago Motor club, the Chicago Motor Liverymen's association, and the Woodlawn Business Men's association, estimates that more than 5,000 cars will be needed for transportation, and more than $5,000 in cash. Donations will be received by Treasurer Nate Jacobs of 175 West Jackson boulevard at the rate of $1 for each guest.

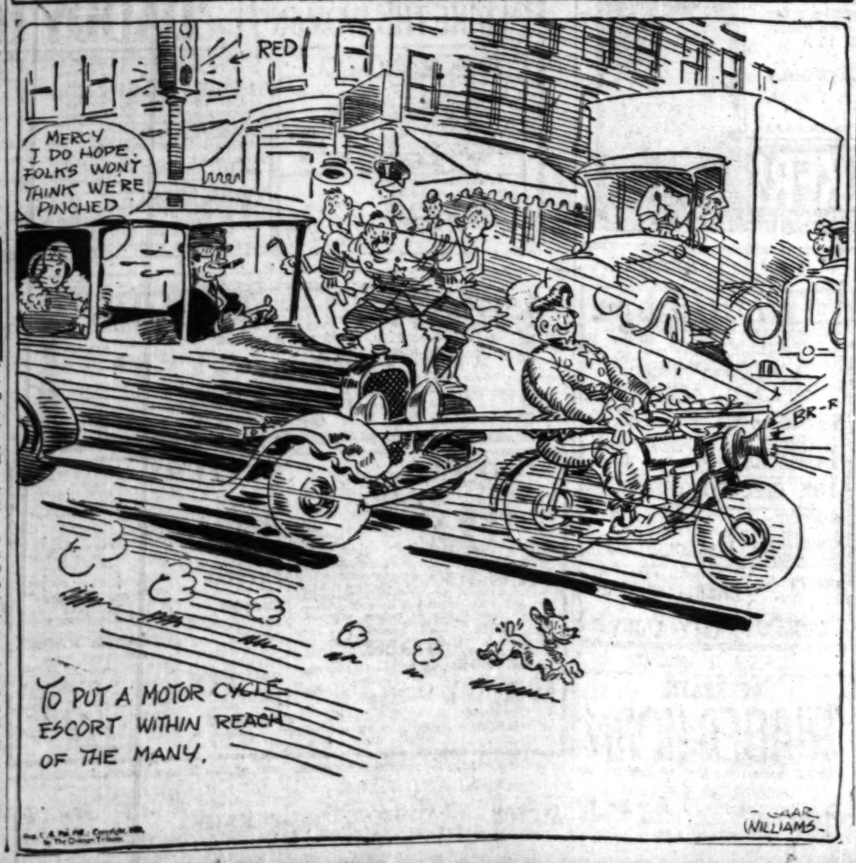
College Students, Faculty to Talk Peace for World

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 12.—[Special.]—President Alexander G. Ruthven of the University of Michigan greeted tonight 55 college students and 11 faculty advisers of representative schools in the United States, Canada and the British Isles. They are here to attend the second student conference called by the Carnegie Endowment for international peace. The first conference was held at Oxford in 1929.

Following the reception tonight at the Women's League building the conference is to organize tomorrow morning. It will continue its sessions throughout the week. It has been divided into three sections which during the early days of the week will discuss the results of the Paris pact, armaments and international peace. Later in the week plenary sessions are to be held.

Open session will be held Monday, Tuesday and Friday evenings, with faculty advisers, including Prof. Jesse S. Reeves of the University of Michigan political science department, as the speaker. International law is the chief question to be discussed at these sessions.

OUR SECRET AMBITION



'SALOONS OR SHOPS? TAKE YOUR CHOICE,' PASTOR TELLS YOUTHS

San Francisco, July 12.—(AP)—Addressing several thousand delegates to the International Society of Christian Endeavor convention here today the Rev. Mark A. Matthews, Seattle, Wash., said the United States could not have the "advanced, efficient mechanical and scientific age we now have and get along with breweries and distilleries."

He classified the foes of prohibition as "those who desire to re-establish alcoholic business and the old time alcoholic rule of America; those who desire to profit from re-establishing this business and those who are interested because of personal appetites."

"At least one of these reasons," he said, "and in many cases all three of them dominate the repeal movement. I challenge America or the world to find a spot where the brewery, distillery or saloon ever advocated temperance, obedience to law sobriety or Christian principles.

"You want the manufacturing plants of productive industry, churches, schools, or do you vote for the brewery, beer garden and saloon? You cannot have both."

Fragile Appearance Supplants Daytime Tan for Evenings

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

How to meet the evening requirements after a day in the water?

Apparently, it isn't the fashion to look too darned healthy when the chiffon frock is put on o' nights. You may feel it and be it, and you'd better be healthy, too, so that along about 12 on a dancing evening you won't look the wilted rose part.

But in order to contribute to the good feeling, meaning the protective, of the gentleman escort you'd better suggest under the moon a lady who needs a lot of looking after.

The chiffons help, as do hose and gown, and the spindly heeled crêpe de chine slippers, the vanity case, and the French doll powder puff all lend a bit of female glamor under the moon's rays, or under the artificial lights. But what the beauticians are telling us now is that the dress and accessory paraphernalia are not quite enough. The face must go ethereal to make the Big Boy feel the strong man he knows he is.

So what happens is that you cover up that daytime health-gathering insignia of tan or red. In fact, you begin the covering up work before you start out a. m.'s. You put on your sunproof foundation cream and your waterproof lipstick and rouge and you swim for all you are worth or send the ball flying all over the court, knowing that you will emerge in the later afternoon not of the broiled beauty variety but done to a nice smooth tan turn, if you tan.

If not, you have the benefit of the skin protection against a blistering red and for dinner or later you have a makeup particularly designed to restore you to the "need-a-big-strong-man-look." You may be forced to induce a wee dash of blue or mauve powder into the facial scheme or one of the pale green shades if there is a suspicion of red in the face.

Anyway, you work away with powders until you find the one that gives you a slightly fragile look. And you put very little blush on your cheek. On the lips you may go in for a bit more color than on the cheeks.

Pajamas for Evening Shore Festivities

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Life gets complicateder all the time, and fashions are not a half a leap behind. The quaint old lace and lavender simplicity of sports clothes for evening wear at beach shindigs and clam bakes around the coast of France is gone. Anything that happens after sundown calls for evening clothes, and the latest thing is the evening pajama exclusively for shore festivities.

Luxurious, silken women at Deauville, La Boule, and Dinard are wearing low cut, beach length pajamas as formal in appearance as anything seen in the Ritz ballroom when they go out after dark. The shining bronze of supple backs is revealed right down to the waistline, between the V décolleté of the bodice. The trouser legs of the pajamas thus worn are so wide as to look like skirts, after the cut of the fashionable urban divided skirt.

Chic of this sort avoids the ridiculous, because the evening beach pajama is made of cotton stuff. It is, however, patterned after the fashion of the most opulent brocade, with scattered flower motifs, as shown in the evening pajama frock shown in the sketch, which is made of white toile with royal blue nosegays spattered over its surface.

Four blue scalloped panels set on below the hipline of this model conceal the trousers completely. The fitted bodice is edged also with blue embroidered scallops. A tailored belt of braided royal blue silk braid marks the waistline and the shoulder straps are made of the same braid. The model is from Fauvety.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

MOLES DEFACE CITY LAWNS.

Farmers need not worry about the industrious mole which will kill many harmful insects in a season, but city dwellers with prized lawn areas will usually find the mole will deface a lawn during a season of burrowing.

Ridges of upheaved soil or mounds usually indicate where the mole hides and feeds underground. Mounds usually indicate deeper burrowing as these are formed of earth pushed up from lower working where the soil is too compact to be crowded aside. Investigations by the United States department of agriculture show that the mole is one of the busiest of animals, setting aside hours every day and evening for work and the gathering of food.

Trapping them is suggested, but poisoning is recommended as far easier for the amateur. Traps which work best are types called the trigger pin, choker loops, clipping or scissor jaws and impaling spikes. Poisoning devices have been found more successful when tried on lawns and golf courses. The following poisons and uses are suggested:

Calcium cyanide: Open the burrow every five feet and place in it a teaspoonful of this poison and close the opening without stamping it down.

Calcium bisulphide: Pour a teaspoonful into the bursow at points about five feet apart. Close the holes as recommended for calcium cyanide to retain the poisonous fumes.

Strychnine: Take raw peanuts, squeeze the end of each shell, insert a crystal of strychnine and then put a peanut in each runway.

Paradichlorbenzine: This is commercially obtainable in the form of a white powder which, when placed in the ground, gives off a heavy poisonous gas which penetrates the soil. It should be dropped in the runways about every six to 10 feet and the soil replaced. About a teaspoonful is sufficient for each application.

Food Talk.

In the winter we can eat large roasts and heavy chops with gusto. But in the summer we seem to lose our desire for these heavy foods. Nature takes a hand in adapting the mind and body to a better selection of seasonal foods.

After eating a heavy protein meal every one feels warmer. In the winter this is pleasant, but in the summer the sensation is not so nice. Continued experiments by scientists have proved that the eating of protein increases the cell activity and produces more heat. This stimulating effect of protein is called "specific dynamic action." The exact reason for this is not clear, but certain reactions indicate that it may be due to the work of digestion and assimilation.

Since it is not advisable to eliminate proteins entirely from the diet, both for dietetic and economic reasons, it is our duty to serve protein dishes as daintily and as attractively as possible. Thin slices of baked ham will be welcome instead of the hot baked hams of the winter. Thin slices of roast chicken, dried beef, and summer sausage are also excellent.

Or, if you don't object, a box of sardines, nicely arranged on the service plate and garnished with slices of lemon, or canned salmon or tuna fish, made into a cool salad, are refreshing. Fresh vegetables such as tomatoes, green onions, radishes, lettuce, and potato, creamed, mashed, or in a salad, will complete a meal appealing to the most jaded appetite.

It is not necessary to set a table loaded with soup, meats, puddings, and pies to feed a family well. Cold salads and meats, frozen desserts, iced beverages, and raw fruits are just as nourishing and so much more inviting during the warm summer months.

BANANA BAVARIAN.

3 tablespoons cold water.
1½ cups thick cream.
⅛ teaspoon salt.
1 1-3 cups banana pulp [3 large bananas].
2½ tablespoons lemon juice.
½ cup candied cherries or pineapple cut fine.
3 tablespoons rum flavoring.

Soften the gelatin in cold water. Chill the cream thoroughly, add the salt, and whip until stiff. Melt the gelatin over boiling water. Press the bananas through a ricer or a corse sieve, then measure. Add the gelatin, mixing thoroughly. Fold the banana pulp, lemon juice, cherries, and flavoring into the whipped cream. Turn into a mold and let stand in the refrigerator to stiffen.

Yield: Eight servings.

Ft. Dearborn Tragedy Monument 'Mystery Box' Contents Told

Contents of the copper box found imbedded in the base of the Fort Dearborn massacre monument when it was dismantled on Thursday have been ascertained by officials of the Chicago Historical society from booklets distributed at the time of the dedication. Whether or not the box will be opened remains a matter for decision by trustees of the society. It is possible they will be in favor of restoring it unopened to the spot from which it was taken, when and if the statuary above it is replaced.

Articles placed in the box at the dedication in 1893, according to the list, include a Chicago city directory of 1893; an official directory of the Columbian exposition; a standard guide of Chicago; pictures of the great fire of 1871; portraits, engravings, etc.; the story of Chicago, by Kirkland; story of the massacre, by Kirkland; Judge Caton's account of the massacre tree; Holden's sketch of a battlefield [which one not indicated]; a cylinder of a phonograph speech; the letter of donation [from the Pullman family], and daily newspapers of the time.

A Friend in Need

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Hose Would Bring Pleasure.

"Could you please help my children get a garden hose? My son found a large tank in a vacant lot near here, and they could use it for bathing if we had a hose with which to fill it. We live so far from the beaches that the children cannot go there. Three of them are newsboys; they don't have much time to play, and this tank would be such a pleasure for them. C. N."

Can you supply the hose which will mean so much comfort for these children? A little tape might repair the one you no longer want so that it will be of use to them.

Offers Rubber Stockings.

"I have a pair of rubber stockings, No. 4, to give away. If you know of some woman who can make use of them, I shall be glad to hear from you. MRS. G. F."

Can you make use of this gift? If so, I shall be glad to have you write me for it; please do not telephone.

Cripple Seeks Wheel Chair.

"Do you think you would be able to get me a wheel chair? I am crippled from spinal trouble causing a form of paralysis which makes my lower limbs useless. I am 32 years old and must support myself. My income is too small to permit me to buy a wheel chair. L. Z."

This letter comes to us from out of the city. If we can get a wheel chair for the writer, he will indeed be happy.

FLOWER OF THORNS

By Marie Conway Oemler

SYNOPSIS.

Sally Rutherford, the last of a proud old southern family, following the ruin and death of her grandfather, determines to keep the heavily mortgaged Oakleigh plantation for her grandmother. A porter's lodge, facing the Dixie highway, gives her the idea of opening a hot dog stand. She arranges with a milkman, who says he is Mr. Forman of the Winstead dairies, to deliver milk. He is really Samuel Forman Winstead, only son of Henry Winstead, town banker and holder of the Oakleigh mortgage. Sam, educated and traveled, prefers farming to finance. The Rutherford ladies "didn't know" the Winsteads, of carpetbagging stock, whose estate adjoined Oakleigh. Sally's milkman helps her get the Shack ready for business.

INSTALLMENT VII.

SALLY'S SHACK.

The old cabin was really more charming than Sally had dared hope when she first visioned it. It was colorful; it was picturesque. She had added a great deal on it and she had drawn upon Oakleigh generously. The milkman had made and painted the shelves and boxes, and he it was who had filled the latter with fern, adding pots of red geranium for good measure. He had also made and painted the counter for her.

"This place reminds me of the modern girl," he told Sally impudently, looking about it with dancing eyes. "It mayn't be as pretty as it's painted, but it's certainly painted pretty." And he hummed:

"Little dabs of powder,
Little gobs of paint
Make a lady's freckles
Look just like they ain't."

"Those zinnias I transplanted, outside the window, look to me as if they meant to grow, Miss Sally."

"It was a happy thought, and you're very kind to have taken all that trouble, Mr. Forman."

"Shucks! I'm a neighbor, am I not?"

"A very kind one at that," she admitted. And she added: "When you do your duty as a neighbor you certainly do it."

"I don't look on it as a duty, exactly. I wanted to do it for you. You're handy enough, of course, and you can paint——"

"And make my freckles

she added, with a sudden, irresistible tinkle of laughter.

"I wish you'd laugh often—anyhow when I'm here. It sounds good. You've got a mighty pretty laugh," said he.

But she stood with a stricken face.

"What a terrible thing life is, Mr. Forman," she said in a whisper. "How hard we are, how forgetful. Just a few months ago I thought I could never laugh again in this world. I came home—and grandpapa—and here I am laughing! Just as though it had never happened." She turned away with quivering lips. Her slight body trembled. She hung her head.

"Stop that! Stop it instantly!" said he imperatively.

Sally wheeled upon him, for the tone had been commanding. He saw the tears dry in her eyes, the quivering lips steady, the head go up.

"Gosh, you aren't going to use those bellows, are you?"

"There, that's better," said he with satisfaction. "You're angry. The idea of me talking to you like that! But anything's better for you than getting morbid."

"I do not understand you," said she haughtily.

"No? Well, perhaps I was somewhat bungling. But I meant what I said about your laughing more than you do. I wish you'd laugh oftener."

"The way I laugh," said she severely, "is neither here nor there."

"I'd rather hear it here than there. Here is where it ought to be heard, where it'll do the most good."

She was silent, but her expression distressed him.

"Let's have this thing out—between neighbors, so to say, Miss Rutherford. I hate to talk like this, but I've been watching you and I don't like what I see. You haven't been sleeping well, have you?"

"I like to go in during the night and look at grandmamma, to see if she is all right," she evaded.

"Which she is. You go in to look at her because you can't sleep and you're restless and nervous. You haven't much appetite, either, have you?"

"Suppose we change the subject," she suggested crisply.

"I haven't settled it in my mind yet," he said simply. "I've been watching you, Miss Rutherford. You're too pale, you're too thin. You're gallant and plucky, and you work like a Trojan, but you're as nervous as a cat. I want to ask you one thing, Miss Rutherford, as a neighbor——"

"O, if you take that tack you will ask any question you wish to ask."

"I have been told," said he, in a low and gentle voice, "that your grandfather adored you, that you were the darling of his heart——"

"You do not understand," she said quietly, turning tragic eyes upon him. "You mean well, but this thing isn't to be talked about."

"I am not a stranger. I am a neighbor," he told her evenly. "And I've got to talk to you for your own sake and your grandmother's, and your grandfather's. You are the last of the Rutherfords, aren't you?

"You want to carry on, don't you? No—don't go; stay and listen. Here you are and you're game enough to do this——" He waved his brown hand around the cabin. "All right. Now, you last Rutherford, are you game enough to carry it through, to meet your public with a brave face? To smile? To laugh? It takes more courage to laugh than to cry, Miss Sally. It takes a high heart to look happy!"

"I see that grief—and pride—do not go very well with—hot dogs," said she, smiling twistedly.

"But hot dogs go with all the cars that pass your door, lady, and the nickels for those dogs stay with you," said he reasonably. "Stop being sorry for yourself. Smile, keep busy."

"I am sure you mean well," said she.

"You might be mistaken," said the milkman truculently. "That's twice you've said that to me. The first time I let it go, because I hate to contradict a lady flatly. You're ready to open shop tomorrow, aren't you? Haven't you got the makings of a hot dog handy? With trimmings? Because I'm hungry."

"We have everything ready, Mr. Forman, but Moses isn't here. Moses is to do the actual work for me, you know."

"It isn't a bad idea at all. But suppose Moses isn't here and a customer clamors for his hot dogs, how then? Is he to perish?"

"If it were that important I should attend to his wants myself. I could do it."

"Could you, really? I'm wondering!"

She hesitated. She was curiously adverse to waiting on him.

"Yes'm, starving."

"I promised them to you," said she gravely. "Very well, Mr. Forman, I will make you some myself. If I do not make them exactly to your taste you won't mind correcting me, I'm sure."

"Believe me, I won't mind telling you what's what," said he promptly. "In some things I can be mannerly and suffer in silence, to spare a lady's feelings. But when it comes right down to my pet snack I speak up like an American citizen. No tampering with American rights or American hot dogs! Do I light a charcoal fire for you? Gosh, you aren't going to use those bellows, are you?" He pounced upon a heavy old handworked leather bellows with inlaid brass trimmings on mahogany handles.

"I found them in the attic, and I thought they'd be useful. Why?"

"Extravagance! These are for sale, lady. Tell Moses to use a palmleaf fan or some bullrushes, but put these on sale—at a price. Gee, I wish you'd let me ransack that garret!"

"Did you study antiques in that astonishing school of yours?"

"No, ma'am. I just like to read and study a bit. I've got a sort of hankering for these things. They are so beautiful and so genuine!"

When he had the charcoal glowing he went outside and cut a dry stalk from a palmetto bush, and the end of this stalk he sharpened.

"Wienies roast perfectly on the end of a palmetto stake over the fire," he told her.

"I think so myself," she agreed. "But it isn't businesslike, is it?"

"Well, maybe not. But it's nice," he reflected. The smell of roasting wienies, a hungry smell, spread through the room. "Now, where's the trimmings?"

"But I thought I was to make them."

"I'll take the will for the deed this time. Besides, I want to show you just how I like them," he said imperturbably. "I hope you've been paying strict attention. Mustard, please. Sauerkraut. Ketchup. Want sauerkraut in yours?"

"I have eaten one," said she doubtfully.

"Eat two today. You'll sell plenty tomorrow."

"I hope so," said she.

He got a quart bottle of milk. Then he fixed two places at the table, poured out a full glass of milk, and put two of the hot dogs on her plate, keeping two for himself.

"Now you sit down and eat," said he.

Bright Sayings of the Children

My little daughter, Marcia, aged 3, was being severely lectured by her mother on account of her general unruliness.

"Marcia," said mother, "if you don't stop being a naughty girl, I'm going to send you away to Aunt Ida."

Billy, age 3, was being shown around a farm for the first time. Seeing the stock tank, he exclaimed, "O, is that the cow's bath tub?"

Youngest Set Awaits Yearly Tank Contest

With the permission of the weather man, it will be held a week from Wednesday, July 22, and all the north shore youngsters are brushing up on their strokes and fancy dives in preparation for the event.

The carnival always is a festive affair, as the mothers and fathers cooperate with the club management in making it a great day for the children. The program includes stunts for boys and girls all the way from the tiny tot up to the sub deb stage. This year the contestants will be grouped according to experience rather than age.

After they've all exhibited their various degrees of aquatic skill refreshments will be served on the terrace surrounding the pool.

Home of Dennis Harmon in Switzerland Described.

A recent issue of "Townsfolk" contains three pages of pictures and descriptive captions of the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Harmon [Miriam Hart] in Zurich, Switzerland. The apartment is on Zolder hill and overlooks "a blossoming orchard, a towering church spire, and the mirrored Lake Zurich itself." It is stunningly furnished in the French modern style.

The living room, which is done in brown and rose color, has at one end a long mahogany table with enclosed compartments made according to Mrs. Harmon's design. A bedroom has built-in wardrobes instead of closets, and recesses in the walls that enclose the lights. French modern furniture of matched Russian walnut is used in the dining room. The table top is of black glass. Mr. and Mrs. Harmon were here last spring for a visit with Mrs. Harmon's parents, the H. Stillson Harts of Barrington.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Mrs. E. E. Gann, sister of the Vice President, has accepted the invitation of Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose of Kansas City, to visit her next month in her summer home at Gloucester, Mass.

Mrs. Loose is one of the several Kansas City widows of great wealth who have recently become known in Washington society. Another is Mrs. George D. Hope, who, after spending several winters in Washington, spent last winter in London.

Still another is Mrs. Karl D. Klemm, who yesterday became the bride of Charles Mason Remey of Washington. The ceremony was performed in Holy Trinity, the American pro-cathedral in Paris, by the Very Rev. Frederick W. Beekman. The bridegroom is one of Washington's most popular bachelors and the bride was given in marriage by another of the very popular bachelors, Maj. Gen. William E. Horton, U. S. A., retired, to whom she had long been reported to be engaged. She was the widow of Col. Karl D. Klemm, who resigned from the army soon after they were married. She formerly was Miss Gertrude Heim, daughter of the late Joseph J. Heim of St. Louis, wealthy brewer.

Mexicans Oppose American Talkies, So Theaters Suffer

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, July 12.—The campaign against American films spoken in English, while it has failed to run them out, has had the effect of lowering the standard of the films presented in practically all the theaters here. This is largely because higher import duties are charged on plays and other films in foreign languages than on those in Spanish. Taking this as an excuse the theaters run in silent films, some of them years old. The nationalist campaign carried through the press has not succeeded in making spoken plays in Spanish popular, for a very large percentage of the audiences at the better theaters go there to hear English and thus improve their understanding of the language.

The attackers of English spoken films bring up a variety of "reasons" why they should be kept out of Mexico. They are bitter against the films in the Negro and other dialects, which they declare vitiate rather than improve the Mexican's knowledge of English. They are loud in their outcry against ballet dances and semi-nude women who they say are rapidly destroying the Mexican innate sense of decency.

Men Are Still Eager to Take Initiative on the Dance Floor

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Since women are striving to attain the single standard in almost everything," R. G. writes, "is there any good reason why this attitude can not be taken in the sport of dancing?"

As time goes on, R. G. explains, the younger generations get more forward and sophisticated. Yet you find at most dances the girls pay the same price for admission as the men. Then they have to stand and wait until some male asks them to dance. In many cases some of the nicest girls are passed up.

If any one should rise to ask, "Why do nice girls go to public dance places?" R. G. is ready to explain that they do not get the opportunity to attend private dances or to meet men in a more conventional manner. And since they are humanly in need of diversion they do go to reputable dance places unescorted.

But the burning question is: "Why should girls not be permitted to chose their dance partners and not have to wait to be chosen?"

When a question like that is put up, it necessarily involves a long discussion on the species homo and his omnipresent failure to respond to single standard ideas as they affect the girls he chooses to like. You can spend an entire evening, if you wish, asking the whys of men's failure to respond to modernism as interpreted by the other half. But the only conclusive thing you'll have at the end of the argument is that men are not in accord with the advanced theories of the girls.

The old dears, or young, just keep on refusing to be changed. They want their girls as they want them, and they don't want them usurping the few remaining rights and privileges that they insist are theirs. Theoretically, they may heartily endorse the ideas advanced—but for the other fellow. For themselves, they'll do their own picking and choosing of dance partners, thank you.

French Taking Sun Baths as Nature Lovers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 12.—The French government gave its official approval the other day to Physiopolis, a big sun bathing camp on an island in the Seine a few miles from Paris.

There was a ceremony and speeches, but not one by Minister of Health Camille Blaisot. His secretary, however, said only nice things about naturism to the sun bathing voters.

After his speech the minister's secretary walked about among the 200 naturist huts, all exactly alike and made of steel and wood, which surround the central playground. From the vantage of his own black frock coated, top hatted, bespatted getup he nodded cheerfully to the bare skinned devotees draped about among the bramble bushes, nettles, canebrakes, sandburs, and whatnot clad in brief black shorts and, in the case of the women, also brassieres.

Those shorts and brassieres save the naturists from being nudists. Nudism is the gesture of the extremist Germans, sneer the Paris papers, while naturism comes within the bounds of moderation.

There are other naturist camps in France, although none with the capacity of Physiopolis.

The idea has extended into Paris. The floating baths lining the Seine within the city limits which formerly were used for the serious business of swimming are now largely frequented by sun bathers.

These establishments are for the masses. The maximum admission fee is 20 cents. The women are expected to wear bathing suits, but these are of minimum coverage.

A good place is what is known as the "largest floating bath in the world," situated at the south end of the Concorde bridge which connects the famous Place de la Concorde and the Chamber of Deputies. If you walk in at the noon hour on any weekday you will see out on the boardwalk at the other end of the pool rows and rows of folks baking themselves in the sun.

Preacher Says Chinese Pirate Any Foreign Books

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEIPING, July 12.—Y. Y. Tsu, a clergyman and one of the staff of the Peiping Union Medical college, spoke recently before the Peiping Rotary club. He said the Chinese translate, in pirated editions, books written by foreigners dealing chiefly with sex questions and a great variety of other subjects.

Dr. Tsu pointed out that as there is no copyright law in China as far as imported books are concerned, every volume that enters China may either be reprinted in its original language or translated into Chinese and circulated by the millions. The result is that

Let Children Help Give the Mothers Touch of Vacation

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

While vacation is the time for fun, the wise father and mother will make it as rich in interest as possible, and give their children every opportunity to make the most of their leisure in play and sports, and through their talents, their hobbies, and their books. But there is one other opportunity that summer and vacation provide that must not be overlooked.

In the winter many children have their time quite filled up—some of them entirely too much so. Besides their homework perhaps they have music or French or dancing—or all three. As a result, many mothers don't expect their children to do anything to help around the house. In some cases, if they did expect it there wouldn't be the actual hours in which to do so.

In the second place, even if you didn't, they should do something that gives them the feeling of family cooperation. That is a terribly overworked word—coöperation—but it's a good one. They needn't know why you're asking their help—ostensibly it will be because you'd like a touch of vacation, too.

There are many ways in which you can work the idea out, depending upon how old your son or daughter is, and how much training he or she has had. You will have to use judgment about it. But remember in planning, that it's better to give them a small amount of work that they can do well than a lot which they will only half accomplish.

In addition to being good character training, it will help to keep the children from being aimless, as some children do get to be as vacation wears on. And there is nothing more aimless than aimless children. But even if their time is filled with summer fun, let them help you a little.

Outline Plan to Better Conditions of Negro Race

Plans for a new deal, politically, morally and industrially for the Negro were outlined yesterday by Edgar G. Brown, president of the South Side Citizens' league, at a massmeeting in St. Paul's Methodist church. The plans call for a 10-year program of progress, and will be submitted in initial draft July 29 at a conference of Negro leaders.

Rector Charges Many Divorce Laws Are Jokes

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Divorce laws of various states were attacked yesterday in a statement by the Rev. Dr. Charles E. McAllister, rector of St. Luke's church, Evanston. He declared many such laws to be farcical and outrageous travesties on justice. He indicated the lines on which, he believed, the Episcopal church, with its proposed radical changes in its marriage and divorce canons, must take.

Dr. McAllister pointed that the real question involved in the whole problem is this: Should a person who has suffered as a result of a matrimonial mistake be allowed the privileges of a faithful communicant? In connection with this question the Evanston rector spoke of "the grave injustices against those who for the sake of innocent children and against their own desires have found themselves in the position of divorced persons.

"On the other hand," said Dr. McAllister, "the church cannot be too strict in its condemnation of the kind of farcical and outrageous travesties on justice now being perpetuated in certain states. If the church is to allow the privilege of remarriage, it must safeguard that privilege. I hope the general convention of the church as it meets this fall in Denver will not decide the question on technical textual grounds or along party lines."

Permissive legislation, Dr. McAllister asserted, finds loyal and conscientious support far more quickly than prohibition, "as the country now is learning to its sorrow in its Volstead experiment.

"The church should express its own mind apart from the abuses we see around us," Dr. McAllister urged. "It is interesting to note that it is not difficult to find ministers of some communions to remarry the average divorced person, nor is it difficult in some other communions to obtain annulment.

"We do not want the careless and negligent 'marrying parson,' nor do we want authority to cloak innumerable technical exceptions by which to grant annulment that, in effect, defeat the whole purpose of a church in promoting the sanctity of marriage. We must consider the rights of the children, the encouragement of a high standard of morality, the need for spiritual help for those sinned against, as well as the sinners. We should realize that modern living conditions make it extremely easy for people to carry on without even the decency of a civil marriage."

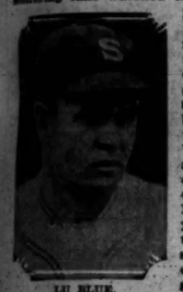
CUBS LOSE TO CARDS, 17-13, AFTER WINNING, 7-5

SOX LOSE, 10-4, THEN CONQUER CLEVELAND, 7-5

Chicago Climbs Out of Cellar.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Forget about the fact that 16,000 suffering fans watched the Cleveland Indians make eight runs in the two innings of the first game of yesterday's double header with the White Sox and march on to a 10 to 4 victory. Forget, if you will, that these same patient customers groaned when Hal McKain staged a sorry spectacle to start the second game and the Indians grabbed four runs in the first inning just as they had done in the lamentable first game.



LU BLUE.

Don't feel sorry for these faithful fans, for in the second game they saw a stirring baseball circus that sent everybody home cheering a 7 to 5 White Sox triumph.

Pat Caraway came in for a lot of comment during the day, for he was marked with the loss of the first game and he was credited with winning the second one. He deserved the loss more than the victory, for he was saved from two defeats in one afternoon by his mates, especially young Billy Sullivan and Johnny Kerr, who performed stellar service to save the long fellow's hide in the eighth.

The even break sent the Sox out of the cellar to seventh place, ahead of Boston.

Blue, Appling Lead Attack.

Since the Sox had to overcome a four run disadvantage incurred by McKain's sloppy work at the outset of the second game, it goes without saying there were heroes in the Sox offensive. Leading these heroic gents were Lu Blue and Luke Appling.

Blue's showing for the day was a triple in the seventh, which resulted in the Sox second run, and a double which drove in two runs in the sixth and put the Sox in a victory mood. He also had a single that didn't cash. In addition to his offensive work Blue was a busy man on defense with 18 put-outs and an assist, including participation in two double plays, one of which he started.

Appling also had three hits, a single, a double and a triple. He scored the Sox third run after the double, drove in the tying run with the triple, and scored the winning run after the triple.

Manager Bush used 15 players, including Smead Jolley, who has been out of the game since May 21. The giant man was given a great hand by the crowd and an intentional pass by Pitcher Harder. The pass resulted in Cissell scoring a run after being put on first to run for the big fellow. Manager Peckinpaugh used 14 men in his lineup, but his replacements failed to come through, while there wasn't a one of the pinch persons who fell down in the Chicago cause.

The Sox will open their second eastern invasion tomorrow at Washington, while Cleveland left for a siege with the Yanks.

FIRST GAME

The first game became a no contest affair in the first two innings. Before the first putout in the third inning the Indians had made 11 hits for a total of eight runs. Every visitor except Montague had made a hit before the first batsman was retired in the third inning. At the end of the third, the Indians were leading, 9 to 0, which made the idea of a Sox victory a rather cheerless prospect.

If Caraway and Moore, Pat's successor in the first inning, were terrified at the surprise appearance of Ferrell as their pitching adversary, they must have been surprised to see the Sox fill the bases and make one run in the sixth. The Sox also made two runs in the seventh and had the bases full when Pinch Batter Watwood fanned to end the inning.

Fill Bases Again, Score One.

In the eighth the Chicagoans had the bases full with none out, but all they could get out of it was one run. In the last two-thirds of the game the Indians were held to one run counted by Vosmik in the eighth as a farewell to Moore.

The Sox made their four runs in the following manner. In the sixth, with one out, Reynolds made his second double and the third hit in his series of four straight, held on while Fothergill flied to Averill and scored on the first of Kerr's series of three successive hits, a single to right center. Appling walked and Jeffries beat out an infield single to fill the bases, but Tate was thrown out to retire the side.

Blue, Reynolds Score.

Pro Football League Takes in Cleveland

Cleveland, O., was granted a franchise by the National Professional Football league at its meeting yesterday at the Edgewater Beach hotel. The pro league will have a ten club circuit for the 1931 season.

Jerry Corcoran, who last year managed the Brooklyn eleven, will direct pro football in Cleveland. Corcoran has leased Cleveland's new $3,000,000 municipal stadium for home games. The applications of Milwaukee, Wis., and Cincinnati, O., for franchises were sent to the executive committee, which will not act on the applications this year.

Joseph Carr of Columbus, O., was reelected president and secretary yesterday. Carl Storck, welfare director of the General Motors corporation, Detroit, Mich., was elected treasurer and vice president.

Open Season Sept. 13.

The 1931 schedule will open Sept. 13 with Brooklyn playing at Portsmouth, O., and it will conclude on Dec. 13 when the Green Bay Packers play the Chicago Bears at Wrigley field.

The league officially awarded the 1930 championship to the Green Bay Packers, who finished the season last fall with ten victories, three defeats, and one tie game.

The executive committee of the league for 1931 will consist of Judge James M. Dooley, Providence, R. I.; Dr. Harold A. Marsh, New York, and Dr. James A. Kelley, Green Bay, Wis.

Potsy Clark to Coach.

The Portsmouth club announced that it had employed Potsy Clark, former University of Illinois star and Canmore recently football coach at Kansas and Butler, to direct its team this year. Portsmouth followed the lead of the Chicago Bears, which last year hired Ralph Jones, former Lake Forest coach.

The league this fall will include Green Bay, New York, Chicago Bears, Chicago Cardinals, Brooklyn, Providence, Stapleton, Portsmouth, Philadelphia, and Cleveland.

POLOISTS SPEND THEIR DAY OFF AT POLO GAME

Old Aiken, Argentines See Oak Brook Thriller.

BY TOM PETTEY.

The Old Aiken and South American polo players spent yesterday away from Onwentsia Country club, but they did not get away from their favorite sport—polo. They were guests at the Oak Brook Polo club, where the Oak Brook four met the Free-booters. The Freebooters, clad in scarlet red jerseys, won 10 to 9, after spotting Oak Brook, or the White team, two goals.

It was an interesting game and the last three chukkers gave the crowd a number of thrills. Tex Crites, playing at back for the Whites, was the star for his team and Maj. C. C. Smith at back and Barney Balding at number two on the Red team were outstanding performers.

Maj. Smith was struck on the head by a ball during the first minute of play. The blow knocked him groggy for a while, but he did not quit playing. Maj. Smith made the most difficult goal of the game in the fourth period when he drove the ball through from a far corner, riding almost parallel to the posts.

Maj. Smith Speeds Game.

Edward Hilman and James Hannah alternated at number one position on the White team. Paul Butler, at number three on the same team, accounted for a couple of goals. During the last three periods Crites was hitting the ball almost every play for his team and Maj. Smith was speeding up the game for the Reds. Capt. Stockton played the forward position for the Reds and rammed through three goals. William M. Blair was at number two for the Whites and Herbert J. Lorber played number three for the Reds. The umpire was William Calhoun.

Alfredo Harrington, the Santa Paula number one, sat on the sidelines with Joseph C. Rathborne, the Old Aiken back. The other international players were seated in automobiles with friends. Mr. Harrington said the Argentine ponies had suffered from their long trip and the heat, but that they should be in better condition for the next international match to be played at Onwentsia club Wednesday.

Argentines More Confident.

Capt. Wesley J. White, the umpire for the big games, remarked on the rapidity with which the scorekeeper shifted his numbers.

"Sometimes the score does change too rapidly," smiled Harrington, "and that is what happened Saturday afternoon."

The Argentine players, however, appeared more confident yesterday than they were immediately after their defeat by Old Aiken. They think it will take three games to decide the series.

Both Old Aiken and Santa Paula will work out at Onwentsia this afternoon. Some of the mounts need a lot of attention and the players intend giving it to them between now and Wednesday afternoon.

109 START PLAY FOR WESTERN AMATEUR TITLE

Portland, Ore., July 12.—(AP)—For the third time in history the western amateur golf tournament has come to the Pacific coast with at least 109 starting play at the Portland Golf club tomorrow.

The entry list is small, but it is crowded with class, so much so that Johnny Lehmann, Chicago, defending champion, decided at the last minute that he would not risk taking a chance in the qualifying round. It is optional with the defending champion whether he enters the qualifying round, but if he elected to play and failed to land among the low 32 he would be out of the match play.

The qualifying test will be over 36 holes—18 tomorrow and 18 Tuesday. Wednesday two 18 hole elimination rounds will be played and the eight survivors will battle over the 36-hole route Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Par is 72 on the 6,425 yard Portland club course.

Twenty Grand to Have Real Test in Arlington Classic

BY FRENCH LANE.

There will be a $5,000 added North Shore steeplechase run at Arlington Park Wednesday afternoon, but most of the horse talk and horse speculation at Arlington and throughout the country this week will center on the Classic, the richest 3 year old race in the world, to be renewed here on Saturday afternoon.

A. G. BOSTWICK.

If Twenty Grand had stayed away it would have been just another rich 3 year old race. But Twenty Grand did not stay out of the Classic; he is at Arlington Park and on the 3 year old championship doorstep knocking for admission. If he rushes down the stretch to victory in the Classic, crushing all that compete against him, he will walk into the throne room and receive his crown.

Faces Hard Task.

The Classic, which will be worth between $85,000 and $90,000, is to be no walkover for Twenty Grand, for his most dangerous rival will be Mate, the Preakness stakes and American Derby winner, and the only horse that has beaten Twenty Grand this year.

With Mate, fighting down Twenty Grand's drive for the rich prize, will be Spanish Play, the Latonia Derby winner; A La Carte, the Ohio Derby winner, and Vander Pool, unbeaten during his racing career, which has extended over 14 winning marches. Other starters will be Sun Meadow, second to Twenty Grand in the Belmont stakes; Epithet, a recent winner at Arlington; Joey Bibb, a long shot from Kentucky; St. Brideau—running mate of Twenty Grand—and possibly three or four others whose chances do not appear particularly bright at this time.

But because a horse is not particularly fancied does not ruin his chance of victory in a stake race at Arlington. Pair By Pair, a 19 to 1 shot, won the Hyde Park stakes; Plucky Play, at 46 to 1, captured the Stars and Stripes handicap and Canfil, at $27 in the $2 mutuels, won the Arlington Oaks.

Hope for All Owners.

Because the dope has been upset so often in Arlington's series of valuable stakes, several owners of 3 year old eligibles to the Classic have taken on renewed hope and will gamble the $1,000 starting fee against a prize of $85,000 that there may be an upset in the Classic and that Twenty Grand will go down in defeat.

The field for the Classic is already assembled at Arlington Park with the exception of Mate and Vander Pool. They will come early this week, Mate being scheduled to arrive this morning. The plans call for Vander Pool's shipment here on Wednesday. Mate's mile and a furlong gallop at Belmont Park on Saturday morning in 1:51 indicates he is better now than at any time this year. He will be asked to travel the Classic route of a mile and a quarter over the main Arlington course on Wednesday.

Twenty Grand Tries Track.

Twenty Grand got his first look at the racing strip on which he will get his test in the Classic early yesterday morning. He was brought out with his stable mate, St. Brideaux. Marshall Lilly, veteran colored exercise boy in the Whitney stables, was in the saddle on Twenty Grand.

They galloped slowly around the main course twice. Then Twenty Grand was opened up for a slow half mile, in which he was timed in 50 seconds. He looked fresh and sound when it ended. He will undergo a more serious training move today.

The second running of the North Shore steeplechase on Wednesday afternoon will bring a brilliatn field of cross country racers into action. It will also introduce to a Chicago racing crowd Pete Bostwick, noted polo player and amateur jockey. He will ride one of Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's jumpers in the race and his brother, Albert C. Bostwick, owner of the 3 year old Mate, may ride another of Mrs. Clark's fencers. Rigan McKinney and William Street are other amateurs who may wear silks in the steeplechase stake.

Three Clark Entries.

Crumpler, Contrition and Madiola will represent Mrs. Clark in the race. The entry probably will rule as the favorite. Fairmont, Indigo, Inception, Silver Jay, Cahanamore, Tod Sloan, Trieste, Queen's Pal, Bayard and Canterbury are other likely starters.

The Galena and Harvard purses hold the top place on Arlington's program today. The Galena is for 2 year olds and engages some fleet youngsters. Joey Bibb and two or three other candidates for the Classic come together in the Harvard at seven furlongs.

ARLINGTON FUTURITY.

NOMINATIONS close next Monday for the first Arlington Futurity, to be run at the 1932 meeting as a 6 furlong dash for 2 year olds, foals of 1930. This race, according to estimates of $65,000 gross, will approach in monetary value at its first running the famous Arlington Classic. In future years, because of its conditions, it is likely to exceed the Classic in gross money, perhaps become the richest stake of the American turf.

The Arlington Futurity of 1932 will not be a Futurity in the true turf sense of the word like the Belmont, Pimlico, and the Breeders of Lexington Futurities—nor in 1933 for that matter. In after years it will. That is because mares or mothers in these other future events are nominated before the youngsters which race for such valuable stakes are foaled. Of course, that is impossible for 1932 and 1933.

The most valuable Futurity to date was that of 1929 at Belmont Park, with a gross over $130,000, and $105,000 to the late Harry Payne Whitney, owner of the winner, Whichone. There were 2,109 nominations. The added money was only $25,000, which is the same amount Arlington Park will add to its 1932 event.

If this added money is subsequently increased, which is the Arlington policy, and the event draws as well as the eastern stakes—and there is no reason why it should not—the stake easily may outstrip all others, even the Agua Caliente handicap and Belmont Futurity in value.

Nomination fee for this first Futurity is $10, with a second payment of $35 Jan. 4 next, $50 more by May 16, and $1,000 additional to start. With possibilities of such large returns, nearly all breeders and owners of yearlings may be expected to nominate.

Aside from placing a new stellar attraction on the program, the action is significant in showing the faith of Arlington's sportsmen sponsors in the permanence of legalized racing in Illinois.

Into a day can come a peace,
A heart's own hush and sweet release,
And that is when a fleeting thought
Of some beloved one is caught.

Will hold us in its spell, and then
As quickly disappear again.

Miss Cuervorst Wins Women's Title.

Bruce Barnes, University of Texas barnstormer, yesterday sailed through a match with Ted Burwell to win the Illinois state tennis championship, 3-5, 6-1, 7-5, 6-0, on the courts of the Chicago Town and Tennis club. The young Texan apparently regarded the opening set as a warmup, for he easily took the next three.

Burwell, North Carolina's ranking star, flashed all over the court in the first set, smashing sizzling drives across the net and accurate placements along the base line. He frequently drew the Texan out of position.

Keeps Burwell on Run.

In the second set Barnes settled down and drove superbly, keeping Burwell on the run with a mixture of cross court placements. Barnes won five straight games to take the second set, 6-1.

The University of Carolina star gave Barnes a battle in the third set, but faltered after leading 4-0. Following a short intermission, Barnes sailed into the closing set with vigor and won, 6-2.

Mae Cuervorst, Wichita, Kas., southpaw, who is holder of five state titles, added the Illinois crown to her string by scoring a straight set victory over Miss Jackie Ayer, 6-1, 6-3. The little Chicago player was handicapped by her small stature, but rallied on several occasions to meet the best offerings of her more experienced opponent.

Miss Cuervorst scored with overhead lobs and fast drives. She continually pulled the Chicago girl out of position.

Barnes Wins in Doubles.

A few moments after acquiring the singles championship, Barnes returned to the court with Karl Kamrath to beat Jack Harris and Louis Thalheimer, 6—0, 6—1, 1—6, 6—1, for the doubles title.

The Texan pair was too fast for the home club team.

Mae Cuervorst and Florence Wittleder defeated Jean Gordon and Vera Trayford, 6—2, 6—4, in the women's doubles final. The vanquished pair achieved the unique distinction of entering the final bracket without playing a single game. They had a bye in the opening round and drew two defaults.

Tilden Beats Richards for Pro Net Title

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Four thousand spectators, looking down from the stadium of the Westside Tennis club at Forest Hills, today, saw William T. Tilden 2nd of Philadelphia wrest the national professional championship from Vincent Richards.

The 38-year-old master of the courts administered the most crushing defeat Richards has ever sustained at his hands in championship play. In one minute less than an hour, Tilden's drives had exacted their toll. The scores were 7-5, 6-2, 6-1.

For a brief period in the first set there was the prospect of a tremendous struggle. Richards, making a strong stand from the back of the court, and making capital of his service and an occasional volley, broke through in the first game and nursed his lead to 4-2. Tilden, however, found the range, and soon had Richards out of the picture.

Tilden and Richards returned to the courts to engage each other again in the final of the doubles. In a drawn-out struggle, filled with rallies, Richards and Howard Kinsey of California successfully defended their crown by defeating Tilden and Francis T. Hunter of New Rochelle, 7-9, 7-5, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

CROWD ON FIELD USURPS DUTIES OF OUTFIELDERS

Catch 32 Doubles, 23 in Second Game.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., July 12.—The Cubs and Cardinals today reached the heights of insanity in baseball. Fully 10,000 of a record turnout of 45,715 usurped the playing field with hardly anybody to keep them in check, but the athletes did their duty. They wentthrough 18 innings made ridiculous by the intolerable conditions and each side was rewarded with victory. The Cubs grabbed theirs by 7 to 5 and then folded up in the second portion of the double bill by 17 to 13. The split left the Cubs six games back of the leaders.

HACK WILSON.

Above the mess of 32 doubles, a steady parade of more pitchers than can be counted, numerous errors, and scoring that took place too rapidly even for lightning calculators, one item stood out like a diamond in a dirt pile. Mr. Hack Wilson contributed that. When his mates were trailing in the first game and Charley Root already had been knocked out, Hack came to the rescue. He stepped up in the seventh with two on, knocked the ball over the roof for homer No. 11, and thereby furnished the biggest portion of a five run rally that led the Cubs to victory.

Doubles Sail Over Hack.

Not much can be said in defense of the second game. Wilson, who couldn't be discerned from the spectators in left, got dizzy watching doubles sail over his head. Pat Malone, who started, had a short existence. So did the five pitchers who followed him, including Root and Bush, both of whom had been in the previous struggle. The Cubs also caused enough annoyance to banish a pair of Cardinal hurlers, but the sad feature of the Chicago attack was that it couldn't keep pace with the Cards after the fifth.

Tomorrow Burleigh Grimes and Bob Smith will pitch and endeavor to conduct an orderly exhibition of the national pastime.

Unable to Control Crowd.

The day's program was started under difficulties. No provision had been made to handle the throng. At least 5,000 should have been denied admittance. At ten minutes before game time the overflow lines had pushed up to the edges of the infield. The dugouts were completely hidden from view. No pre-game practice was possible. A ball couldn't be thrown from third to home without bouncing it off the head of some fan who was trying to get his money's worth.

There was only a handful of police to direct the milling mass. Just before the first game should have started the club dug up some ropes and these were stretched across the front of the crowd and then used to push back the front line of spectators. The effort accomplished little. The fans refused to recede any farther than a point about 20 feet away from first and third.

Outfielders or Infielders?

In right field the traffic was so heavy that Cuyler and Watkins were almost playing first base. After the first inning this portion of the mob surged in almost to the edge of the grass. Then the mass of squirmers back of first base broke right up to the base itself. They were pushed back, but broke out in a new spot. The right center field portion edged in so far that half of the outfield space was behind them. The umpires waited ten minutes for the situation to improve but gave it up as a hopeless task and ordered the second inning to start.

The ushers and police continued to work on the unruly section in the vicinity of first base. More rope was brought in and by herding small batches at a time, the fair and foul territory in right was fairly well cleared. But then the center field mob crept in a few feet closer. This happened in the fourth inning and thus there was another delay of ten minutes. When an announcer walked around explaining that the game might be forfeited, the mob withdrew. But the fans behaved only during the remainder of the first game. In the second affair they almost crowded the outfielders off the landscape.

FIRST GAME

The ridiculous conditions made it possible for the Cubs to start the scoring in the second inning of the first engagement. Hack led off with a two bagger against the right field screen. Hornsby followed with a dinky fly close to the line back of first base. It went into the crowd for a double, and Wilson scored. The crowd booed lustily as an expression of its opinion of the home

7 Run Attack Clinches Opening Battle.

New York, July 12. — (AP) — The Giants slaughtered the Phils twice in a double bill today, 13 to 6 and 9 to 4. Fred Fitzsimmons coasted through in the second game on a big lead, allowing but six hits. Two were home runs, Klein getting his twenty-third and Hurst the other. Mel Ott hit two homers for the Giants, driving in five runs while Travis Jackson made five hits in as many tries.

In the opener, John Berly held the Phils to four hits in the first eight innings but blew up in the ninth, allowing four hits and five runs to be relieved by Heving, who finished.

ATHLETICS TAKE DOUBLE-HEADER FROM RED SOX

Boston, Mass., July 12.—(AP)—The Athletics took a double header from the Red Sox today, 7 to 2 and 6 to 2, behind the steady pitching of Waite Hoyt and Roy Mahaffey. Hoyt allowed only six hits in the first game while his mates were making fourteen for a total of twenty-six bases off three Boston pitchers. Al Simmons and Jimmy Foxx hit for the circuit in this game off Wiley Moore. It was Foxx's 17th of the year.

In the second game Mahaffey acquired an early lead and held it for six innings when the game was called because of the Sunday law. The Sox got to him for their only runs in the final inning when Earl Webb hit a home run with one on base. Scores:

Gray surprised the crowd and his teammates by hitting the ball over the left field fence for a homer to start the sixth inning. Despite the feat, he yielded to a pinch hitter in the eighth and Stiles finished the game. Score:

YANKS DEFEAT SENATORS.

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—Washington's defense cracked today to give New York a 10 to 4 victory. The loss put Washington six games behind Philadelphia and brought New York back into the race. After pitching himself out of a hole in the first inning, Hadley worked on better than even terms with Pennock until the blow up came in the sixth. Five errors were made by Washington, most of them contributing to the scoring. Score:

St. Louis Gets Braxton from Sox on Waivers

Crowd Usurps Playing Field as Cubs, Cardinals Divide

Watkins and Martin bowled over a half dozen spectators while making a vain effort to get Jurges' short fly to right. It went for a double. Jurges would have scored on Cuyler's fly to right if the crowd hadn't opened up to let Watkins sneak through and make the catch.

Root Hurls Four Innings.

For three innings Root was skillful enough to keep the Cards from banging hits into the crowd, but he suddenly lost the knack in the fourth and three runs were pounded home. With one out Watkins bounced a hit past Grimm and it rolled into the crowd for a two bagger. Collins doubled off the right field wall and Watkins scored. Orsatti doubled and Collins counted. Frisch singled to left and Orsatti scored with the aid of a fumble by Hack. Root ended the inning and then retired for the day.

Cuyler got the Cubs going again when he slashed a homer into the seats just inside the left field foul line to open the sixth, and what Kiki started was carried to its climax in the stormy seventh. It was Hack's homer No. 11, which accounted for three of the five runs picked up in the course of this assault on Hallahan.

Drive Hallahan to Showers.

There were no signs of this profitable rally until after the first two Chicagoans had been retired. English singled to left and Cuyler singled to center, each taking an extra base on Watkins' bad return throw. Hack scored them when he crashed Hallahan's first pitch on a line to the roof of the pavilion in right. Then Hornsby walked. Dan Taylor doubled into the crowd and both tore home on Grimm's single to center. Hemsley also singled, but Lindsey stepped in and coaxed the third out from May.

May had his own little troubles in the home seventh and half of his four run lead vanished. Bottomley led off with a single and the two following batters filed out. Flowers doubled into the crowd and both scored on Jim Wilson's single to left. Roettger batted for Watkins and was given a pass, whereupon Collins lined to D. Taylor to close the inning.

When May got into difficulties again in the eighth on a single and pass with one out, Hornsby yanked him in favor of Bush. The rescuer cleaned up in a hurry when English speared High's line drive and doubled Blades off second. Bush set 'em down in the ninth.

SECOND GAME

The second contest opened crazily when Martin fell on the seat of his pants coming in for Blair's short fly. Blair was given a double. A pass to Cuyler filled the bases, but in a promising situation as this Hack fanned. Hornsby bounced to Adams, who fumbled and then threw high over first base. The two errors let Blair and English score and moved Cuyler to third and Hornsby to second. Dan Taylor filed to center, and Cuyler was doubled at the plate. Grimm almost assaulted Ump Pfirman for the decision on the play, but the latter took it good naturedly.

Three runs that put the Cards in front in their first half began with Blair fumbling Adams' grounder. Watkins forced Adams, and Hornsby threw out Frisch. Then rapid fire crowd doubles by Collins and Hafey and a single by Martin accounted for the trio of runs.

Blair Hits Homer.

There was more comics in the fourth when Blair tore off his homer to provide a good portion of four runs scored during the inning. Grimm opened the party with a single to left and Hartnett duplicated the hit. Malone bunted to Rhem, who hurriedly turned and started to make a throw to third but discovered nobody was covering the bag. Then he threw to first, but the peg went wild, Grimm scoring, Hartnett going to third and Malone to second. Both romped home ahead of Blair's circuit drive which rolled over the right field roof. This provided the Cubs with a 6 to 2 margin.

The crowd on Hack's heels in left helped the Cards to resume the lead with seven in their half of the fourth. Mancuso doubled into the overflow and scored when Orsatti, batting for Rhem, did the same. A single by Adams and Taylor's error scored Orsatti. Then there was a double by Frisch to mark Malone's finish. With two out Bush gave a pass to Hafey, filling the bases. A single by Martin scored Adams and Frisch. Hafey registered when High doubled. And the last two runs of the session went home when English, after getting under Mancuso's popup in short left, suddenly jumped away from it when Hack yelled at him. It fell for a double.

Tie Score; Then Fold Up.

The Cubs tendered Stout a reception as soon as he showed up in the fifth. By doing this the Chicagoans scored four and tied it up at 10 apiece. D. Taylor walked and Adams fumbled Grimm's grounder. Hartnett doubled and so did Bell, batting for Bush. That scored three runs. Then Stout turned over his job to Derringer and a two bagger by English moved Bell home. After this the Cubs did little except when they collected some doubles in the ninth because the fans grabbed the ball.

Baecht got into the argument in the fifth and remained just long enough to give passes to Adams and Watkins. Root then tried to carry on, but both Frisch and Collins hit doubles accounting for three runs. Later there was some more of this same stuff at the expense of Blake, but nobody can possibly be interested in just how it happened.

Record for Doubles

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 12.—When the Cubs drove ten doubles into the overflow crowd at Sportsman's park today and the Cardinals went them three better in the same game, a new major league record was established for two base hits. The previous modern baseball record was 16, made by Cleveland and New York in an American league game on July 21, 1921. The old National league mark of 14 was set April 11, 1912 by Brooklyn and New York. The all time major league record had been 17 doubles by Chicago and Buffalo of the National league on July 3, 1883.

SOX LOSE, 10-4; THEN CONQUER CLEVELAND, 7-5

Tate led off the eighth with a single and Sullivan sent him to third with his third successive pinch hit of the series. Blue walked to fill the bases. Simons fouled to Sewell and Reynolds sent a long fly to Averill, which enabled Tate to score.

SECOND GAME

The start of the second game was just as disheartening as the first. McKain walked Burnett, who went to third on Porter's single to center. Averill walked, filling the bases. McKain then walked Morgan, forcing in Burnett. Manager Bush waved McKain from the scene, but Harold apparently was full of confidence and Mr. Bush had to go out personally to lead the young man from the premises. He then sent in his pitcher, Frasier.

Not wishing to encourage Victor too much, Catcher Grube went after Frasier's pitch as though he were working with a boxing glove. It was a sloppy passed ball, which allowed Porter to score and the two other runners to advance.

Having been cast thus into the spirit of the day, Frasier could not prevent Vosmik from singling to right, Averill scoring and Morgan stopping at third. Morgan scored while Sullivan was making a nice play to throw out Kamm.

Sullivan Hits Double.

The Sox made a run in the third inning and had runners on third and second when the inning ended. Simons singled to left with one down and proceeded to second when the ball got past Vosmik. Reynolds flied to Vosmik. Fonseca singled past Burnett, Simons stopping at third. Sullivan then doubled off Morgan's glove, Simons scoring and Fonseca stopping at third. Kerr sent a fly to Porter.

The Indians scored their fifth run in the fifth and the Sox scored their second in the same inning. Porter led off the Cleveland half with a double and went to third while Averill was rolling out to Blue. Morgan and Vosmik walked, filling the bases and Porter scored while Kamm was forcing Vosmik. Kerr threw out Myatt.

Blue tripled to start the Sox half of the fifth and came home while Burnett was throwing out Simons. Montague threw out Reynolds, then Fonseca walked. Sullivan flied to Averill.

The Sox made two runs and had the bases full with one out in the sixth. After Kerr had flied to Averill, Appling doubled to center and stopped at third when Grube singled to center. Watwood batted for Frasier and walked, filling the bases. Blue then came up with his second extra base hit in successive innings, which was held to a double by ground rules when it caromed off Porter's glove into the boxes. Harder relieved Brown as the Cleveland pitcher. Appling and Grube scored, but the ground rule also made Watwood go back to third. Fothergill batted for Simons and walked, again filling the bases. But Reynolds fouled to Myatt and Fonseca forced Fothergill, Kamm to Burnett.

In the first of the seventh, Caraway made his second appearance of the day and held the enemy to one hit, a single by Vosmik after two were out.

Double Play Quells Indians.

The Sox jumped into the lead in the seventh. Kerr singled to center with one down and scored when Appling tripled to left center. Jolley, making his first appearance since May 21, was given an intentional pass. Cissell ran for Jolley. Watwood singled off Harder's shins, Appling scoring and Cissell stopping at second. Blue filed to Porter, Cissell going to third after the catch. Burnett then dropped Caraway's pop fly, Cissell scoring and Watwood pulling up at third. Caraway stopped at second. Reynolds was thrown out by Burnett.

It appeared as if the Sox advantage was about to be dissipated in the eighth when Kamm opened with a single and stopped at third on Sewell's double. Sullivan made a nice play to hold up the runners while throwing out Montague. Seeds batted for Harder and walked, filling the bases. Detore batted for Burnett and laced a hard one to Sullivan, who came up with the ball and started a double play that retired the side.

Dredge the Lagoon.

The exact time the races will start July 26 has not been determined. It depends on the number of entries, but the first preliminary certainly will start not later than 1:30 o'clock. In that event numbers will be given out from 10 a. m. until 12:30.

The Lincoln park lagoon is being dredged. Two openings into Lake Michigan at the south end of the lagoon will eliminate a current. Dressing quarters will be provided at the Lincoln Park Boat club. Swimmers also may use the facilities at Diversey beach without charge. Tickets will be distributed to those making application on the day of the meet.

Swimmers do not have to dress at the boat club. If they care to report in their suits it will eliminate congestion. All must report for their numbers, however.

Rain Postpones Auto Races at Roby Speedway

HUNTERS CLEAN GUNS, BUT DUCK CROP IS SMALL

Survey Shows Poor Fowl Season.

BY BOB BECKER.

Gloomy news for the duck hunters is in the offing because the United States biological survey has issued a report telling American sportsmen that again a very small duck crop is being raised in the Canadian marshes this summer. Preliminary results of the studies of breeding areas across the line indicate that this year's hatch of waterfowl will prove to be the smallest on record. This means the danger mark for the American duck population and probably the poorest waterfowl hunting season that many sportsmen will see for some time.

Government Gives Warning.

The government has issued a warning about the seriousness of the situation only after surveying the breeding areas with the coöperation of Canadian authorities. The Canadian officials have reported that conditions in Alberta and Saskatchewan and parts of Manitoba are even less favorable for the breeding of waterfowl than last year.

In other words, the dangerously small crop of birds that fought a losing fight with the drought last summer haven't been given a chance this year to raise their broods under normal conditions. Recent rains in the breeding areas came too late to help the year's hatch because the peak of the breeding season had passed before the drought on the prairies was broken.

Consider Situation Serious.

It says:

"The serious drought conditions in the breeding grounds of the birds in the spring and early summer this year have accentuated the critical conditions facing the waterfowl. Concern for the safety of the birds is increased by the announcement from the weather bureau that the extreme deficiency in moisture that was experienced in 1930 followed similar conditions in the northwest dating back to 1922."

The bulletin adds that further results of the biological survey's studies "in coöperation with Canadian conservation officials will be awaited with interest by sportsmen and conservationists of both countries since it is generally conceded that the condition now confronting the wild fowl of North America are the most serious in our history."

HOOVER DEFENDS TARIFF; ANSWERS DEMOCRAT CHIEF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—The White House entered officially into the political battle over the tariff today. In what was considered to be an administration answer to recent Democratic attacks, notably that of Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, minority leader of the senate, the tariff commission was pictured as a hard worked body which had fully completed investigations of 119 different articles under the flexible provisions of the tariff act and has investigations of 119 articles still under consideration.

In 22 investigations completed and reported to the President, it was pointed out that on only 10 of the 46 articles involved had there been an increase proclaimed. On 12 articles the duty was cut. On 20 there was no change; on four others there was no change, the report having been returned by the President.

It was also explained that in addition to its duties under the flexible clause, the commission had been called on by congress for reports on 10 subjects, four of which have been completed. On its own initiative the commission undertook and completed an investigation of leaf tobacco.

"The cases brought before the commission are being handled expeditiously," the White House statement declared. "The tables presented herewith reveal that the commission is disposing of the cases at a rate of one per week.

The tables show that some 200 items relating to the strictly flexible provisions of the tariff have either been dealt with, are in process of hearings, or are in the form of applications now before the commission.

The tariff act of 1930 contained 3,231 dutiable items. Of this total 2,171 were unchanged from the 1922 tariff, 190 were increased, and 235 were decreased."

FALL TO ACCEPT EXTRA DAY TO CHOOSE PRISON

El Paso, Tex., July 12.—(AP)—A member of the family of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, said today that the aged and ailing man, convicted of accepting a bribe while in office, had agreed to accept an amendment to a year's prison sentence so his term might be served outside the District of Columbia.

Fall, suffering from chronic tuberculosis, has declared service of his term in a eastern prison would result in his early death.

Dr. J. H. Gambrell, the former secretary's private physician here, yesterday recommended to Frank Hogan, Fall's Washington counsel, that the sentence be served in the New Mexican state prison. Previously, at the request of Hogan, the physician notified his patient that Justice Bailey of the District of Columbia Supreme court had refused to grant a suspension of sentence. In doing so, Justice Bailey suggested to Hogan that the year's sentence be modified by the addition of another day.

This action would give the attorney general power to name the prison in which the former cabinet member will serve time for acceptance of a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheny, the oil man.

SATURDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

40,000 IN PARADE ASK FREEDOM OF THE PHILIPPINES

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

MANILA, July 13.—The well planned independence parade today became the largest political demonstration in the history of the Philippines. Police and parade marshals were utterly incapable of handling the crowd, variously estimated at between 150,000 and 200,000, of which 40,000 marched, with the remainder looking on. Street cars and vehicular traffic were stopped for three hours in the entire downtown district.

Senator Hawes reviewed the parade from the steps of the legislative building, making several speeches and receiving tremendous adultation. A resolution demanding immediate independence was offered, as was an elaborately phrased expression of the gratitude to Senator Hawes for his "untiring and untirely unselfish efforts in behalf of the Philippines." Senator Pittman was presented with a resolution of gratitude couched in milder terms.

Thirteen were injured and one was killed in traffic accidents, many fainted and three policemen were rushed to a hospital as a result of manhandling by the crowd. At the Army and Navy club a crowd of 200 became unruly, broke into the building and stoned the army officers and their wives and children. Two officers received severe lacerations and several more were slightly injured.

His home was destroyed in the Chicago fire, and the same year he moved his family into Rogers Park, then outside the city. He was employed for many years by Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co., retiring in 1904. He devoted himself following his retirement to raising flowers about his home.

Six children who survive are Charles P. and Mae R. Finley, Mrs. Janet Wiegand, Mrs. Elizabeth L. Hallett, Mrs. Gertrude Ford, and Mrs. Alice K. Collins, all of Chicago.

ARCHBISHOP SOEDERBLOM.

Upsala, Sweden, July 12.—(AP)—Dr. Nathan Soederblom, 65, archbishop of Upsala and Lutheran primate of all Sweden, who devoted his life to the cause of world peace, died tonight from a heart attack following an operation.

Dr. Soederblom came into the limelight which he normally shunned on Dec. 12, 1930, when in company with Frank B. Kellogg, former American secretary of state, he received the Nobel peace prize. His award was for 1930, Mr. Kellogg's for 1929.

The greater part of his work was done quietly and the corner stone of his belief was that world peace could come through a universal understanding among the Christian churches. In 1923 he visited the United States under the auspices of the World Alliance for Promoting International Friendship, lecturing at Harvard, Yale, and other universities.

Worried Over Finances, Two Men End Their Lives

Two men, worried over finances, committed suicide late last night, one by hanging, the other by shooting. They were James Arnold, 50 years old, who shot himself in the head with a rifle in the rear of his delicatessen at 1704 North Wells street, and William Damasauski, 48 years old, who hanged himself in the basement of his home at 4443 South Talman avenue.

CORRY BOY ON TRIAL TODAY AS POLICE SLAYER

Varner Corry, 15 years old, the "model boy" who shot and killed Policeman Edward Smith last Memorial day when the policeman caught him, his brother and a companion splashing in the swimming pool of the John Marshall High school, will go on trial for murder in the criminal court this morning.

Defense attorneys waived a jury and Prosecutors Harry Busch and Elmer Holmgren agreed to refrain from mentioning the death penalty. Judge Joseph Sabath will try the case.

Corry having confessed, Judge Sabath indicated he would, in fixing the penalty, be guided by the recommendations of a committee of three alienists, Drs. Alexander Herschfield, H. Douglas Singer, and Harry R. Hoffman, who subjected the boy to an exhaustive mental examination on Saturday.

Originally the state's attorney's office had proposed permitting Corry to plead guilty to manslaughter and accept one to fourteen years' imprisonment in Pontiac reformatory. That plan was changed by the insistence of the policeman's widow that he be tried for murder.

Sugg had been unconscious ninety hours when he died. In taking off from Yorkville for Columbus in continuation of the national tour, his plane failed to gain sufficient altitude and hit an elevation adjoining the airport.

FARMERS RUSH WHEAT TO MART AT RECORD RATE

Ship Despite Lowest Prices Since '95.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Farmers in the southwest are rushing their wheat to market at a record rate. The fact that prices are the lowest since 1895 appears to have no influence, the desire apparently being to market their crop as fast as possible. Reports from the southwest indicate that wheat is selling as low as 40@40c in Oklahoma and around Hutchinson in southwestern Kansas.

Railroads report record loadings throughout Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas. This week will see a good deal of wheat from the middle west, as the harvesting of winter wheat is finished with weather favorable. July wheat in Chicago sold down to 52¼c on Saturday and closed at 52⅜@52½c. September closed at 53⅝@53⅝c, and December 57⅜@57⅞c.

July in Liverpool closed at 57¾c, down 1⅛c for the week. December closed at 63¼c, off 2½c from a week ago. Winnipeg July finished at 57c and December at 59⅝@60c, a loss of 2½c compared with a week ago.

Heavy Receipts and Hedging.

Lowering of wheat prices was due to immense receipts, heavy hedging sales, and political interference. There has been practically nothing but disturbance in the grain trade ever since the farm board became a factor, and traders say that an unsettled feeling will continue until the farm board crisis is disposed of and the market rights itself.

President Hoover fired a bomb into the grain exchanges at the end of the week, charging that short selling by large operators was mainly responsible for lowering of wheat prices. This raised a storm of protest from trade leaders who said that hedging sales rather than short selling, absence of export demand, and immense holdings of cash wheat were the real depressing influences.

Depressed by Big Stocks.

"So far as domestic prices of wheat are concerned," say S. C. Harris of Hull, Barrows & Christie, "the decline was cushioned during the past six months by governmental support, but the only way in which they can avoid a bearish factor in the future is by the destruction of this wheat, or a gift to consumers who would otherwise be in the market."

Substantiating this opinion Mr. Harris cites the action of the Brazilian government in dumping excess supplies of coffee into the ocean, realizing fully that merely holding supplies off the market does not enhance prices because prospective buyers know that the supply exists, even though it is not being pressed commercially at the moment.

Mr. Harris points out that while such drastic action, if adopted by our government in regard to wheat, would mean larger losses to taxpayers through the loss of the stabilization fund, it would, at the same time, have the effect of advancing prices materially.

There was heavy buying of wheat during the last few days, well along in the millions of bushels, that was attributed to covering of short sales by a large operator. This buying helped to check the downward tendency of prices and net losses for the week were only 3½@3⅝c.

U. S. Report Bearish.

The government report given out late Friday was more bearish on winter wheat than traders expected, showing 712,000,000 bu, one of the largest crops on record, with Kansas having 200,000,000 bu. A reduction of 125,000,000 bu of spring wheat, however, put down the total crop to 869,000,000 bu, or only 6,000,000 bu more than last year. With the big carryover, however, both in the United States and Canada, the latter's crop being around 223,000,000 bu, gives North America about 640,000,000 bu of wheat for export and carryover, or 75 per cent of the estimated world's import requirements of 800,000,000 bu for this year.

Primary receipts for the week were the largest for the period in years, being 20,728,000 bu, compared with 13,402,000 bu the previous week and 10,397,000 bu last year. Shipments were 13,320,000 bu against 8,389,000 bu

Public Utility Holding Corp. Report Issued

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—The annual report of the Public Utility Holding Corporation of America, sponsored by the Chase Harris Forbes corporation, reveals for the first time details of the company's holdings in securities of subsidiary and affiliated companies together with its investments. It is the first report to cover a full twelve month period, for the year ended May 31, 1931, the previous report having covered the eight months period from organization, in September, 1929, to May 31, 1930.

The principal holdings include 97½ per cent of the entire capital stock of the United States and Overseas corporation, 88 per cent of the common stock of the South American Railways company, and 99.9 per cent of the common stock of the Indiana Consumers Gas and By-Products company, its three subsidiaries.

Other Shares Held.

Public Utility holding also owns 50 per cent of the voting stock of Central West Public Service company, 26.5 per cent of the voting stock in Central Public Service company [Delaware] which fully controls the Central Public Service corporation, 26.7 per cent of the common stock of the Cuba company, owner of railroad and sugar properties in Cuba, 1.5 per cent of the voting stocks of the International Paper and Power company, and 22.1 per cent of the voting stock of the American Commonwealths Power corporation. The American Corporation owns 20.9 per cent of the voting stock of American Commonwealths.

Net is $2,349,208.

Consolidated gross income of the corporation, the United States and Overseas corporation and South American Railways company for the year ended May 31, 1931, was $3,934,721, consisting largely of interest and dividends of a regularly recurring nature. This excludes stock dividends received on which no value was placed, but which would amount to $426,748 at book value of issuing companies.

Net income after expenses, all taxes, underlying interest and preferred dividends and minority interests was $2,349,208, equal after annual preferred dividend requirements of $777,546 to 43 cents a share on 3,633,494 shares of class A and common stock outstanding on May 31, 1931.

U. S. ASKS BIDS ON $50,000,000 TREASURY BILLS

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—Acting Secretary Mills today invited tenders for $50,000,000 of treasury bills which will be sold to the highest bidders on July 15.

The bills will be dated July 17 and will mature on Oct. 15. The issuance of the bills, which will be sold on a discount basis and redeemed at par, brings to $151,000,000 the amount of securities sold by the treasury since the opening of the fiscal year July 1.

The money to be raised will be used to retire $50,000,000 in treasury bills which mature on July 15. Another block totaling $100,000,000 matures on July 27. The issuance of the bills brings to a total of $444,000,000 of that variety of securities now outstanding.

PEOPLES GAS TO SELL 15 MILLION IN 4 PCT. BONDS

Reflects the Present Strength of Firm.

BY O. A. MATHER.

It was only about twelve years ago that the Peoples Gas Light & Coke company, which supplies Chicago with gas, was on the verge of bankruptcy. It couldn't raise money for its needs even by offering bonds at high rates, for nobody would buy them. Its stock didn't pay dividends and sold under $30 a share on the market. It had to get eastern capitalists to build additional plants that it might lease them.

But Peoples Gas has undergone a remarkable rehabilitation since those troubled times. It has become one of the largest and most prosperous gas utility companies in the world. It has been able in recent years to finance its growth at progressively lower interest rates and its stock now sells around $200 a share and pays $8 in dividends annually.

Will Retire Old Bonds.

The high point of the company's credit rehabilitation is marked by the sale of $15,000,000 first and refunding mortgage 4 per cent bonds maturing in 50 years. Most of the proceeds will be used to retire $13,000,000 of 5 per cent bonds issued in 1928 when Peoples Gas took over the Chicago By-Products Coke company and its plants at Crawford avenue and the Chicago drainage canal.

This refinancing will save the company approximately $60,000 a year in interest charges, or a total of $2,670,000 over the remaining life of the bonds to be retired. The new bonds will be offered publicly at 94, to yield about 4.29 per cent, by Halsey, Stuart & Co. The old bonds will be called for payment at 105. They are the only Peoples Gas bonds now outstanding which are callable before maturity.

Insull Tells Improvement.

"Though circumstances and character of this refinancing are naturally gratifying to the management of the company," Samuel Insull, chairman, said in announcing the new issue, "as they should be to the stockholders of the company and to all who are directly or indirectly interested in the stability of Chicago business institutions. The transaction is of more than ordinary significance, when you contrast it with the circumstances of only a dozen years ago. It was then practically impossible for the company to do any financing, even at unreasonably high coupon rates.

"We regret that the non-callable features of our bond issues prior to the series now to be retired, do not permit this issue to be a larger operation. But it serves, as far as it goes, to enhance the simplicity and flexibility of the company's financial setup."

HOLD MEETING OF HUMBOLDT STATE BANK DEPOSITORS

Some 1,000 persons attended a meeting of the depositors and bondholders' committee of the Humboldt State bank and the Second Humboldt State bank, which closed May 14, at the Crystal theater yesterday to consider means to protect their interests.

Chairman W. W. Harrell made the following statement:

"We were denied any cooperation in our recent meeting with the receiver for the banks, Carl Antonsen. It has been disclosed that the attorneys representing another bondholders' committee, the officers of which were the officers of the bank, also represent the receiver.

"Every creditor of the bank, depositor, or holder of a checking account has the right to see that the stockholders of the banks meet their double liability requirements. In claim blanks being issued by the receiver a clause has been written transferring this right to the receiver. We object to this and recommend that depositors do not sign the blanks unless this and other objectionable clauses are stricken out."

Attorney Harold Rivkin, secretary of the committee, told the meeting that a temporary injunction has been obtained restraining the receiver from disposing of certain of the banks' assets at what is claimed are too low figures. Chairman Harrell recommended that all bondholders and depositors see the committee at its headquarters at 2538 West North avenue daily between 7 and 9 p. m.

The last dividend declared on the preference stock was 75 cents a share, or at the annual rate of $3. Bond Market During Week Moves Within Narrow Range

New York, July 12.—(AP)—The bond market moved back and forth last week within an extremely narrow range and trading on the whole was moderate. The average closing price for thirty representative issues, consisting of ten bonds each of public utilities, railroad and industrial companies, affords a quick concise view of the market's price movements. The average on Saturday was 95.9 compared with 96.0 on Friday July 3. Fluctuations among the great bulk of domestic corporate loans were of the narrowest sort most of the time.

However, the foreign group, especially the German issues, contributed its quota to the week's developments. The trend in the latter was pretty steadily downward. The German 5½s of 1965 with sales approximating $2,500,000 at par value was the most active issue by a wide margin. The nervous action of these obligations was only one fact indicative of the apprehension over the financial outlook for that nation. Other foreign obligations declined irregularly.

Active Issues Irregular.

The movement in domestic corporate issues was far less positive. The majority of the more active bonds of all sorts of borrowers and of various investment ratings divided their changes about evenly between gains and declines.

Bonds of the United States government were narrowly irregular most of the time but the closing prices revealed that creeping gains had been recorded.

With the exception of events in Germany the outlook for the market as a whole made no apparent change. Flotations during the week totaled $57,000,000 and showed a substantial increase over the preceding five day week, when $33,300,000 in new issues were offered. However, when it is realized that of the week's total $34,295,000 consisted of state and municipal obligations and $15,000,000 was in federal intermediate credit bank bonds, it is apparent the increase had little significance for the market as a whole.

To Offer $20,000,000 Issue.

The market for municipal and other tax exempt issues, which is highly specialized, has been satisfactory for some time. Public sales of municipal bonds this week will total $44,649,945 and will be held by seventy-one communities throughout the country. A sale of $20,000,000 New Jersey bonds on Thursday will constitute the largest offering.

Notwithstanding the uncertain action of most corporate issues, fundamental conditions remain favorable to the bond market. Money rates are abnormally low. The supply of bonds in recent years has been reduced by two factors: The more successful corporations in the days of the buoyant stock market were able to redeem outstanding issues with the proceeds of new stock sold.

PERPLEXITY AS TO BERLIN STIRS FINANCE UNREST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—It was quite inevitable that when the debt remission plan, after a fortnight in which agreement on its main provisions had seemed alternately promising and doubtful, had at length been accepted the result should be received with a touch of apathy.

The unexpected move by Washington had been greeted, in the markets and elsewhere, with a burst of enthusiasm; it had been accepted from the first as solution of the critical German problem. That being so, and even the stock markets having held during the period of doubt to belief in a successful outcome of the negotiations, it was altogether in line with experience that actual news of the agreement should be received without excitement. It has been "discounted in advance," both on the markets and in the public mind.

World Stock Markets Cool to Relief Measures.

Recuperation Matter of Time.

Furthermore, the immediate sequel to the agreement on the debts indicated that Germany's recuperation from the strain of June could not be instantaneous. The public discussion of that country's financial difficulties had been conducted, whether necessarily or not, with an emphasis which made it impossible for the unfavorable view of the situation to be removed at once.

Although withdrawal of foreign capital from Berlin slackened, it did not cease. The Reichsbank's weekly report, showing increase of $17,000,000 in reserve and a rise in the ratio to outstanding notes to 43% per cent, as compared with 40% a week before, was reassuring on its face, but the result had manifestly been achieved through drawing on the special credits granted by foreign central banks. These facts, and the immediate need of the Reichsbank to procure a much larger foreign credit, caused money hesitation in passing judgment on the whole position.

Cites Two Considerations.

Such uncertainty as they created is cited by the two considerations that it was in the right direction had been made in dealing with the main source of underlying difficulty, and that the highest foreign financial authorities had given visible evidence of belief that the position of the Reichsbank and the currency is intrinsically sound. Beyond these considerations the situation still remains obscure.

Curiously enough, such relief as has been extended to Germany was applied to effects of the world-wide economic difficulties, not to their causes. Tendency of the markets expresses not only the difficulty of understanding the German crisis but the existing financial perplexity over the numerous problems which remain, and which at the moment are numerous enough. They arise from the necessity, always difficult and painful under such circumstances, for adjustment of industry to such altered circumstances as reduction of prices and curtailment of buying power.

No one can ever determine at such times when that process of adjustment has run its course, or when the underlying influences which made it inevitable shall have spent their force. What we do know, in the light of experience, is that neither will continue indefinitely and that each month of readjustment and economy brings the end appreciably nearer.

Crash Comes Suddenly.

Perhaps there has never been an occasion in the past century of financial history when a period of severe depression followed so instantaneously after a period of unbounded financial confidence. High-pitched expectations and unrestrained speculation for the rise has often enough prevailed on the very eve of such a forced readjustment, but there have usually been plain indications of what was due to happen next. In the months before the actual crises of 1907 and 1873 they took the shape of disastrous failures of important enterprises, under the influence of which the markets grew unsettled and apprehensive long before the decisive reckoning.

The story of 1929 was strangely different; what seemed to be evidences of continued prosperity existed up to the moment of the crash, and so did the all but unlimited confidence of the financial community in the future.

That unusual circumstance was doubtless the explanation for the unprecedented violence of the stock exchange collapse; it possibly contributed to the violence of the subsequent trade reaction. As has been the case in all other economic episodes of the past, we shall not know exactly why it happened when it did and as it did, and precisely what it meant in financial history, until the period of depression shall have run its course.

The one historic certainty is that the chapter of profound financial disarrangement precedes the exhibition in due course of recuperative financial power as surely and as logically as the wildly extravagant imaginings of 1929 preceded the downward swing of the economic cycle.

Reach Closer Agreement on Silk Testing Methods

Closer agreement on raw silk testing methods between American and Japanese markets is shown in a progress report issued by the raw silk classification committee of the Silk Association of America. The report is limited to a proposed revision in methods of sampling and testing, and a modification of the design of the serpiene inspection room. An attempt has been made to eliminate differences between the markets, while at the same time to safeguard the interests of consumers in the American market.

[Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—The American and Foreign Power company, Inc., reports for the twelve months ended March 31 a net income of $24,248,698, and after preferred dividends and full annual requirements on the second preferred stock to $46,426, or 2.8 cents a share earned on 1,657,560 common shares. This compares with $25,-[illegible] in the preceding year, when [illegible] for common stock was $4,-[illegible], or $3.03 a share on 1,642,692 common shares.

Gross revenue increased 9.4 per cent from $69,197,773 to $76,410,288, and net earnings were $38,652,673 against $34,-[illegible]. The balance to the parent company after depreciation, charges and preferred dividends of subsidiaries and minority interest was $29,872,044, against $27,575,758. Other income was added, leaving total income of American and Foreign Power $30,436,765 against $29,249,109.

Assets 572 Millions.

Total assets at March 31, 1931, were $[illegible],553, including $470,109,948 investments and $70,727,542 current assets, including $24,457,357 cash. Current liabilities were $41,047,065, including $[illegible],155,000 notes and loans payable.

The annual report for 1930, issued today, shows a net income of $25,-[illegible], equal after preferred dividends and full second preferred dividend requirements to $1,727,746, or $1.04 a share earned on 1,655,583 common shares, comparing with a net income of $24,756,305 and a balance of $6,510,015, or $4 a share on 1,654,537 common shares, earned in 1929. Gross revenue for 1930 was $78,-[illegible], against $63,709,207 in 1929, and earnings were $39,719,983 against $[illegible],116,556, balance to parent company was $30,183,719, against $26,275,566, and total income was $30,846,258, against $27,934,400.

Dividends in Arrears.

The declines in common share earnings are due principally to increases in the $6 and $6 preferred dividend requirements from $4,147,343 in 1929 to $[illegible],313,143 in 1930 and to $5,288,963 for the twelve months ended March 31, 1931, and in annual requirements on the second $7 preferred stock from $[illegible],947 in 1929 to $18,464,270 in 1930 and to $18,913,299 for the year ended March 31, 1931. At the present time dividends on the second preferred stock have been paid to Oct. 1, 1930, leaving three quarters in arrears.

The annual report and the March 31 statement reflect the effects of the worldwide business depression, the report says. This depression brought about, as regards Argentina, Brazil, Chile and China, a heavy depreciation in foreign exchange, when expressed in United States currency.
